'Cautious' Anderson Waits for Vote

By
CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

PENTICTON — MP David Anderson is running a cautious campaign to become the next B.C. Liberal leader despite the prospect of an almost certain victory Sunday against his one opponent, Surrey Mayor Bill Vander Zalm.

When Pat McGeer announced he was stepping down in favor of Anderson three weeks ago, it wasn't long before the party caucus and the party president, Mel Couvelier, threw their support to the 34-year-old Esquimalt-Saanich MP.

But Anderson's campaign managers still had to decide how to approach the leadership campaign.

The problem was how to switch from the pop image of a backbench maverick in Ottawa to a cool and low-key leader in B.C.

The main thing to avoid, say his campaigners, is the appearance of an upstart outsider hard-selling his way to the provincial political arena.

In his press conferences, Anderson has been frank and candid about his belief that he will sweep the leadership contest and he always jokes about the question of an image.

His campaign literature says Anderson is "the right man for right now in B.C."

A telephone survey of convention delegates taken earlier in Vancouver found 75 per cent in favor of Anderson over Vander Zalm. With only two candidates, however, a one-vote majority is all that is needed.

Anderson preceded the convention campaign with a letter to all delegates asking for support and says the same concern which has characterized his performance in Ottawa underlies his decision to become B.C. Liberal leader.

At the convention the campaign pamphlet contains a picture of Prime Minister Trudeau and Anderson in casual attire apparently enjoying a joke.

Anderson is careful to point out that while he has a maverick image amongst his fellow MPs in Ottawa, Trudeau admires his style and does not resent his frequent criticisms of government policy.

Delegates at the convention are also receiving a magazine article on Anderson written before his arrival on the provincial scene which is favorable to Anderson but includes unfavorable statements by him on the performance of outgoing leader McGeer.

Again, the problem is to project Anderson's image as a capable and tough politician without riling or angering the B.C. party.

Anderson's campaign manager and brother, Malcolm, said today Anderson's acceptance speech will also be low-key. Anderson himself however, indicated Friday in an interview, and by earlier statement, that his leadership is not going to be a quiet one.

He believes that the opposition in B.C. has never properly exploited the issues and plans to fight every opponent without let-up.

Probably the Progressive Conservative party, as yet only a marginal influence in B.C., will come in for a heavy attack from Anderson, once the campaign for office really begins.

Anderson said Friday he still believes the "conspiracy" theory that there is a "tacit" agreement between the PCs and Premier Bennett that will prevent the Liberals from gaining power.

In return for Bennett's help for the PCs in the next federal election, the PCs in B.C. will try to take Liberal votes and split the opposition to the Social Credit party.

The fact that Premier Bennett denied any such deal doesn't impress Anderson, who said these arrangements are never documented in any case.

A newspaper statistical survey published Friday shows the Progressive Conservatives with 12.63 per cent of the popular vote as of three weeks ago.

Anderson points out the survey was taken before his leadership announcement and he predicted his party will take away at least half of that popular vote.

He also said he expects that his leadership will mean an advance in Liberal popularity.

He said he knows that many NDP voters with concern for the environment will vote for him, taking away perhaps three per cent of the NDP popularity.

According to the poll the gains from the PCs and the NDP could provide enough seats to "pull it off" and possibly win an election for the Liberals, said Anderson.

Anderson also claims his "recognition factor" is good. This means voters quickly recognize his name, a must on any ballot.

He is best known for his long and so far effective fight to prevent the U.S. government from creating an oil tanker route along the West Coast of B.C.

Anderson has yet to choose a riding in which to gain a seat in the B.C. legislature and this in fact will provide a much more uncertain contest than the leadership race here.

BOTTOMS UP, JUNIOR . . . but it isn't a case for the temperance union. Fifteen-month-old Joseph Afzal Mohammed helps 86-year-old Charles Musto open Ye Olde English Pub and Music Hall, a new facility for Vancouver's senior citizens, but it's a teetotal toast. The strongest thing is root beer.

Nixon Heads for Summit, Talking of 'A World Peace'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — In driving rain and with little fanfare, President Nixon left today for a week of "very important substantive talks" in Moscow that could climax 2½ years of bargaining toward the first, cautious restraints on Soviet and American nuclear arms.

Standing in the shelter of a giant hangar at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., the president told a small official crowd of well-wishers that "we're not going there to make headlines today" but to build "a better chance for peace tomorrow and all the years ahead."

He talked of a "a world peace, a world of progress for all."

The president's first stop will be Salzburg, Austria, where he was due to arrive tonight. He flies on to Moscow Monday morning.

At an informal reception Friday night for reporters, Nixon displayed high hopes for the success of the summit although he cautioned that results could not be nailed down until after he met Leonid Brezhnev, Soviet Communist party chief.

He spoke with great optimism about Brezhnev's attitude, as it was set out in a letter delivered to him Thursday by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Nixon said is showed a positive approach towards bridging differences between the United States and the Soviet Union.

There were three main areas which offered considerable promise and in which he saw the possibility—although not a certainty—of agreements or understandings.

These were in limiting nuclear weapons, greater trade and space exploration.

The strategic arms limitation talks have made considerable progress, the president said, although "there are still more very difficult problems that remain unresolved. . . ."

On trade, Nixon said: "I would say the chances for some positive results are good — not certain, but certainly good."

On the third point, the president said considerable progress has been made with regard to co-operation in space exploration.

He cautioned, however, that hopes should not be raised too high. "There are some knotty problems to resolve," he said.

Diplomatic observers said the Soviet Union and the United States, despite their support for opposing sides in the Vietnam war, seemed clearly anxious not to let Indochina cast a shadow over their own bilateral relations.

Meanwhile, in Moscow, all along President Nixon's motorcade route, janitors order housewives not to hang wash from their balconies on Monday.

Outside the U.S. Embassy, passersby stare at photographs of Nixon in Peking, in Bucharest, in Belgrade and Warsaw.

All over town, women in overalls slosh whitewash on an old building and watch it turn grey.

DISEASE HITS LARGE BREEDS

TORONTO (CP)—A disease that cripples large dogs is sweeping North America, a Toronto veterinarian said Friday.

"It's getting to be a very serious problem," said Dr. Alexander Hroncok in an interview.

"In some giant breeds, over 80 per cent of dogs are affected to varying degrees."

The condition, in which one of the major hip muscles fails to develop, is known as dysplasia. The shaft of the leg bone continues to grow, but it does not fit properly into the hip socket.

Island Roads Claim Two

Two persons have died on Island highways in the first few hours of the holiday weekend.

Jasmine Kudra, 16, of Victoria died in a single car accident on Shawnigan Lake Road two miles south of Shawnigan. The driver, whose name has not been released, is hospitalized with back and leg injuries. Four other passengers in the vehicle escaped injury.

David Murray of Ottawa was killed between Courtney and Cumberland when a car left the road. Four other persons were injured. Names have not been released.

One Dead in Hotel Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — A woman died early today and a man was injured when a three-alarm fire forced evacuation of guests from the downtown Sheraton Mount Royal Hotel.

Police said Mrs. Gertrude Doyle, 85, originally from Ottawa but a permanent resident of the hotel "for years," was found dead in her bed on the third floor.

A police spokesman said 652 persons—guests and staff—were evacuated within 10 minutes.

He said 22 persons were taken to hospital but most were released within hours after treatment for smoke inhalation.

One man suffered a broken leg and cuts after he jumped from the fourth floor to a fire escape at the second-floor level.

"I don't know why the man jumped," commented Albert Lariviere, assistant fire chief. "He didn't need to."

The police spokesman said that what caused the fire has not yet been determined.

The third floor where the blaze started at 2:28 a.m. was "completely destroyed" and damages will run into the thousands, he said.

A hotel spokesman said 613 guests were registered in the hotel which has about 1,000 rooms. Those affected by the fire were allocated other rooms.

Some guests tied bedsheets together to let themselves down to an inner courtyard but most were led down stairways and aerial ladders.

Graham Fram, a YMCA representative, said in a telephone interview with the Hamilton Spectator that he and three members of a Russian delegation escaped from the hotel by a window.

Mr. Fram had been acting as a guide for the Russians, who were not identified.

The hotel has been plagued in recent months by a number of small fires which are believed to have been set by an arsonist.

Mr. Lariviere said it was too early to tell if arson was behind this morning's fire.

Hanoi Blockade Defeat Plotted

Times News Services

PEKING — Chinese and Soviet officials, apparently shelving for the present their own bitter ideological dispute, were in session here Friday seeking ways to defeat the American blockade of North Vietnam.

Diplomatic sources report representatives of Hanoi and the Mongolian Republic were also attending the meeting, believed to be aimed at elimination of bottlenecks in getting war material to North Vietnam.

The sources also suggest supplies destined for the Communist war effort may be piling up inside China.

North Vietnamese sources said the Hanoi government is "very, very, very satisfied" with the Chinese efforts to beat the U.S. measures.

A Chinese leader has already privately told some Western ambassadors in Peking that no obstacle would be put in the way of Soviet and East European aid crossing China.

At the same time, authoritative Soviet sources have said military material, including missiles, is already in transit by rail across China.

As best as can be established from independent sources in the Chinese capital, Soviet supplies seem to be crossing in China in the biggest quantities since at least early 1968 when the Russians switched to sea transport for the bulk of their aid.

Meanwhile, several hundred North Vietnamese troops led by tanks launched a dawn counter-attack today that briefly interrupted a South Vietnamese drive to break the siege of An Loc.

Initial reports said 81 North Vietnamese were killed and seven tanks destroyed. The Saigon command said 15 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 38 were wounded in beating back the counter-attack.

A senior U.S. adviser, Col. J. Ross Franklin, said the counter-attack was in all probability North Vietnam's last major thrust in the battle for An Loc, the ruined provincial capital 60 miles north of

NEWS BRIEFS

Bell Wins Boost

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada has won a healthy rate increase which will raise basic monthly telephone charges five per cent and boost other tariffs.

The Canadian transport commission Friday granted Bell about 60 per cent of the total additional revenue sought by the company. The rate increase would bring in $47.2 million if in effect throughout 1972 while Bell asked for $78.1 million.

UN Urges Aid

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — The United Nations Conference on trade and development unanimously approved sweeping recommendations today to aid the world's least-developed countries. It was the most significant action taken by the group since its 140 members began their latest round of talks April 13.

Beach Offer

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Edgar Benson is willing to discuss changes in an agreement giving Vancouver a slice of land from the Jericho Beach military beach on the outskirts of the city, a defence department spokesman said today.

UNWED MOTHERS HELD 50 YEARS

DEWSBURY, England (Reuter) — Two sane young women were banished to a mental institution 50 years ago after having illigitimate babies, and were freed only this year, a welfare worker says.

Frank Sheridan, director of social services in this Yorkshire town, disclosed the story to a local social service group. One of the women was sent to the institution when she was 18. She now is 68. The other, now 74, had been there since she was 24.

Sheridan said in each case the parents had approached the local authority which, at that time, had no power to deal with the situation except for committing their daughter to an institution. They had not left it because they had nowhere to go. They now are living in a hostel.

World Labor Raps Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — The World Confederation of Labor has lodged an international protest against the Quebec government because it appears "certain fundamental liberties were violated" in recent labor disputes, the group's secretary general, Jean Breuck, said Friday.

Sent here by the group representing 20 million workers in 22 countries to study the current dispute between the Quebec government and about 200,000 public service employees, Breuck said the protest was lodged with the International Labor Organization in Geneva on the basis of available information.

He said Quebec legislation ending an 11-day public service strike last month contravened the spirit of an international labor convention ratified by the Canadian government, and he has asked the federal government if Quebec is in accord with the convention.

Meanwhile, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette threw cold water on hopes that negotiations for a new contract might resume this weekend when he said Quebec's three top labor leaders will probably not be released from jail before Tuesday.

Widespread walkouts and demonstrations to protest the jailings were ended by a union common front Wednesday as "an act of good faith"

Short Story Studied As QE2 Plot Source

NEW YORK (AP) — The first draft of a short story read to a creative writing workshop here is being studied by police and federal authorities as possible inspiration for the anonymous threat to blow up the Queen Elizabeth 2 in the Atlantic Ocean.

Sources quoted today by the New York Times said the short story was the "main lead" in the investigation because its similarities with what the caller told the Cunard Line were so striking as to almost rule out the possibility of a coincidence.

The story, written by a young typist, was read to the five students at Tuesday's meeting of the extension course at Hunter College, 21 hours after the Queen Elizabeth 2 had sailed from New York with 2,350 passengers and crew.

The story described a successful attempt by two persons, one a terminal cancer patient, to extort a valuable diamond from a QE2 passenger by threatening to blow up the 65,000-ton luxury liner.

In Wednesday's real-life threat, the anonymous caller told the Cunard Line that two passengers would set off six explosions unless a $350,000 ransom was paid.

A search led by four British experts who parachuted into the mid-Atlantic has turned up no bombs. Teams of searchers continued to comb the 1,000 cabins, 13 decks and maze of hallways as the vessel steamed ahead for its scheduled docking today in Cherbourg, France.

Bomb Rumor

TORONTO (CP) — An Air Canada DC-8 jet with 123 passengers aboard returned to Toronto International Airport today after a telephoned bomb threat to the airline. A search found no bomb.

S.E. Asia Market Potential Great

Southeast Asia is a businessman's paradise.

This view was offered by William M. Hamilton, past president of the Vancouver Board of Trade and former postmaster-general in the Diefenbaker cabinet, in a speech and slide presentation before the Financial Executives Institute Conference here today.

Indonesia particularly, Hamilton said, holds tremendous market potential. Vast natural resources, a government committed to free enterprise "even though I'm not sure they know what it means" and attractively low wage levels add up to an appealing investment oportunity for North American businessmen, he said.

Interest rates up to 24 per cent are conceivable in Southeast Asian countries and investors can expect to get their capital investment back in two to three years.

Hamilton, a winner of the National Brotherhood Award, said businessmen must be prepared to modify their views with respect to customs and cultures of underdeveloped natios. North Amtricans must remember, he cautioned, that a "thin layer" of highly intelligent people in these countries are senstivie to the great economic power of the U.S. and Japan. Canadian and Australian companies generally meet with greater co-operatio.

Businessmen must think about whether they are giving the southeast Asian countries real help. "And if we can make money at the same time," he added, "I'm not against that."

Convention delegates were shown a series of slides on South Korea, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Indonesia and Mayaysia taken by Hamilton on several trips to the area in the last year.

ARTIFICIAL HEART 'JUST DOLLARS AWAY'

EDMONTON (CP) — An American surgeon who has led the way in open-heart surgery for 20 years says a practical artificial heart is only dollars away.

Dr. C. Walton Lillehei of the University of Minnesota said in an interview Friday that development of the artificial heart is "an expensive technical problem that can be solved."

He added that "we would have artificial hearts in people today if the United States government had spent anywhere near the money for its development that it has on the Apollo space project."

Dr. Lillehei made his comments after he presented a two-hour report to an overflowing audience of surgeons, medical students and nurses at the symposium celebrating the 50th anniversary of the surgery department at the University of Alberta.

Two Die In Irish Gunfire

BELFAST (CP) — Two persons were killed in shootings across Northern Ireland during the night and early today, authorities reported.

Snipers ambushed an Ulster Defence Regiment patrol near Dungannon and shot and killed one of the reservists. He was the 332nd person to die in violence in Ulster since 1969.

A 17-year-old Londonderry youth was shot to death Friday night. More than a dozen persons were injured in a day of bomb and gun violence fuelling the current state of tension across Northern Ireland.

The army said it hit a gunfan after he fired on a military observation post from the Roman Catholic Bogside area of the city.

In Belfast, a gunman opened fire on 12 children—all pupils at a Protestant school —after a store-throwing battle had broken out between the children and Catholic workers at a nearby clothing factory, police said.

No one was hurt by the bullets, but the children were taken to a hospital suffering from shock and hysteria.

There was speculation the incident might be a further attempt to provoke a backlash against Belfast minority Catholic community.

. . . LABOR

Choquette told the Quebec national assembly that officials of his department are studying the requests from the three for release on temporary "day parole," but it was unlikely the requests would lead to their freedom before Tuesday.

The common front of public service unions, made up of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, the Quebec Federation of Labor and the Quebec Teachers' Corp., ordered an end to the nine-day labor strife Wednesday but specified that the presence of the three leaders at the bargaining table had to be guaranteed before talks could resume.

Choquette made it clear CNTU President Marcel Pepin, QFL President Louis Laberge and Yvon Charbonneau, president of the teachers' union, would have to make the first step before their release would be considered.

Irish to Protest

A demonstration by the Victoria Irish Solidarity Committee to protest British intervention in Northern Ireland is scheduled for 3 p.m. today in front of the parliament buildings.

Grant Hargrave, organizer of the Vancouver Irish Solidarity Committee, will speak on the situation in Northern Ireland at a public meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in Room 168, Elliot Building, University of Victoria.

ROADS, FERRIES JAMMED BY CARS

More than one sightseer out to enjoy the holiday weekend's warm weather will find himself hot under the collar on crowded roads and at packed ferry terminals.

The weekend weather will be sunny and warm with high temperatures in the mid-70s and night-time lows between 40 and 45, according to the weather office at the Victoria International Airport.

Skies will remain mostly clear.

But the roads won't. By 9 a.m. Saturday, Saanich police said, there were already 40 to 50 cars a minute moving past a squad car on the Pat Bay Highway.

That's not quite one every second, a policeman pointed out.

Police expected traffic to become heavier as the day went on.

It was also a busy morning at the inner harbor. Traffic was especially heavy at the B.C. Ferry Terminal at Swartz Bay. At 9 a.m. there was a line-up too big to fit onto the next ferry.

According to sources at the terminal, the 9 a.m. ferry was packed to the gunwhales. There were especially heavy loads on the Gulf Island ferries.

Rape Try Brings Four-Year Term

A 25-year-old Saanich man was sentenced to four years in prison Friday for attempted rape.

David Keith Henderson of 2594 Penrhyn had earlier pleaded guilty and was sentenced in B.C. Supreme Court by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan.

In an hour-long hearing before sentence, Henderson was described as "a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" as court heard testimony from two psychiatrists who had treated him.

The accused had periods of anti-social behavior which he could later not remember or remember only vaguely, said Dr. Leyda Lythgoe.

The rape attempt took place the evening of Feb. 8 in some bushes near Tudor and Seaview on Ten Mile Point. Henderson threatened to strangle a 21-year-old woman who was walking home from a bus stop if she did not comply but was frightened off by passersby.

Henderson's wife, Janet, told court he had tried to get an appointment with a psychiatrist the day before but he had been unable to see the doctor right away because of his crowded schedule.

Ruttan, speaking to sentence, said that although he had no doubt Henderson was mentally ill, he was not so ill he did not know what he was doing and that it was wrong.

The judge ordered that Henderson have psychiatric treatment while in prison.

Forest Firm Shuts Down Over Fallers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach (Canada) Ltd. shut down logging operations Friday at Sandspit and Beaver Cove, saying a lack of fallers made it impossible to continue.

About 185 men have been laid off indefinitely.

The company says fallers have been off the job at the two sites since mid-April.

An estimated 800 fallers employed by several forest companies have engaged in work stoppages in an attempt to set up negotiations on a pricing formula between their employers and their union, the International Woodworkers of America.

Five contempt of court cases are currently before the courts in which forest companies allege the fallers engaged in a concerted slwodown prohibited by earlier injunctions.

Decision has been reserved on all the cases and more cases are pending.

"It was a completely abortive attack," Franklin said.

"They spent the first half hour in attack and the next two hours running."

U.S. B-52 bombers kept up heavy strikes on several sides of An Loc. Nine of the big bombers dropped 225 tons of explosives on North Vietnamese troop concentrations.

The command, meanwhile, announced that U.S. Air Force bombers destroyed a fuel tank centre containing more than five million gallons of petroleum during heavy bombing raids Thursday on the outskirts of Hanoi.

Former ITU Head Dies at Age 83

A former president of the Victoria Typographical Union, Local 201, James D. Davidson, died Friday at age 83.

Davidson was associated with Victoria Press Ltd. for 46 years, after moving to Victoria in 1922. He retired in 1968.

Davidson was president emeritus of the union local.

He is survived by his wife, Ruby; a son, Donald; two daughters, Ruby and Pearl; and numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

the weather

It was sunny and warm throughout B.C. on Friday with record afternoon temperatures of the date being set at a few stations along the coast. Hope, at 84, had the warmest temperature in the province. This warm sunny weather is expected to continue across southern B.C. through Sunday. However, a weather disturbance in the western United States is moving slowly northward and there is a chance that cloud and a few showers or thundershowers will reach southern B.C. by Sunday evening. A weak Pacific weather system will give cloud to the north coast on Sunday with the cloud spilling into parts of the central interior in the afternoon.

HOME IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT, and if the population explosion has resulted in all the best sites being occupied, then the spot beside the freeway doesn't seem so bad — especially with its adjoining swimming pool. This mother goose would normally be found in a secluded area of Toronto Islands, but the islands have become so overcrowded with geese that she and her husband built their nest 75 feet from the Don Valley Parkway, one of the city's most heavily-travelled arteries.

Young Math Genius Befuddles His Elders

TORONTO (CP) — One of 13-year-old Tom Bull's major problems is explaining his difficult mathematical projects to other persons—including his teachers.

David Andrews, vice-principal at Tom's school, listened to Tom's explanation of the project that won him a major prize at the recent Canadian science fair in Sarnia, Ont.

"It was way over my head," says Mr. Andrews.

For next year's Toronto science fair, Tom, a Grade 9 student, is developing a project he describes as "the study of calculus in modern number systems." Asked to explain, Tom says: "That's the simplest I can put it."

The project that won at Sarnia, Expansion of Pascal's Triangle into Dimensions, earned Tom the accolade of judges of doctoral level who called him "brilliant" and a "genius."

Asked about being called "a genius" by the judges, Tom says: "I don't think they would have said those things if they had understood my project."

Tom's father, a mathematician and physicist, died two years ago but his mother, Shirley Bull, says she is sure Tom's interest in mathematics came by inheritance and the environment at home.

"His father practically breathed mathematics."

Tom's interest in math began in earnest two years ago when he was in Grade 7. He undertook to study calculus. The same year he mastered the slide rule.

Since then he has won numerous mathematical contests. The victory in Sarnia last weekend won him his largest prize: a two-week intensive science course in England this summer.

Of the future, Tom says he wants to get a PhD in mathematics.

"Then I want to get a good teaching offer at a good university so that I'll have plenty of time to do research."

Math classes at Woodbine junior high bore him, he says, except when he can do a project on his own or his teacher gives him advanced books to read.

"He has the best intellect — student or teacher—in the school," says Carolyn Mann, chairman of the mathematics department.

Two Flown To Hospital From Tofino

Mercy flights for two injured persons from Tofino were organized by the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre Friday.

Betty Bradshaw, 25, suffering from complications following an operation, was flown to Vancouver General Hospital at 10.15 p.m.

As the Tofino airport has no lights, flare pots were used to guide the aircraft to the runway.

Earlier, eight-year-old John Corlazzoli, who received an eye-injury from a puck while playing ground hockey, was flown to Vancouver for treatment.

Hearing Set In Knife Possession

Richard Arthur Bergeron, 32, appeared in Victoria provincial court Friday charged with possession of a knife for a purpose dangerous to the public peace and possession of a stolen car.

Charges were laid March 22.

Bergeron pleaded not guilty and elected trial by county court judge. Preliminary hearing was set for June 13 by Provincial Court Judge William Ostler.

Are you beginning to think this way about funerals?

☐ I think many people buying a funeral end up paying far more than originally planned, possibly because they are emotionally bewildered at the time.

☐ Money spent on elaborate funerals would be better spent among the living.

☐ I want my funeral, including cremation or burial, to cost under $300.

☐ I think embalming, for purposes of displaying the body, is an unnecessary indignity.

☐ I am repelled by putting a body on display with the face made up to look "natural".

☐ I favour a closed coffin, a private cremation or burial, with perhaps a memorial service after, for friends and relatives.

☐ I feel strongly enough about these matters that I would like to support an organization dedicated to promoting simpler, less costly, more dignified funeral practices.

☐ I would like to receive a simple plan which lets me record my wishes in privacy, so that they may be filed with a non-profit organization I know will carry out my wishes after death. This also saves my next-of-kin from making these difficult decisions under emotional stress.

If you feel this way you are not alone. Over 60,000 people now belong to the Memorial Society of B.C. If you move, your membership can be easily transferred to other societies throughout North America at little or no cost.

Playing the Predictions

The political poll taken throughout British Columbia by the Vancouver Province has produced some interesting figures on the prospects of the various parties in the next provincial election. Without a doubt, this poll will be followed by others, now that Mr. Bennett's provocative hints and non-hints are blowing flame into the election coals.

Certainly it will be no surprise if the Social Credit party produces statistics to counteract the Province's conclusions. For the newspaper's harvest of opinion indicates that the government would lose 11 seats in the next election, to give it 25, while the NDP would double its present 12 to 24, the Liberals would lose one of their existing five, and the Conservatives would lose even the two floor-crossers who now wear the adopted Tory label.

The voting-percentage figures are even more suggestive, for they give the Social Credit party 32.08 per cent of the vote, and the NDP 33.34 per cent. It was roughly 47 per cent to 34 in the 1969 election. Most of the discrepancy is found in a Conservative percentage of 12 in the survey compared with almost zero in 1969.

What this may mean for any election this year is, of course, a matter of opinion and largely dependent on party affiliation. Mr. Bennett treats the poll lightly — putting his trust in what he calls people-polls in contrast to computer polls. He could well be right. But the situation has changed subtly over the years. The government machine has aged, as have its members. Two cabinet members are dropping out. Two MLAs have switched. There is a growing concern among the public that the government is not keeping step with events.

Pollution, environment, recreation including parks, education — there is a growing list of public problems which cannot be fully met by the old approaches and the old political applications. Provincial government today is not the same sort of job that it was 20 years ago, but not many of the ministers have changed the approach they brought to office two decades ago.

Another new factor in the provincial political equation is the arrival of Mr. David Anderson in the B.C. Liberal camp. It is not to be imagined that he will sweep the Liberals into office this year, but it cannot be denied that he brings a new confidence and energy to the provincial scene. His federal record shows him to be hard-working and not afraid of breaking new political ground. His work in trying to head off the danger presented to British Columbia by the future traffic of super-tankers bringing Alaska oil to Juan de Fuca Strait has made him known in Washington as well as across Canada.

Perhaps his flair is what the British Columbia Liberals need to lift them out of the category of corporal's guard in the Legislature to a position from which they can challenge for bigger goals. The Province's opinion poll was held before Mr. Anderson's western move was made public.

In any case, it's all grist for the computer mill, and for the countless street-corner and luncheon-table arguments that will thrive until Mr. Bennett plays his ace — The Date.

Cutting the Suit . . .

Facing the familiar problem of balancing rising costs against limited revenue, Prince George school board appears to have evolved a policy which should help to offset its local share of the province-wide escalation in spending for education. The board will reduce to a lower status some staff members who have been department heads, returning them to the category of teacher and eliminating their special $1,100 annual allowance. By this and other steps it is hoped to save $160,000 in the next school year.

In addition, the board plans to increase the number of students assigned to each teacher and to reduce the free periods previously allowed the latter.

These are not economies most educators would favor, and they undoubtedly lower the income of senior teaching personnel formerly listed as department heads. They nevertheless reflect a recognition of the need in most areas to cut the educational suit to the available cloth.

Such actions, following rejection of various referendums seeking higher operating revenue from the municipal taxpayers, define very clearly the difficulties encountered by trustees. They may be challenged by members of the teaching profession on the grounds that they will impair learning opportunities for the young. But board members can present a convincing rebuttal. The boards need only make the point that there are limits to what can be raised for education. Then it becomes a matter of how the available funds shall be shared.

The amount that goes into higher teachers' salaries or special accounts for department heads cannot be devoted to other desirable projects — reduction of class sizes, for instance. At that point the trustees can ask their teachers how they decided the pie should be cut when the profession went for its last salary increase.

In the Merry, Merry Month

In this merry month of May, this newspaper full of good news from every where and this column always bubbling with blithe spirits, you can be sure that the nation's latest budget will not be allowed to rear its ugly head. But leaving aside the dull figures of John Turner's first financial offspring, any remote and ignorant observer must marvel at the Canadian budgetary style, the classic language, the sleek bedside manner, the reassuring smile of a priest at a wedding or, perhaps, the sympathetic air of a seasoned undertaker at a high-class funeral.

Already Mr. Turner, the ablest young man in our politics, has mastered the complex ritual and placed himself in the line of all our great treasurers. It is a fate to be pitied, but don't waste your tears prematurely. Governments may die, budgets may not last a single year but Canada's good old folk festival recurs as surely as springtime and passes just as quickly, like Herrick's fading daffodils. By midsummer no one will recall what Mr. Turner said in May and he will be glad to forget it. You needn't worry. Another spring will bring another budget when the daffodils sprout again in the warming earth.

Facts Don't Matter

So impressive is the ritual, so certain the rebirth, that the facts don't really matter in the least. Look back ten years from this spring and you will see how the facts are decently subordinated, by general agreement, to the ritual.

In my devotion to the public service, and also because I could use a few harmless laughs, I have re-read the record of 1962 and found it as fascinating as a fairy tale.

At that time the Diefenbaker government was entering its long death throes while its earnest finance minister, Donald Fleming, assured the nation that everything was under control, the future bright. Even when he devalued the Canadian dollar in the middle of an election campaign and a sudden exchange crisis, the retreat from a series of tragic errors was represented as a wonderful advance, a triumph of wisdom.

Still more wonderful and triumphant, the prime minister had discovered, in a blinding revelation, that high Liberal taxes were a major cause of inflation, contrary to the economic canons of the ages. Who cared for the facts when the ceremony dazzled the multitude and convulsed the innocent groundlings? They danced happily around the Maypole.

Then, in 1963, the Liberals improved even on this splendid spectacle and won an election with the promise to "get the economy moving again" though it was already moving fast into a bigger and better inflation. On went the dance.

However, a slight interruption occurred as Finance Minister Walter Gordon, and his whiz kids from Toronto, invented a miraculous tax gimmick, pushed it through a cabinet which didn't bother to study the fine print and withdrew it under fire.

JOHN TURNER
. . . candidly warned us

You might have supposed that such a fiasco would ruin any minister and any minority government but the solemn budgetary function rescued them quite handily. Appointed with fiscal mystery, embellished with undecipherable statistics and elevated on a pink cloud of prophecy, minister and government were safe for several more years of office, the facts conveniently buried in documents that only a chartered accountant could understand.

More lively jokes were to follow. By 1965 an odd coincidence persuaded the government that huge deficits and easy money were needed to stimulate a lagging, deflated economy and would do no harm, either, in an autumn election—this at a time when the bonfire of inflation was burning with a hot, vehement flame, unnoticed by the Economic Council.

Never mind the facts. The budget looked dandy. The election was won. The show must go on. It went on in successive budgets, until 1969 when a new and unceremonious prime minister began to ask himself where it was actually going. So Mr. Trudeau's budgetary reversal (called "austerity" in a moment of macabre humor) was delivered with a different type of ritual that looked rather like a wake. No matter, inflation was a "disaster," said Mr. Trudeau, and he would crush it under his firm right foot (the left being reserved for flexible manoeuvre).

By 1971 everything was reversed again by Finance Minister Benson in a political panic which, according to the rules, was presented as another bold advance, a masterpiece of planning and logic.

Key to Mind and Budget

In 1972 a youthful master of ceremonies took charge and, after all those years of exciting fiction, at last admitted a fact. This, it seems to me, is the key to Mr. Turner's budget and perhaps to his mind — the admission that inflation, so long cured in ceremony, is uncured, and apparently incurable, in a modern economy.

Thus we are candidly warned that money will continue to lose its value at about 4.5 per cent annually, on a compounded, accelerating basis, until in an average working lifetime it will have no value at all. But of course this prospect is nothing to fret about in a well-managed, efficient and affluent economic system and alarms no one except a few doddering old cranks like Premier W. A. C. Bennett. Besides, the opposition parties are promising to speed up the process by wholesale tax cuts and reach the goal of a valueless currency sooner than the government.

In the merry month of May only a humorless, mean-spirited Canadian would interrupt the time-honored rite and introduce a sour note into the vernal jubilee. As Shakespeare once remarked, a man of that sort is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils, the motions of his spirit are dull as night and his affections dark as Erebus. Let no such man be trusted. The show must go on. And yet, knowing and admiring Mr. Turner, I suspect somehow that it won't, once the tattered Maypoles have been taken down and the election is over.

ART STOTT

Discriminating for Safety

The statistics are blurred, but the British Columbia Motor Vehicle Branch believes there has been a distinct improvement — as far as avoiding accidents is concerned — in this region since 1967. That was the last year before compulsory safety inspection of vehicles was introduced here.

The branch assesses the percentages on the basis of reportable accidents per 100 cars registered within the jurisdiction. In 1967 total vehicle registrations in the district numbered 82,851, the reported accidents, 3,506. In 1971, figures for both were higher, reported accidents standing at 3,703 and registrations at 96,150. The ratio before introduction of testing was 4.23 accidents per 100 cars. Last year it was 3.85.

The picture, however, is not that clear. In 1967 accidents involving $100 or more property damage were reportable. Last year only those over $200 were listed. Adding a little further to the haziness of the statistics was the influence of inflation. What was an accident repairable for $100 or less in 1967, could, in many cases, be a mishap carrying a repair bill of $200 last year.

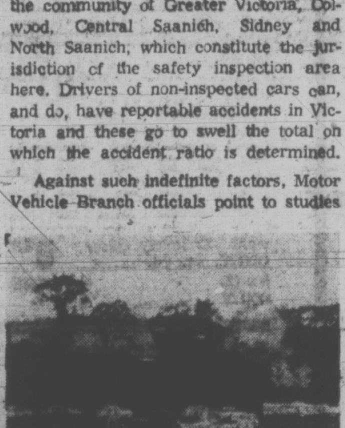
Sense of Responsibility

There is, nevertheless, one category for which the reporting base has not changed — accidents involving injury. In 1967 in this region they numbered an even 1,000. Last year they had risen to 1,209, a figure which indicates a slackening in the rate at which this type of mishap has increased in relation to the number of registered vehicles.

Officials of the Motor Vehicle Branch recognize both the imprecision of the general accident ratio statistics and, more importantly, the lack of definite evidence on the degree to which vehicle inspection has contributed to what they consider a favorable trend. Other factors were involved. Mechanical failure of a car does not approach the influence of liquor on accidents.

Nor does registration provide a complete base on which to form conclusions. In addition to motoring residents, the flow of traffic varies according to the volume of tourists, including visitors from other parts of the Island beyond the community of Greater Victoria, Colwood, Central Saanich, Sidney and North Saanich, which constitute the jurisdiction of the safety inspection area here. Drivers of non-inspected cars can, and do, have reportable accidents in Victoria and these go to swell the total on which the accident ratio is determined.

Against such indefinite factors, Motor Vehicle Branch officials point to studies of a more precise nature made in in the United States. They indicate that the ratio of all accidents has fallen about 5.6 per cent during the last five years where vehicle inspection has been in force.



Heading for the Clinic

So far since 1967, the Victoria inspection depot has condemned 50 vehicles outright. Some have been brought into satisfactory repair. Others have been junked. Still more, with serious but correctable faults, have been disposed of, either to wreckers, second-hand parts dealers, boneyards or, perhaps, as usable cars to other areas where inspection is not required.

Of the stream of cars flowing through the Victoria testing station last year, 7,000 were failed for faulty brakes, 6,300 for faulty steering, 9,200 for inadequate tires and 7,600 for faulty exhaust systems.

None of these flaws caused the public indignation which arose from failures for faulty headlight focusing. Greater latitude is now permitted in that area. Higher level limits are allowed on low beams, but rules are still strict at the opposite extreme. The headlight which illuminates only a short distance of road must still be adjusted to prevent a driver from over-driving the portion of the road he can see at night.

All told, last year, 31.7 per cent of the vehicles were rejected for faults on the first time through the testing station — and a small number of them were new cars.

Base Unchanged

Testing, say the officials, makes drivers more conscious of their responsibilities. They learn that their cars must be in good running order. The knowledge spills over into operation. It also improves pre-delivery service and influences sales. The youngster who buys a noisy muffler, finds it unacceptable and returns it to the supplier, discourages further sales of that item.

The local station on McKenzie Avenue last year operated on a $150,000 budget, with 24 full-time employees and six part-time, and yielded revenue of $160,000 from fees.

Revenue is important because profits from the larger stations offset operating deficits from the smaller — and two more smaller stations will be established shortly, one up-Island, the other in the Lower Fraser Valley. These will join existing stations here, in Vancouver, Burnaby and Richmond.

Whatever its merits in the campaign for safer driving, the program creates a flagrant legal discrimination. It makes a law-breaker of the car-owner living and driving in a testing area whose windshield does not carry a valid test-approved sticker. No such offence can be charged against the owner-driver, even of a clunker, resident in other regions. Officials explain that total coverage is impossible at present in B.C., but is coming. In the meantime, the legislation mocks the principle of equality before the law.

Ramble With Skipper

FREEMAN KING

At Mt. Douglas Park some of the natural beauty is marred by litter beside the parking lot, paper cups, candy wrappers and, down the trails to the beach, rubbish and broken bottles, some just thrown over the bank and smashed in the little creek.

But, for those who want to see some of the wonders of nature, there are many along the wooded shoreline, where the vegetation is exposed to the early morning sun and is in the shade during the afternoon. Many plants have taken advantage of these conditions and have adapted themselves.

Some, among them the tall fringe cup and miners lettuce, have put on rapid growth that has made them taller and rather more spindly than those grown in other places. I think this is due to their ability to absorb the sunlight before it is shut away from them. Here, too, we find that the red alders and the Douglas maples are tall and slender and they reach out to the sea, perhaps to catch the reflected sunlight.

The red elderberry also shows fast growth, with the older stems fading out quickly.

The little stream used to be a delight, shaded by many shrubs and some fine specimens of the western yew. Now it is polluted. It stinks and the floral growth has been pulled. The banks have been battered and it will soon become nothing more than a series of eroded gullies.

When you get down on the sandy beach you find garbage of all sorts and broken bottles — places where people have had a picnic fire, often close to a log, which has been left to start another fire.

This beach does not lend itself to an abundance of animal life, though if the tide is out, the rock will be covered with the little acorn barnacles. On the seaward side, low down, you will be able to find some that are up an inch and a half wide. There are several small limpets attached to the rock and a few of the tiny snails that look like grains of sand.

If you look at the sand where it is mixed with the blue clay from the banks you will find the "feeding holes" of the clam, and the tiny earth mounds of some of the sand worms. Under almost every small stone there are bound to be many little beach crabs, and in the few small tidal pools you will see little gray bullheads darting about.

The Saanich parks department has put in some fine steps and a bridge in a continued effort to keep the park beautiful.

LETTER

Accordion

May I comment on a letter by M. P. B. Wrixon — a letter on history.

Mr. Wrixon found it amusing to hear that Mr. Nixon did not want to be the first president to lose a war. He refers to invasions that were nothing more than skirmishes.

What Mr. Wrixon did not say was that Britain lost the 1812 war by indifference, which has been proved beyond question. I would like to point out both Britain and the USA won and lost wars — Canada always lost. A quote from Baneful Domination (with permission from the author).

Mr. Wrixon fails to mention the wars of plague in the 1830's: three of them — cholera, typhus, smallpox — as Britain exported her poor, her naked and her dispossessed to the helpless colonies. Cholera killed 1,500 people in Quebec in just a few days. The first plague could have been a happening, but two more showed colossal indifference.

Canada was just an accordion being squeezed from both sides. Events in 1972 in both Britain and the USA have proved that we are still in that unfavorable position. — Len Skelton, 4068 Grange Rd.

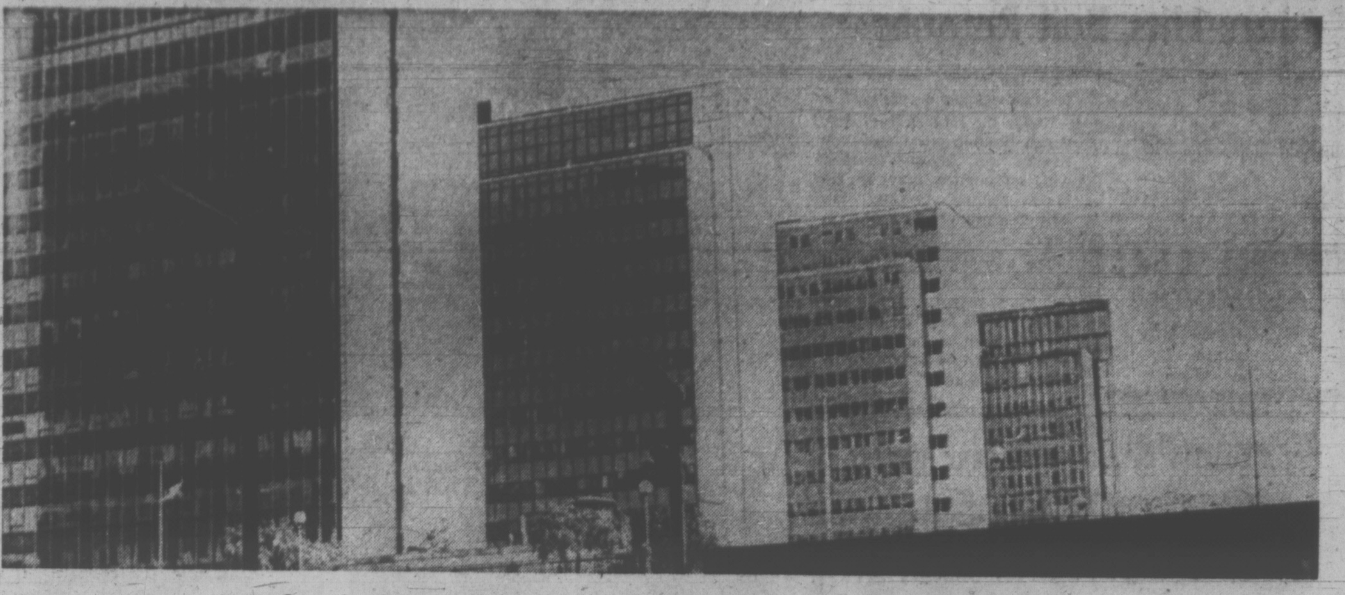
Sweden Pays Price For Its Affluence



Standardization gives a dreary sameness to the urban landscape

By ROGER CHOATS
The Times of London

STOCKHOLM — Mum and Dad awake at 5:30 a.m. in their cramped, barrack-style flat, drag the children to a child minder and then stagger bleary-eyed to the factory. There, for almost nine hours, they attempt to fulfill sometimes impossible production norms.

At night they slump, exhausted, in the subway that whisks them back to the flat for a dinner of "blood" sausage and boiled potatoes. Food prices being among the world's highest, it is all they can afford, especially since Mum and Dad and their fellow Swedes drink more spirits per capita than anyone else in the world, according to government statistics.

This is the reality of modern Sweden — Europe's most affluent country. A psychiatric report commissioned by the government has confirmed the image of a harsh, ruthless society which asks its citizens to sacrifice their mental well-being by working ever harder to pay for exorbitantly priced flats and consumer goods.

The report, prepared by Dr. Hans Lohman, a Swedish expert in pshychiatry, was commissioned by Parliament after the number of people admitted to mental hospitals had grown by 14 per cent from 73,000 in 1969 to 83,000 in 1970.

Lohman found that in his rush to maintain Sweden's much-vaunted living standards the worker is called upon by the technocrats to be ruthless and competitive. He feels ashamed if he cannot keep up and "do his duty."

More and more citizens cannot keep up as the planners demand even higher economic growth to pay for looking after those who have faltered along the way. Greater growth is needed to compensate for the increase in dropouts. The result is more dropouts, the report said.

It said the role of the Swedish woman is far more difficult than her husband's — probably an impossible role. Many women have full-time jobs because their husband's pay cannot keep up with prices in one of the world's most expensive and most heavily taxed countries.

At the same time the Swedish woman is expected to cope with the children when she comes home from work, provide tasty meals, clean the house and then be a good bedtime partner. Sociologists here have noted that the typical young married couple make love on an average only twice a month, if the statistics are to be believed. They think this is because the women, and perhaps the men too, are simply too tired.

Lohman said children are deposited with child minders at about the age of two so that their parents can have the privilege of working. More often than not, the minder is an exhausted woman who takes the job because her own family desperately needs the money.

In the children's encounters with adults, the report said, "it is terrible to see the coolness with which (they) are met. Everywhere . . . the hard and cold adult stares, those pursed up mouths which keep silent and reproach. What we have managed to put together for our children is an extremely cold and anti-child society."

The report noted that the growing mental health problem is not solely a Swedish phenomenon. It is happening in all industrialized societies. However, Lohman said that, because this is a rich and highly "advanced" nation, it is happening faster here, and the causes are possibly more apparent.

Observers here believe the real problem lies in the fact that the business of Sweden is business. This is an extraordinarily industrialized nation, highly dependent upon world trade.

To remain competitive it must produce goods which are better. A constant striving for perfection is a well-known hallmark of Swedish life.

It is axiomatic that perfectionism can be a psychologically disastrous goal for most people, but the Swedes nonetheless keep striving for it. The individual is always expected to pursue self-improvement and so, in addition to their other roles, one out of four Swedes drag themselves to night school in the winter.

For economic reasons Sweden continues to standardize. It is true that if you have seen one Swedish town, you have seen them all.

Swedish flats and houses are so much alike that you can enter any kitchen in the country and usually know where the rubbish bin is situated. There seems to be a standardization of attitudes, too.

Many observers believe that some chilling aspects of the "1984" society appeared in Sweden several years ago. Few aspects of a Swede's life can be hidden from public scrutiny, from the time the state awards him his very own number until the time he dies in one of the new computerized hospitals.

All income tax returns are on public record. If you want to build your own home, instead of buying the standard models, you must fill in no less than 129 mostly computerized forms, according to a Stockholm newspaper. You may have to get permission from the local authority to paint the outside of the house in certain colors as there are laws regarding color schemes.

The government is trying to close all private schools in Sweden, and by 1980 it is expected all little Vikings will be educated in state schools.

A new style of writing is being introduced in comprehensive schools which will be easier for computers to scan, while many wage earners receive their pay from a data centre in Stockholm.

Lohman pointed out in his report that "we know that the style of life in the so-called super-industrialized society leads to a prodigious, human-crushing process." He called upon the Social Democratic government, which has ruled Sweden for almost 40 years, to investigate the causes.

Swedish Family Theory Came From Bolsheviks

By ROLAND HUNTFORD

Certain trends in modern, social democratic Sweden can be traced back to Russian Bolshevism of the twenties. So at least is the thesis of Professor Jacob Sundberg, who holds the chair of jurisprudence at Stockholm University.

Professor Sundberg has been talking to Scandinavian social welfare officials on Swedish family legislation. It is in that field that he sees the clearest signs of Bolshevik influence.

Professor Sundberg reminded his listeners that in most legal fields Sweden had now departed from the normal Western concept of marriage as a form of registration, with or without religious ceremony. What now counts is cohabitation alone. In all matters of substance — taxation, inheritance, the regulation of money matters between man and woman — there is no difference between those who are married and those who are not.

This, said Professor Sundberg, was comparable to Russian law-giving during the first decade after the Bolshevik revolution in 1917. That was "an idyllic time," but the Soviet Union, as it later developed, "appears to be separated by geological ages from that time." Then, the revolutionaries were animated by a faith in the personal and political virtues of free love and loose relationships.

The Soviet Union marriage law of 1926 says that "evidence of cohabitation is sufficient for the court to declare a state of marriage, even if the marriage has not been registered."

Professor Sundberg quotes Madame Alexandre Kollontay, a member of Lenin's original Bolshevik government, as saying: "Formal marriage now offers little advantage. . . . Therefore the number of people living together informally is bound to increase." The same ideas, as Professor Sundberg intimates, often expressed in almost exactly the same words, 'are to be found in the changes begun at the end of the 1960s by the Swedish Social Democratic government.

Basic influences can be traced even earlier. "In the Swedish government program of March 22, 1950," said Professor Sundberg, "you can read that the Swedish example was to show 'countries with the dictatorship of the proletariat that the changes in society's structure striven for by those countries can take place with the retention of true political democracy'."

In the directive for the drafting of the present Swedish marriage laws, issued in 1969, said Professor Sundberg, there is a passage on the importance of the individual's "continuing emancipation and growing security . . . it is the intention to realize equality between the sexes, social security benefits are to replace the obligation to provide support and those who establish a family without marrying must be saved unnecessary difficulties. The general tone is that of the Bolsheviks of the 1920s."

The Swedish trend, said Professor Sundberg, was to regard "social benefits as a substitute of the legal system." In other words, the citizen looked for protection not to the law but to social security alone. "In that sense," said the professor, "the Swedes are indisputably close to the spirit of the Bolshevik twenties. For in those days it was still believed that the withering of the law was just around the corner." He was referring here to the classical Communist idea that with the disappearance of capitalism, the state and all its institutions would die away.

The Bolsheviks, said Professor Sundberg, "thought, like the Swedish directive I have mentioned, that 'there is no reason to renounce the use of legislation on marriage and the family as one of several instalments of reforming society'."

The professor also pointed out another similarity between present-day Sweden and Bolshevik Russia. In both, he said, crimes against the state had been made more serious than crimes against the person. In both cases, he claimed, the reason was the orthodox Marxist presumption that the class struggle lay at the bottom of all crime. As that struggle disappeared, so would crimes against the person.

Although Professor Sundberg's lecture was the grossest heresy, it caused no discernible reaction in Sweden.

One interesting comment, however, was provided by the Swedish minister without portpolio, Mrs. Camilla Odhonoff, who was in Professor Sundberg's audience. In a discussion after the lecture she did not attempt to deny the truth of what Professor Sundberg had said. Instead, in the ensuing discussion, she was content to elaborate on the Socialist view that law is only the superstructure on an economic foundation.

STEPHEN ROMAN
. . . muscle and money

THE BIG MEN ARE CHOSEN

By KENNETH BAGNELL
The Globe and Mail

It was just past 10:30 when the Tory chairman rose and told the people that Stephen Roman would be their candidate, for he had a majority on the first ballot.

And so it was that on Monday night people from Thornhill and Woodbridge, Markham and Gormely, chose a multi-millionaire, a man of muscle and money and special interest in the defeat of Pierre Trudeau.

He is a short man, Stephen Roman, square and strong, and when he stood before the crowd there was about him the aura of compressed energy, the suggestion of a jackhammer awaiting its work.

He had told them earlier, when he gave his speech, that it was integrity that he believed in very much. "The disease of our time," he said, "is the belief that there is something wrong with being moral, righteous and honest."

He seemed assured that goodness would not pass away, at least from himself, for he is a devout man, and his nomination was put before the people by a man of the cloth, a canon of the Anglican Church who saw in Stephen Roman, "a man of honesty and integrity, a man of high ethical principle and deep spiritual conviction."

There were, apparently, no skeptics. There is no room at a political rally for real skepticism any more than at a revival meeting, for the word is truly preached and these candidates, all of them, love mercy, do justly and walk humbly with God and man.

But if such nights have no room for skeptics there is much room for disappointment and it was the Rev. Elmer McVety who knew it most of all. Mr. McVety is an evangelical preacher, a pastor at The People's Church, and he tried hard for the nomination and when he spoke he received much applause when he said, "Let's bring the fuddle-duddle era to a close."

Now at 10:45 he stood amid some supporters and knew the pain that passeth understanding. He had been defeated. A girl was crying, for after all Elmer McVety is a good man, and surely it is good men that we need. Pastor McVety consoled the weeping girl saying gently, "It was the dirtiest thing I was ever in in all my life."

Three times he spoke the words until at last a stranger in the crowd, a columnist, asked him that he really meant. It was then that he said it was not the local people, not the other candidates, but headquarters by which he meant the Toronto organizers. "They told me that if I won, they wouldn't support me, they'd make me an independent candidate."

Perhaps a headquarters man did say it, thus interfering with the affairs of a local riding. But that is the way it often is when a big man is available and other men offer themselves as candidates. Stephen Roman is a big man.

And so the people of York North, the Tories among them, chose their man. They did so as honorably as we know how, in the democratic fashion, in a meeting which ended like many such meetings, with a victory full of muscle and money and others who stand almost alone, grown men with the hurt faces of little boys.

Confusion, But With Honor

By JOHN NICHOL

Many people find international politics hard to understand.

The North Vietnamese, for instance, have been conducting a massive offensive in South Vietnam. But Le Duc Tho, Hanoi's man at the Paris Peace Talks, said "we do not in any way want to impose a Communist regine in South Vietnam." Now, that's downright confusing.

President Nixon says that he wants a "Generation of Peace," and therefore, he is going to mine Haiphong Harbor; blow up the railroads and increase the bombing of North Vietnam. He says he is doing this because he doesn't want the world to "lose respect" for the office of the president. Now, that is very confusing too.

If you are upset by this confusion — it's because you don't understand. Just keep calm. After all, if Mr. Kissinger can figure it out, why can't the rest of us? It's really quite straightforward.

To begin with, America wants to get out of Vietnam — with honor. There's no doubt that the South Vietnamese who have fought beside the Americans, are going down the drain — but the plan is for them to go down with honor too.

The president does not want to be the first president to lose a war. Therefore he has invented a policy called Vietnamization, whereby it is proposed that the people of Vietnam will lose the war on America's behalf.

The North Vietnamese war effort is strongly supported by China, and therefore President Nixon went on an important diplomatic mission to Peking. He has been making friends with Peking and bombing Hanoi at the same time — so he is not being particularly scrutable himself these days, when you come to think about it.

Similarly, since the Russians are supplying arms to North Vietnam, they have invited President Nixon to visit Moscow to discuss peace, and to reconfirm the responsibility of the super powers to ensure that we don't all get incinerated. And since Russia and the U.S. are the only powers with the capability for total incineration — they do seem a likely pair for this sort of chat.

The Chinese detest the Russians. The Russians abhor the Chinese and the Americans. The Americans loathe both the Chinese and the Russians. These relationships explain why all these meetings are being held. It's like a bridge club — if you stay home the other girls will cut you up.

If you have followed things this far, you are close to understanding. There are only a few more points to be made.

First — Never forget the Paris Peace talks. They have done more to inflame the public mind about the war in Vietnam than any other forum.

Second — Don't forget the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks. These talks have as their aim, the control of nuclear weapons, and have cleared the way for France to set off hydrogen bombs in the atmosphere.

And lastly — Remember the United Nations. It cannot interfere in any way in Vietnam. The bombs are American when they leave the B-52s and Vietnamese when they hit — so no international presence is required.

If you are still confused — consider this. The way things are going, the peace sought by all the international mechanics may turn out to be the "peace that passeth all understanding."

Jury Hits Bail Reforms

TORONTO (CP)—New bail laws threaten community safety by allowing persons charged with serious offences to go free, an Ontario Supreme Court jury said Friday.

The seven-man jury urged that the effects of the new laws be watched carefully.

Under the Bail Reform Act, which became law about four months ago, persons charged with an offence may be released without posting cash bail on a promise to appear in court.

The jury said it agrees with objectives of the bail laws, but "it appears . . . that bail is being allowed to persons charged with serious criminal offences with histories of similar criminal acts."

June Pension Cheques To Carry Increases

OTTAWA (CP) — About 1.8 million Canadians aged 65 and over will get the hard-cash results in about six weeks of legislation hustled through Parliament this week to raise pensions retroactively to January.

The monthly old age pension cheques scheduled to be delivered in the mail June 28 will be bigger by amounts of up to $82.35 than the ones due to be delivered late this month.

Federal public servants are at work now on what one official called "a massive clerical operation" making changes in individual pension calculations.

The book-keeping for old age security pensions and guaranteed income supplements is not computerized. The welfare department has to calculate what's owing and the supply and services department must print new cheques.

It was the time needed to make all those clerical adjustments that prompted the government to push through parliameneary rules to get the pensions legislation into law Friday. Any later, officials said, and the increases could not have been paid out until the end of July.

Drug Habits Surveyed

TORONTO (CP) — About 6,000 Metropolitan Toronto students filled out questionnaires Friday describing their drug habits.

The study, sponsored by the Addiction Research Foundation, asked the public and high school students how many times in the last month they had used glue, alcohol, marijuana, opiates and amphetamines.

It is the third such study and, for the first time, includes a separate category on heroin use, a growing problem.

Results will be released in the fall.

Previous studies showed significant jumps in drug use.

Symphony Auditions

Auditions for all Victoria Symphony strings, oboe, clarinet and French horn will be held by musical director Laszlo Gati, May 29 and 30, at Dunlop House, 1960 Lansdowne Road.

Anyone wishing to audition for the 1972-73 season should phone the secretary, 592-2449, for an appointment.

LASH SENTENCE HALTED

HAMILTON (CP) — The whipping sentence imposed on a 16-year-old has been suspended pending a decision by the National Parole Board, the youth's lawyer says.

Lawyer Tom Bordonaro said Friday he has begun proceedings under the Parole Act to suspend and revoke the sentence of 10 lashes.

Provincial Judge Ross Bennett Monday sentenced Frank Walters to the whipping and 5½ years in penitentiary for a series of crimes. One was the beating and robbing of a 85-year-old man.

Walters committed the robbery and other offences with another youth after they escaped from a Brantford training centre.

The lawyer said he made his application on four grounds: Walters' age, the parole board's past decisions, legislation before Parliament to outlaw flogging, and the fact that Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer has said that flogging will not be used in federal prisons as long as he holds the portfolio.

PEACE RIVER POWER from such projects as the W. A. C. Bennett dam may be used to satisfy British Columbia's long-term needs as well as for short-term demand. There are power sources closer to home — atomic power and damming the Fraser River — but stiff opposition is likely from environmentalists if either of these two sources are tapped.

'Chabot Holds Solution'

The only man who can solve British Columbia's construction strike-lockout is Labor Minister James Chabot, Construction Labor Relations Association spokesman George Wheaton said Friday.

Negotiations between contractors and construction workers has reached an impasse and only the third party intervention of the labor minister could get both sides back to the bargaining table, he said.

Chabot earlier suggested both sides return to work while negotiations resume, with compulsory arbitration at the end of the discussions if no agreement is reached.

This proposal was accepted by the CLRA but rejected by the unions.

"It is up to Mr. Chabot to press this proposal more strongly. He is the only person who can get talks back on the track.

"Otherwise this dispute could drag on many weeks and it's hurting everybody," Wheaton said.

The lockout began April 28, halting $500 million in construction and putting 30,000 men out of work.

KING 'CHEESE' DOES IT AGAIN

HAGEN, Germany (UPI) — Manfred "Cheese" Haarmann, dubbed by police as the "king of the Hagen jailbreakers," did it again Thursday.

After receiving a seven-and one-half year jail term for armed robbery, Manfred jumped across the defendant's bench and ran out of the court building.

A few hours later police found Haarmann, who has five prisons escapes on his record, hiding in a cemetery.

1976 Critical Year For Hydro Decisions

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Premier Bennett has said that as long as he is leader of the provincial government there will be neither nuclear power in B.C. nor a dam on the Fraser River.

By an interesting coincidence neither decision has to be taken before 1976—which could be the date Premier Bennett has set for his retirement.

He will have been in office 24 years on Aug. 1, 1976, and assuming a provincial election this year—the next election could be expected four years hence.

REPORT DUE

About the end of May, the British Columbia Energy Board will bring down its long-awaited report on hydro priorities for the years ahead.

The report will say that existing dams and projects already planned will be sufficient to meet British Columbia's growing power needs and no immediate decisions need be taken.

The existing system has a capacity of approximately 3,000 megawatts of power and the anticipated requirement by 1985 is 7,500 megawatts.

To meet this growth, an additional 1,200 mw will be developed at the W. A. C. Bennett Dam and some 2,200 mw at various Peace River sites downstream from the Bennett Dam.

In addition, on the Columbia River, the Mica project will come on stream in 1976 with an ultimate capacity of 2,600 megawatts.

In 1975 the Kootenay Canal project on the Kootenay River near Nelson will begin producing power, reaching full potential in 1976.

It is at that point that several hard decisions must be taken either by Premier Bennett or his successor.

There are three major choices available:

1. Further development in northern rivers including projects on the Skeena and Stikine Rivers.
2. Dam the Fraser.
3. Develop thermal power sources including nuclear power.

RESISTANCE

All three will encounter resistance from environmental groups but most particularly the last two.

B.C. Hydro's chairman Gordon Shrum is eager for nuclear power development at Duncan so power can be transmitted from there to Vancouver on a temporary basis as a standby source of power in the event of emergencies or unexpected demand.

As well, nuclear power could supply power needs for the lower island.

Environments are concerned about the effects on marine life of the necessary pumping of gallons of heated water into the strait. As well there is the highly-emotional fear of radiation and nuclear explosion.

Both environmentalists and the fishing industry plan extensive campaigns against proposals to dam the Fraser river.

That leaves northern rivers as the most feasible development in political terms.

In economic terms there is the objection to high transmission costs from the north when large amounts of power could be developed by other means much closer to the Vancouver area.

Whatever the energy report recommends at month's end, the provincial government is almost certain to shelve the three really big decisions until 1976.

Charges Dismissed

BURNABY (CP) — A total of 36 charges against a Burnaby firm and its president of failing to negotiate a contract with employees were dismissed in municipal court. Judge J. K. Shaw agreed with a defence submission that each of the counts listed three separate offences, and that as a basic principle of law each count should list one offence each. He dismissed all the charges against Truckweld Equipment Ltd., and its president, A. C. Wilkinson. The charges were brought as a private prosecution by Local 3495 of the United Steelworkers.

GIVE PLAQUE THE BRUSH-OFF.

PLAQUE is a nasty, invisible, gummy villain that sticks to your teeth and causes tooth decay and gum disease. He hangs around your gums, and unless you attack him, he'll attack your teeth. So here's what to do —

Start with about 12" of dental floss, tie the ends to form a loop and keep about 1/2"-3/4" between your thumbs and index fingers. Slide the floss down between your teeth until it goes under the gum. Use an up-and-down, wrap-around motion away from the gum to clean each tooth.

Make sure you don't miss any spots, it takes a little skill, but practice will make it easy.

Then take a nice soft toothbrush, and clean the crevice between the teeth and gums. Slide the brush along the side of the tooth at an angle that permits the row of bristles next to the tooth to get into the crevice. Use a gently vibrating motion to clean and stimulate the gums. Then brush up away from the gum and you'll sweep PLAQUE right out of your mouth. It takes a little practice, but your teeth will appreciate it, you'll cut down your dental bills, and a healthy mouth is the beginning of general good health.

For more complete information on how to give PLAQUE the brush-off, fill in the coupon and send for our free colourful poster.

Something to Smile About . . .

• YOUR TAXES •

By I. H. ASPER

Tax literature for the layman is in short supply — largely because the field is volatile and ever-changing.

Budding authors shun this area because of the high obsolescence factor. For example, a book written two years ago on the tax ramifications of pension planning would already be out of date.

The life expectancy of most books on tax planning is very short. A few years ago an Australian lawyer published a booklet called Tax Sputniks. In it, he suggested some rather novel techniques for reducing taxes, but with the constant change of the law, most of them today are of historical interest only.

The same fate greeted the only Canadian book on the subject. Successful Tax Avoidance, written a few years ago by a prominent tax lawyer. He pointed out that while death was still unavoidable taxes did not necessarily always fall within that category. He then proceeded to catalogue the many ways in which the astute businessman might reduce his burden. No sooner had it become a business best seller, than the government systematically plugged most of the loop-holes on which he had based the work. That probably will serve as a warning to other aspiring text authors.

However, there is one tax-oriented book that may last. It's a collection of tax humor. Since there's very little that is funny about taxes, it is necessarily quite short.

Called Dear Internal Revenue, edited by Bill Adler, and published by Doubleday, it is a collection of interesting letters the U.S. tax division has received from sometimes bewildered and otherwise frustrated taxpayers.

A quick look is enough to convince one that the taxpayer's anguish is the same in Canada, as it is in the United States.

Like the victim who, feeling someone owed him something, wrote the Internal Revenue Service as follows: "Borrowed cow, cow fell in ditch and broke her neck. No cow, no milk, no money. Is there a deduction there?"

In another case, the revenue service had sent out a notice requiring a taxpayer to do his duty. The apparently puzzled citizen wrote back: "As far as I can determine, I never engaged any Internal Revenue Service. Will you windly explain the transaction to which your recent form letter referred?"

We learn too, that the United States, like Canada, has its share of if-you-can't-beat-them-join-them taxpayers. One wrote his favorite tax office: "I have an idea how internal revenue can collect millions of dollars a year.

"I am shur that my idea will work. Please be so kind to write me the percentage revenue will pay on ideas."

Then not being so sure of revenue's integrity, he added the postscript: "If so, name the percentage before I send the idea."

But the one thing that distinguishes the Canadian from his counterpart to the south is the willingness of the U.S. taxpayer to share his good old American know-how with his government.

If every taxpayer's suggestion is run though the computer to test its logical efficiency the following proposal for mechanized tax-return processing efficiency would make the lights flash and the bells ring.

"Suppose this: String cables horizontally across the short dimension of this building, say about 10 feet above the floor; these cables should be uniformly spaced. Then from the ceiling directly above these cables, suspend vertically a series of cable which will be used to remove the resultant catenary from the horizontal cable. All you have to do then is string out bolts of asbestos cloth from one end of the building to the other, if these bolts of cloth have grommets at one end and safety clips at the other end, they can be easily joined to form one long strip the entire length of the building. Next fix cloth ties to the asbestos cloth to keep it from shifting to a low or heavy point — that is. The ties are tied to the horizontal cables.

"This asbestos material not only provides a thermal barrier, but it absorbs sound. It never needs paint, thus a money saver. It isn't exposed to the weather and should last indefinitely. Cleaning is done by vacuuming while still in place; after a long period of time it might be found desirable to unclip and untie a few belts at a time and send it out to be washed. As such this cleaning process may be a programmed thing under contract and should be less expensive than painting and would not interrupt the work since the material can be removed in a matter of minutes after working hours and of course there are no paint fumes, scaffolding, etc. etc.

"Also, since this material is light in color and is closer to the working surface than before, not as much light will be lost and this too should prove a small saving . . . I sure hope you can use these ideas."

Adler's book doesn't indicate whether the tax office adopted the suggestion, but reliable sources have it that the inventor has since been retained as a draftsman of tax legislation.

(Asper is a Winnipeg lawyer and leader of the Manitoba Liberal Party.

Strike Settled

HELSINKI (Reuter) — A 10-day country-wide strike by the Finnish Union of Journalists ended Friday after the union agreed to compromise wage settlement proposed by state labor arbitrator Paavo Paavola.

Hitler Remembered

MADRID (Reuter)— About 250 persons crowded into a small church here Friday night to attend a mass to mark the 27th year since the death of Adolf Hitler, who committed suicide April 30, 1945. Rightwing sympathizers and Falangists who have held ceremonies for Hitler during the last 10 years dedicated the mass to "Adolf Hitler and all those who died with him in defence of Christian and Western civilization."

$200 Million Drill Plan Outlined by Panarctic

CALGARY (CP) — Panarctic Oils Ltd. plans a $200-million exploration program during the next five years, president Charles Hetherington said in his 1971 annual report.

The consortium of private companies and the federal government is the largest leaseholder in the Arctic.

Hetherington said the geological features in the Arctic islands are "much larger and the potential reserves are much thicker than in Western Canada."

Because the land surface is mainly free of vegetation and rock formations outcrop at the surface, exploration in the Arctic "could be less costly per acre explored."

The company spent $10,460,980 during its 1971 search for petroleum in the Arctic islands, compared with $16,184,943 the previous year.

Panarctic said there now are nine drilling rigs in the Arctic, five of which are under contract to the company and two under contract to others drilling on Panarctic lands.

Panarctic had land holdings of more than 60 million acres which are distributed over a 1,000-mile region from Banks Island in the southwest to Ellesmere Island in the northeast.

The company opened 1971 with the successful killing of a wild gas discovery well on King Christian Island and closed the year with a discovery of natural gas at Kristoffer Bay on Ellef Ringnes Island.

Panarctic drilling five other exploratory wells and farmees drilling another nine.

Early this year the company discovered the first crude oil in the islands with a well on Ellesmere Island.

Neonex 'Aided By Legislation'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government's proposed legislation to control foreign ownership in Canada has generated some confusion says the chairman of Neonex International but this much was clear: "In its proposed form, it certainly will help acquisition-minded companies like Neones. . . ."

James A. Pattison told the Neonex annual shareholders' meeting that the company meets its major competition when it seeks to buy small, privately held companies.

The competition comes from foreign-held firms, mostly wealthy American firms, and when they get into the act, the asking prices of the acquired companies rise, Pattison said.

"To the extent that the proposed law discourages foreign-controlled companies from taking over other Canadian firms, it should lower the prices of Canadian businesses offered for sale.

LESS COMPETITIVE

"This should materially make acquisitions less competitive for Neonex-style companies, and thereby help reduce the bargaining power of the seller."

Pattison said, however, that the main priority of Neonex at this time is not acquisition, but internal growth.

The company, he said, has recently opened a new travel trailer factory in Oregon, and this year it plans to open 10 new Overwaitea stores and 13 new warehouse and catalogue stores.

Mr. Pattison also welcomed the new federal budget brought down by Finance Minister John Turner May 8.

With the new budget, the chairman said 1972 "should see continued improvement in business and economic conditions."

"With accelerated depreciation allowances on manufacturing and processing assets acquired after May 8 this year, and a drop in the rate of corporate tax . . . starting in 1973, the additional cash flow to a growth-oriented company like Neonex International is most welcome."

No-Windup Delivery Great for Gogolewski

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Amos Otis changed his batting stance, Bill Gogolewski changed his pitching delivery and the results were there for all to see Friday night.

Otis lashed a single, two doubles and a homer and drove in five runs to pace Kansas City Royals to a 16-1 rout of Oakland Athletics and a team scoring record.

Gogolewski, who has allowed only five earned runs in 32 innings since adopting a no-windup delivery, tamed Minnesota Twins on four hits as the Texas Rangers edged the Twins 2-1.

Elsewhere in the American League, Mel Stottlemyre of New York Yankees blanked Boston Red Sox 6-0, Cleveland Indians' Gaylord Perry turned back Detroit Tigers 2-1, Chicago White Sox shaded California Angels 3-1 behind Wilbur Wood and Milwaukee Brewers' Bill Parsons outpitched Baltimore Orioles' Dave McNally 4-2.

"That was fun; that was lovely," said manager Bob Lemon after the Royals matched the club record with 20 hits in walloping the Athletics.

"This ought to loosen us up. We haven't been able to score runs, that's been our big problem. We've been getting hits but we've been leaving runners out there. This was just the opposite."

BELTS TWO HOMERS

Besides Otis' slugging, John Mayberry belted two home runs, Lou Piniella had a homer and two singles, Freddie Patek two singles and a double and winning pitcher Paul Splittorff three singles.

Gogolewski, who had a 20.25 earned run average after a 14-0 loss to the White Sox last month, decided to experiment without a windup two weeks ago and has since beaten Detroit, Baltimore and now Minnesota.

Stottlemyre's shutout of Boston was his second in a row, third in his last four starts and 32nd of his career, tops among active American League pitchers.

In the National League, Buzz Capra, the little pitcher with New York Mets, got help from wind and rain along with home runs from the bats of Rusty Staub and Jerry Grote.

Grote, who gave Capra the assurance and advice he needed to shut down Philadelphia Phillies' bats Friday night, also gave him the runs he needed to pick up his third victory of the season.

Capra, meanwhile, scattered eight hits in his seven innings of work before giving way to Danny Frisella, who mopped up for his third save of the season.

And when the action, delayed an hour and a half by rain, was over, the Mets had more than just an 8-3 victory. They had run their winning streak to eight in a row, had captured their 11th triumph in 12 games and 21st in the last 26 and had solidified their hold on first place in the National League East.

American Curling Paper Blasts Canadian Victory

And a happy holiday weekend, especially to everyone in Crafton, North Dakota.

That's the home of the U.S. championship curling team, which last March was defeated by Canada in the Silver Broom competition at Garmisch, in Germany.

Curlers will recall the controversy. A kicked stone by the U.S. skip, who slipped, fell, and moved a Canadian rock into, rather than out of, the centre of the house, in his moment of ecstasy, finally cost the U.S. a victory it seemingly had won. An extra end was ordered and Canada took the title.

Well, the North American Curling News, a U.S. publication, arrived in the post this week, and boy, did it sock it to the Canadians!

The front page headline read:

> "Canada Gets Silver Broom,
> U.S. Wins Championship."

Subtle? You bet, with pictures to prove it — that the Americans really did win, even if they lost, or as one Silver Broom official said:

"The game must be played by the rules."

Then there was a poem:

"And if I should win, let it be by the code,
With my faith and my honor held high.
And if I should lose, let me stand by the road
And cheer as the winners go by."

The inference was obvious, and not at all complimentary to Canada. Needless to say there was much more.

It's Bettors Who Make Favorites

Meanwhile, due to repeated requests, here are some quick tips for the horse player. So please file.

"Form" is simply the past performances of horses entered in a race.

"Favorite" is simply the horse that most bettors think, through their wagers, will win the race.

There is a distinct difference between the two: a form horse and a favorite are not necessarily the same, or interchangeable.

This is only mentioned because columnist Jack Scott last week had an item about the "perfect system" to beat the races. He didn't explain it fully, which is probably why he is still working. But nonetheless, he stirred some interest, and some questions.

To wit:

For the sake of argument, there has often been the quarrel here that because some mutuel outsiders win some races, the racing was therefore not "formful," or as is more often stated, that because a lot of favorites win, it is "formal."

No way. Not in the normal manner of things.

It's the bettors who make the odds, and make the favorites, not the oddsmakers who give out the morning line, or the handicappers, who freely give of their selections.

And the fact that favorites pop down in front only about 30 per cent of the time only serves to prove that the bettors are wrong 70 per cent of the time, not that racing is "formful" as such.

Odds on Hallman Provided Example

So there! Or how often has it been whispered that: Hey, Joe's got a chance with Miss Misfit today. Suddenly the odds start to drop on this horse, owned by a well-known stable, until magically it ends up as being the public choice. Comes the race, and the horse runs down the drain at odds-on. Meanwhile, if a close study had been made of the "form," it would have had to rate as unexciting to say the least. And a lousy bet.

Sure, the public is gullible, and easily led. Want an example? Last Saturday they ran the Province Handicap at Ex-Park in Vancouver. The distance was 6½ furlongs, and a speed horse was bet down to 2 to 1. Coral Isle, with a record of sparkling works this spring, was the favorite. Meanwhile, Hallman went off at about 20 to 1.

It's true, the book says, take the speed horse in a short race; but it's also true that Hallman was almost the very best three-year-old on the grounds at Ex-Park last year until he met defeat at the nose of Tommy Druce's Shadows Dividend.

But that was at longer distances. At shorter, Hallman's record was easily the best. But this spring, he had been worked slowly, and perhaps not all out. But boy, was he ready on Saturday, winning in the fastest time of the season.

This is not to say Hallman should have been the favorite, but he never should have gone off at 20 to 1 either. Not on "form." That is what the public misread.

Which is what this, hopefully, was all about. And oh, yes, form upsets do occur. But that's for another day, and another horse race.

League President

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fred Whittaker of Vancouver has been named president of the Pacific Coast Soccer League. Whittaker, a former player and executive in the league, replaces Ken Howarth, who died recently.

Home Pro Dodges Talk of Triumph

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — "Winning isn't in my mind right now," host pro Bert Weaver said before starting the third round of the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis open golf classic today.

The 40-year-old Weaver, who took a surprising one-stroke lead when he fired a three-under-par 69 in Friday's second round, didn't specify the reasons of his pessimism.

But there were two good ones —Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino—just two strokes off the leading pace.

Weaver, who picked up only $13,000 last season, had a 36 hole total of 140-four under par.

J. C. Snead, star of the United States' 1971 Ryder Cup team, was alone in second at 141. He had a 70 and lost a tie for the top when he bogeyed his final hole from a trap.

Palmer and defending champion Trevino were next at 142, along with veterans Mason Rudolph and Doug Sanders.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and George Knudson of Toronto made the cut but Toronto's Ben Kern missed it. Homenuik shot a 73 Friday for a 148 total while Knudson, who shot a first-round 72, soared to 77 for a 149 total. Kern finished with 77-80-157.

The last host pro to win a regular tour event was Earl Stewart, who took the 1961 Dallas Open at the Oak Cliff Country Club.

"I don't expect to win," Weaver said, "but if, by some chance, I did, it wouldn't make any difference at all. I've found a home here. I wouldn't go back on the tour."

He had a slightly erratic round, scoring six birdies — one on an 80-foot putt — and three bogeys.

"I got a couple of good breaks, that 80-foot putt was one, and that can make the difference between a good round and well, you know . . ." he said.

YOUNG TRACK STARS COMPETE AT DUNCAN

DUNCAN — Approximately 400 young athletes from the United States, the Prairie provinces and from many sections of British Columbia are expected to take part in the fifth annual G. R. Pearkes-CeeVacs track and field meet here Sunday and Monday.

Competition will start at 10 a.m. each day in the age-class meet, which is part of the B.C. Festival of Sports program.

Athletes, ranging in age groups from tyke (eight and nine years) to juvenile (16 and 17), will be biding for honors in a wide variety of indivdual and relay events.

Regals Make Changes For Home-Park Debut

After running into obstacles in attempts to acquire the players he wants to perform with Victoria Regals in the new, semi-professional B.C. Premier Soccer League, playing-coach Brian Hughes appeared today to be looking down a less-cluttered road.

At least the former Welsh international exhibited considerable optimism over Regal prospects for their home-park debut Monday, when they clash with the newly-organized Richmond Ramparts on the Royal Athletic Park turf at 7 p.m.

Particularly, Brian is hoping for a more cohesive defensive effort than his club managed last weekend in a league-opening, match at Vancouver. In that one, Victoria defenders failed to find togetherness and the Regals were nipped 3-2 by Eintracht.

"We were all very disappointed after the game," commented Hughes. "We felt we all could have played much better."

TELFORD IN LINEUP

Perhaps helping make things better will be three switches in last weekend's roster.

Ray Telford, former Canadian representative and with Pacific Coast League champion Victoria West-United during the winter season, will step into the back four.

Graham Lee, goaltender with Gorge Molsons of the Coast League, has been signed and will be between the posts in place of youthful Jack Kuyvenhover, who played well in the loss to Eintracht.

Somewhat less certain is the appearance of Tony Douglas, the Jamaican international striker who is now due to arrive in Victoria Sunday evening. Douglas had originally been expected to join the Regals in time for the season-starter.

Among Brian's obstacles has been reluctance of Coast Leaguers to swing directly into summer soccer, however, the Regals also hope to soon add United regulars Brian Robinson and Howie Anderson, both now sidelined by flu.

Ramparts, losers by a 3-1 count to Croatia last weekend, are spearheaded by three Coast Leaguers — Keith Commons, Greg Arnett and Chris Bennett, who had a trial with Chelsea of the English League last season.

Swedish Ace To Instruct

Gunnar Neilson, crack rider for the Swedish Husqvarna factory racing team will be the guest instructor at a moto-cross school being held Sunday by the Victoria Motorcycle Club at Colwood's Centennial Park.

All motorcyclists are invited to attend the demonstration and practice sessions, beginning at 12 noon. Fee for the course is $5.

Graduates can then put this new knowledge to good use on Monday when the VMC holds its annual Mayday Moto-Cross in the same park.

Starting time for the three-class racing action is 12 noon.

Bell's Appreciate Part-Timer's Role

Outfielder Doug Boden reluctantly had to waive a berth with Bates' entry in the Pacific Northwest Fastball League because of business pressure.

Business is good, but there's still time for occasional appearances with Bell's Men's Wear in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League.

Even as a part-timer, Boden pleases his new mates.

Friday he drew a walk, then cracked out three straight singles and scored a pair of runs to spark the Haberdashers to a 7-5 victory over Six-Mile House.

Bell's, regaining a share of the league with Labatts, also got a boost from Six-Mile's six errors, which led to four undearned runs.

DALE SHAW

MARILYN CLOSE TO PRO LEADER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Freckled Betty Burfeindt, the early-season sensation of the Ladies' Professional Golf Association tour, fired a four-under-par 68 Friday to grab a two-stroke lead in the $35,000 Bluegrass Invitational tournament.

The 115-pound former physical education teacher, scoring a 32 on the front nine, finished two strokes ahead of Canadian amateur Marilyn Palmer and tour veteran Gloria Ehert.

Miss Palmer, of Kamloops, three-putted the first hole but played strongly thereafter to emerge as the first-round surprise. Miss Palmer and Dale Shaw of Victoria were both invited to play here after winning the national two-ball championship in Florida in the spring.

The Victoria City ladies' champion carded a four-over-par 76. Misjudged iron shots forced Dale to take a 40 on the opening nine, but she played par golf over the final nine holes.

Jocelyn Bourassa of Shawinigan Falls, Que., who turned pro in January, carded a 75.

Both Miss Palmer and Miss Shaw also have been invited to play in the National Tournament of Champions at Fayetville, Tenn., later this month.

Berg Leading

PORTLAND — Tim Berg, who took over as head pro at Portland's Columbia-Edgewater Club less than two months ago, fired a three-under-par 69 Friday to take the first-round lead in the $25,000 Payless Golf Classic.

Berg closed out with a sizzling 33 on the back nine of a Riverside course that was playing extremely difficult. He finished one shot ahead of Tacoma amateur Gary Clinton and two strokes ahead of Deross Kinkade, another amateur from Cottage Grove, Ore.

There was a six-way tie for fourth at 72, including pre-tournament favorites Bob Dunden, Bob Ellsworth and Bill Eggers.

Vaughn Prapp, recent winner of the Vancouver Island Open match-play tournament, was among the best of the Canadian finishers. Now working in Vancouver Trapp carded a three-over 75.

Veteran Al Zimmerman of Victoria came in with an 82 while former Victorian Dick Munn blew to an 81 after scoring a one-under 71 Thursday which gave him a share of second-place money in the second leg of the pro-amateur event.

Bobby Hull Ready to Jump To Winnipeg

Times News Services

Who says the hockey season is over?

The sport enjoys mid-season publicity with notes, quotes and announcements from hither and yon.

IN CHICAGO, the Black Hawks' yearbook says Bobby Hull "is synonymous with Chicago," but if things work out, Hull may jump the National League to be playing for Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association next season.

Hull said Friday that he has a verbal agreement with the Jets, and that if they come up with the money he'll go to work for them next season.

"I've made a verbal agreement with Winnipeg, and if they make good on it I'm gone," Hull said, and he stressed that if Winnipeg makes the right offer there's no chance for him to stay in Chicago.

Jets' owner Ben Hatskin replied: "We'll have the money . . . we'll meet with Bobby and his agent next week."

Hull is reported seeking $1 million in advance for his first year's service and $1 million more for four more years of play. Hull's recently-expired contract with the Black Hawks paid him about $150,000 a year.

Two days after Boston Bruins won the Stanley Cup in May, 1970, Harry Sinden shocked the hockey world by resigning as coach of the NHL champions.

At that time he expressed little interest in returning to coaching, but now he has changed his mind.

Sinden said he would "jump at the chance" to coach the Canadian team that will meet the Russians in an eight-game exhibition tournament in September.

"Coaching that team" said Sinden. "Most definitely."

He said the whole idea of Canada using its best professionals against the Russian national team intrigues him and he praised those who arranged the tournament.

He said he doesn't believe that Canada has nothing to gain and everything to lose in such a confrontation with the Russians, who have won the world amateur championship nine times.

"What's the use of us saying we're the best all of the time but not proving it? Russia has won the world title eight or nine times and certainly deserves a chance to play our best."

Frank and Pete Mahovlich obviously believe the family that plays together stays together.

It appears that way today after Pete, 25, resisted the blandishments of the new WHA and joined Frank, 34, in signing contracts for the next NHL session with Montreal Canadiens.

Sam Pollock, general manager of the Canadiens, announced both signings Friday, but refused to disclose the length of the contracts signed by left winger Frank and forward Peter.

Earlier this month it appeared the brothers would be on opposite sides of the fence, following repeated reports that Pete was ready to sign a multi-season, financially-enticing contract with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the WHA.

ELSEWHERE, Albuquerque, N.M., got into hockey Friday following an announcement that the city has been awarded a Western League franchise for the 1973-74 season . . . At the same time, Charles O. Finley, owner of the NHL's California Golden Seals and baseball's Oakland Athletics, announced he has purchased the WHL's Salt Lake City team from Mrs. Daniel H. Meyer, widow of the Eagles' owner who died last season . . . Winnipeg Jets of the Western Canada League are hoping to purchase Dauphin Kings of the Manitoba Junior League . . .

Ace Stamps Tregear As Police Marksman

Gordie Tregear, Ron Ferguson and Brian Andrews shared the spotlight in the third annual Saanich police tournament Friday at Cedar Hill Golf Club.

Tregear highlighted the day's shotmaking with a hole-in-one on the six hole. It helped him to the low gross prize in a special section for the host force.

Ferguson, a regular Cedar Hill member and with the Victoria police department, and Andrews took the major gross prizes. Ferguson topped the public division while Andrews led all guests.

Net awards went to Angus Stewart and Hal McGillvray.

Orr's Rewards Hit $25,250

MONTREAL (CP) — Honors just keep piling up for defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins.

Orr, along with team-mate and centre Phil Esposito, came within an eyelash of polling perfect scores when the National Hockey League announced its annual all-star selections.

The Boston pair drew 208 of a possible 210 points each in the poll conducted by the Professional Hockey Writers' Association members in 14 NHL cities. The four teams which had the most points during the regular season — Boston, New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens — swept all 12 berths on the first and second all-star teams.

Voting was based on a system of five points for a first-place choice, three for a second, and one for a third. Each member of the first team receives $2,000 with the honor, and members of the second squad $1,000 apiece.

ORR'S TOTAL $25,250

Orr's selection and the $2,000 that goes with it brought his total award money from the NHL this season to $25,250. Broken down, the total looks like this: $15,000 as a member of the Stanley Cup championship team; $2,500 for the Bruins' first-place finish in the East Division; $2,000 for his selection as a first-team all-star; $1,500 each for winning the Hart, Norris and Conn Smythe Trophies; $750 in the individual scoring race, and $500 for being a member of the winning team in the All-Star game.

Orr's selection, his fifth straight to the first team, gives him a total $69,875 in award money in six NHL seasons.

Only one defenceman in the 42-year history of NHL all-star teams has a longer string of consecutive selections than Orr — Doug Harvey of the Canadiens. Harvey was named to the first team seven times from 1951-52 through 1957-58.

Red Kelly, now coach of Pittsburgh Penguins, was named five straight seasons while with Detroit from 1950-51 through 1956-57 Pierre Pilote of Chicago also had five straight first-team selections from 1962-63 through 1966-67

Orr earlier was awarded the Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable player, the Norris as top defenceman, and the Smythe as the best performer in the playoffs.

IT'S A RECORD

Phil Esposito made history of his own as he became the first player ever named to the first team at centre for four consecutive years. The rangy native of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., who led the scoring again this season with 66 goals and 133 points, was the second-team centre in 1967-68.

Hull's selection to the first team for the 10th time ties him with Harvey as runner-up to Gordie Howe of Detroit in number of first-team selections. Howe was named to the first team 12 times and to either team a record 21 times during a 25-year stretch.

This is Hull's 12th selection to either team, the most by an active player.

Orr and Phil Esposito are the only players to repeat their 1970-71 selections to the first team, while Chicago's Pat Stapleton and Yvon Cournoyer of Montreal repeat their second-team status.

Chicago netminder Tony Esposito is making his second first-team appearance in three seasons.

Saanich's Record Spree Proves Hutch Has Point

Veteran Victoria track and field official Jack Hutchinson declared earlier this week that some of the greatest interest and enthusiasm in the sport has moved up the Saanich Peninsula.

"They're really ambitious," he said of Saanich schools.

And although they never heard his remakrs, Saanich athletes repaid Hutch for his kind thoughts.

A whopping total of 42 records were broken Friday in the annual Saanich junior high school meet at Centennial Stadium.

Powerful Mount Newton led the assault by setting 27 marks in the 72-event meet to carry off the team aggregate championship for the fourth straight year.

Mount Newton amassed 670 points to out-distance Royal Oak (606) and North Saanich (484).

Most impressive of many outstanding individual efforts were recorded by Helen McHattie of Mount Newton and Royal Oak's Cathy John. Each set three new marks.

Miss McHattie won three field events with record efforts in the shotput, discus and javelin to capture the intermediate girls' championship. Miss John set records in the long jump, the 100 metres and the 200 metres to claim the junior girls' aggregate title.

Another Royal Oak girl, Debbie Scott, won the midget aggregate with the help of record performances in the 400 and 800-metre races. Debbie also won the 80-metre hurdles.

Mount Newton provided all three champions in boys' divisions.

Jim Sandwith, helped by a record effort in the triple jump, took the intermediate title; Mike Stubbs, with an impressive 19-foot nine-inch record leap in the long jump, won the junior crown while Leo Vose took midget honors with a versatile performance. Vose won the 400 metres, the javelin and high jump, setting records in the latter two events.

City Tennis Players Seek Island Honors

NANAIMO — Ten players from Greater Victoria are among those competing here today and Sunday in the Vancouver Island regional championships of the B.C. Festival of Sports tennis tournament.

The capital city contingent was selected on the basis of performances in the Victoria tournament.

Ted Davies, who won the men's singles crown and shared the doubles title with John Nichol, was not available for the Island meet.

Pet Trelawny, a junior, is partnering Nichol in the doubles while Don Senese and Steve Auchinachie, runners-up in the Victoria final, were also selected to the squad along with Glen Bradshaw, 14, runner-up in men's singles and winner of the boys' final.

Distaff members of the Victoria team are Sally Hemeon, Wendy Cuppage, Ruth Trelawny, Jean Shaw and Velerie Scott.

Winners in the tournament here will advance to the provincial finals at Vancouver, June 3 and 4.

Biggest Swiftsure Fleet Awaits Pace of the Strait

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

This time next week the biggest Swiftsure fleet on record will be pacing it out in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Deadline for entries is Tuesday and, judging by the scores of registrations already in, race officials are expecting about 220 boats to be off Brotchie Ledge for the start 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

The Swiftsure race had its beginnings back in 1930. Over the years, the 136.2-mile race out to the Swiftsure Bank and back has become a sort of localized Olympics, attracting yachtsmen from as far away as California.

Some enthusiastic types even fly out from Calgary to compete in the annual classic.

Some of the boats that have held Victorians enthralled as they've come barrelling down to the finish line over the years are among the first to be registered.

Henry Kotkins' Diamond Head of the Seattle Yacht Club is one. Who will forget that stirring moment in 1969, when trailing 45 minutes behind John Long's Mary Bower through Race Rocks, she followed the wind patches down to the finish line to get the gun three minutes before her long-time rival?

Mary Bower will be back, too, but not with Long at the helm. She now belongs to local sailor Dave Thomas, who will be racing her under the colors of the Maple Bay Yacht Club.

Long, who is still looking for a new dream boat, will be out there too. He'll be skippering Dick Saunders' Sparkman and Stephens-designed 53-footer Gabrielle III.

The first boat home in 1971, Dr. Carl Jensen's 60-foot yawl Adios will be competing again this year.

So will Seattle architect John Graham, whose 67-foot yawl Maruffa has probably won him more silverware than any other Swiftsure skipper. Maruffa still holds the all-time record for the course — just under 24 hours.

Graham has sold Maruffa and will be racing Elixir, a new Palmer Johnson 37. She, too, could prove to be a winner.

Two other eye-catchers on the start line will be Canadian navy's 91-foot ketch Oriole and George O'Brien's Endless Summer, the former Aussie 12-metre Dame Pattie.

O'Brien has had Endless Summer completely rigged out for offshore racing and is hoping for a repeat of his 1970 success when the 12-metre won all the Swiftsure silverware within her reach.

Several veterans of the Victoria-Maui race are entered, among them Don Lawson's Cubara of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

Another Victoria-Maui veteran, Bill Gardner's Lucy Alice of the Corinthian Yacht Club, who's raced to Hawaii twice, will be sailing the 75.6-mile Juan de Fuca race that begins at 9.45 a.m. Saturday.

Often called the Little Swiftsure because of the shorter course, the Juan de Fuca is no cinch for the smaller boats that sail it. They face the same weather conditions as their larger sisters, hit by the same storms and angry seas.

Last year's Swiftsure pointed up this fact. Eighteen boats, most of them in Swiftsure, were forced to turn back one hour after the race began, six of them with broken masts. Some had crews knocked out through seasickness.

In the days between now and start time every piece of gear and rigging will be checked, every sail examined in preparation for next weekend's testing.

In contrast to last year's start, this year's may end up in frustration if there's no wind to fight the adverse tide. In past years many a boat has been forced to anchor and wait until favorable winds allowed her get-away.

The vanguard of the huge Swiftsure fleet will begin moving into the Inner Harbor Thursday and by Friday they'll be jammed, gunwhale to gunwhale, below the Causeway.

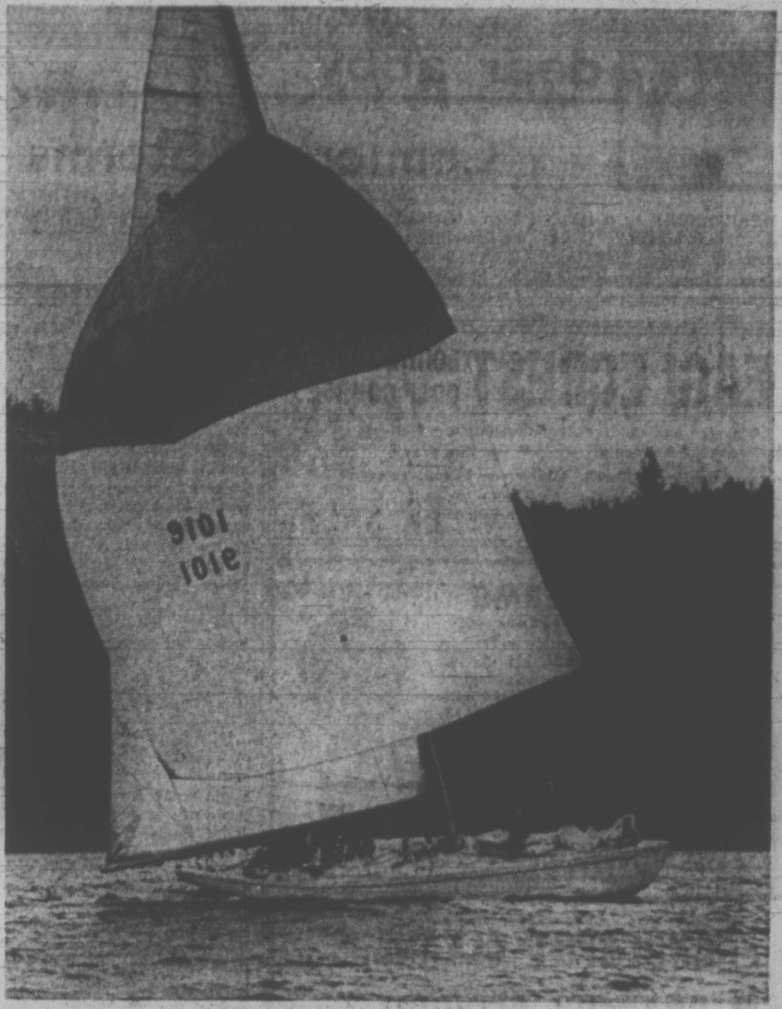
It will be an evening of ceremony and merriment with most of Victoria out to view the proceedings.

The yachts will dress ship and welcoming ceremonies will be carried on aboard the Bay's replica of the 17th Century Nonsuch. Sea cadets will go through the paces of a Sunset Ceremony on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

There'll be entertaining aboard the boats with skippers and crews spending pre-race hours with family and friends.

The smart ones will make those hours short — Swiftsure is a testing not to be taken lightly.



Endless Summer to race again

Court Accepts Insanity Plea

A mental patient who shot and killed a Saanich policeman 12 years ago was found not guilty by reason of insanity in a B.C. Supreme Court trial Friday.

Raymond Harrold, 56, a deaf mute, was ordered by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan to be "kept in strict custody until the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council is known."

The traditional ruling usually means the accused is kept in a mental home until the provincial cabinet authorizes his discharge.

The non-capital murder charge involved the shooting of Const. Robert Kirkby, one of about two dozen officers hunting for Harrold in heavy brush off Markham Road after he escaped from the Colquitz provincial mental home, April 24, 1960.

The mental home is now the Wilkinson Road jail.

The trial was delayed 12 years because Harrold, also known as Raymond Herald, was found following the shooting to be not fit to stand trial by reason of insanity.

Psychiatrists found at that time the accused had the mental age of a five to seven-year-old child. He has spent most of the intervening years at Riverview mental hospital on the mainland.

A cabinet order issued earlier this month declared him fit to stand trial.

A special hearing was held Friday preceeding the trial to ensure Harrold was fit to stand trial. The 12-man jury heard from two psychiatrists and concluded the trial should go ahead.

A new jury was then chosen. The accused through his lawyer, Alan Bigelow, pleaded not guilty.

In a mutually agreed-upon statement of the facts, Crown and defence noted Harrold had been first committed to a mental hospital in 1934, not because he was criminally insane but because he was retarded from birth, deaf and almost mute.

Four years later he was paroled and permitted to work and live on a nearby dairy farm. In 1958, his mental condition deteriorated, he was readmitted to the mental hospital.

By 1960 his condition had improved to the point he was allowed to walk around the grounds. On April 24 that year he was discovered missing at supper, along with two .22 calibre rifles.

He shot at nurses who tried to apprehend him.

Saanich police were notified he had escaped, was armed and dangerous. The force had 22 men at the time and the search concentrated in bush near Markham and West Saanich Roads.

Kirkby, then 32, died almost instantly when shot in the chest. A mental home guard was also wounded by Harrold's shots.

CAUT Censures UVic Board

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

The University of Victoria board of governors was censured Friday by the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

The CAUT voted at its annual meeting in Vancouver to extend the censure which it placed last year on then-president Bruce Partridge to include the board of governors.

The original dispute centred over three faculty members whose contracts were non-renewed by the UVic administration. They were Dr. William Goede, Dr. Tikam Jain and J. P. Graff.

Partridge has since departed the university and was officially replaced Monday by Hugh Farquhar, who has been pro tem president since February.

UVic Faculty Association president John Greene told delegates to the CAUT meeting that Farquhar has refused to act in the cases of the three faculty members.

NOT CONSULTED

Greene also said the board of governors did not consult the faculty when the appointment of Farquhar as president was confirmed this week.

Board of governors chairman Lloyd McKenzie would not comment on the CAUT move to censure his board, saying he wants to get official notification of it before commenting further.

Asked if he thinks CAUT is a credible and reputable organization, McKenzie said: "I can't discredit the organization or its membership since it is made up of a substantial number of faculty members from across the country."

"However, I will say that the conduct of the CAUT, with Victoria, has been incredible.

"They are very obscure in what they are doing and seem to think they are in charge of the university from a distance," McKenzie said.

He said CAUT's understanding of circumstances of issues at UVic is "seldom accurate" and referred to the latest CAUT bulletin which he said gives the impression that Goede and Graff were not kept on because of their political and philosophical beliefs.

'OUTER SPACE'

"There was never any ingredient of that in the decisions by the University of Victoria administration at all," he said.

"They just haul this kind of thing in from outer space and attribute the most reactionary attitudes to the university."

McKenzie said the CAUT seems to think the university acted in the manner of "an inquisition" in the faculty cases and said this attitude taken by CAUT are incredible," he said. "It makes can only be described as "utter nonsense."

"The attitudes and actions it difficult to take them seriously."

On the subject of Farquhar's appointment, McKenzie defended the board's decision, saying Farquhar has demonstrated his competence.

"There was a very, very difficult situation here and Dr. Farquhar was asked to step into it. He has demonstrated, to the satisfaction of the board, that he is qualified to handle it."

McKenzie said Farquhar's integrity and experience at UVic are good qualifications "and we are simply acknowledging that fact."

He said the previous occasions when UVic has made important internal appointments, things have turned out well.

"It seems the more elaborate the selection process we go through, the more anguished the term of office turns out to be."

McKenzie said making an outside appointment means the university has to act on someone else's recommendation, since there is no direct knowledge of how the person operates. This is not the case with Farquhar, he said, who has been around UVic for about 40 years.

"We do try to learn something from our experience," he said.

GORGE WORK ENDS

Gorge waterway beautification — five years in the process — is nearing the end of its fifth and final phase north of Tillicum bridge.

Saanich works and parks crews have reached the landscaping portion of the $217,600 undertaking in the 400 and 500 blocks of Gorge Road West, where a rock seawall has been completed up to the beginning of privately-owned property between Gorge View and Tillicum.

Parks administrator Bert Richman said subsoil would be put in place next week and prepared for drainage, with topsoil and planting to follow.

Concrete work, backfilling, cobble paving, installation of guard rails and the wall itself are public works jobs. The landscaping, tree transplanting and seeding are done by parksmen.

Construction funds are provided by the Capital Improvement District Commission and maintenance is a Saanich responsibility.

Gorge beautification began on the Saanich side of the waterway at Craigflower bridge, working southward in the five construction phases.

Consideration is being given to the possibility of extending the wall and promenade along the water's edge southeast of Tillicum bridge in Gorge Park.

Saanich has purchased the old Gorge boathouse and will use the frontage where the building stood as an access to the small boat moorage.

A number of private properties remain on both sides of the old boathouse site, most occupied by dwellings.

New Reid Plan Pleases Pollen

Vancouver developer J. A. Reid appears to be making headway with his latest proposal for his Wharf Street development, judging by the enthusiasm of Mayor Peter Pollen.

Plans and a model of the revised development were shown to the Advisory Planning Commission Thursday night, and Pollen indicated Friday that the proposals are to the city's liking.

"The result is a very good and exciting compromise between an overscale 23-storey monster and a park," Pollen said.

"It looks as if the agony of the past two years has been worthwhile."

Pollen would not say whether the APC would recommend approval of the Reid project, but said the commission's recommendation for "a particular course of action" will come before the council at an early date.

Precise details of the latest Reid proposal have not been made public, but the general scheme involves two curved towers, one taller than the other, with an open plaza area between.

The APC also studied Thursday night the completed $10,000 Spence-Sales report on downtown planning, which was commissioned by council a year ago.

A public visual presentation of the report by planning consultant Harold Spence-Sales is expected next week.

The Wonderful Works of Rowland Emett

IN VICTORIA THE BEAUTIFUL, the broom is out, the dogwood has staged an uncommonly fine display, and Eaton's-across-Broad salutes high spring with a mind-blowing bit of spoofery. This is English cartoonist Rowland Emett's Humbug-Major Sweet Machine, a busy juggernaut evolved from oddments of nineteenth-century household hardware that serves two useful purposes.

Clanking, tinkling and purring, Emmett's one-unit assembly line makes a convincing show of dipping toffee-apples in treacle and moulding striped candy-sticks.

As the madcap inventor confirms in an explanatory sheet supplied to viewers, his device represents a thumbing of the nose at man's friend and enemy, automation.

"We know there are machines in the world," Emmett declares, "but I try to keep them in their place. After all, I'm the boss over the machines I build. . . . Well, only just barely."

After spending too many minutes contemplating the Humbug-Major Sweet Machine, I moved on to study a second Emmett invention: called the Hush-a-Bye Hot Air Rocking-Chair, completed with carpet slippers for weary feet.

"That's for me," said another fellow who had paused. We watched the rocker do its thing with soothing effect. Then the other viewer mummured "Wonderful, wonderful! He passed on to inspect a third Emmett creation labelled The Clockwork Lullaby Machine.

The next person to happen along was a lady with winter in her soul. She darted a short, sharp question. "What makes them work?" I thought of telling her the machines were powered by trained mice on treadmills, but her eye discouraged persiflage. Actually, they are plugged into prosaic electric outlets.

The female pragmatist then stared hard at a likeness of Emmett set alongside his turning wheels, reaching arms and chuffing pistons.

"H'Mmph," she said. "he doesn't LOOK like a freak!"

If omens deserve heeding, David Anderson has even more going for him than I suspected in his bid to lead British Columbia Liberals toward the Promised Land.

A few days ago, CBC decided to do a television takeout on the present MP for Saanich-Esquimalt. In the course of its investigations, the network learned that Anderson likes to go fishing on the rare occasions when time permits. Very well, then. CBC crew and subject would repair to a lower mainland stream, from which Anderson would extract a steelhead.

No use to protest that these moody sea-run rainbow trout can't be hooked to order. The expedition was mounted, and at a likely pool. Anderson unlimbered his spinning gear.

There are anglers who ply their art for season after season without hitting a steelhead, but the Anderson casting arm was scarce grooved in when an eight-pound steelie fresh up from the sea latched on to the lure.

With the camera's eye upon him, Anderson played and beached his prize.

He then returned to his casting, and within 20 minutes, had subdued a second-bright eight-pounder.

Admittedly, the waters of politics are murkier, than any steelhead creek, and the fish run heavier. But for what omens are worth, it augurs well.

For a study in futility, I bid you consider the suburban lawn.

Its owner scatters expensive and ill-smelling substances on it to encourage growth. Then, with growth achieved — and this time of year, the grass springs up almost visibly — he must wheel out his mower and spend precious spare time cutting the stuff.

Thanks to a merry-minded reader, however, I am rescued from brooding over the chore that waits me.

"Apropos your article on fish and chips," she writes, "have you heard about the visitor to a monastery who saw two men preparing dinner in the kitchen? When he asked who they were, he was told that one was the fish friar and the other the chip monk."

On that note we part. Safe journeys, and happy holiday!

Comfort in Storms

DEAR ABBY: As a television "weatherman," I occasionally receive mail from viewers. Today I received a letter from a woman who has been terrified of thunderstorms since she was a small child. Worse yet, she says her husband makes fun of her for her childish fears.

Abby, I have a feeling that there are many people who suffer from not only such fears, but lack of understanding on the part of their families.

Will you please appeal to your readers to be more sympathetic to those who are terrified of storms? Urge them to comfort, reassure and calm the frightened ones, instead of saying, "Dummy, there's nothing to be afraid of!"

Those who fear storms react like frightened children, regardless of their ages. Also, if they are calmed and reassured they will not be on the phone, calling us when we are busiest. — Bill.

DEAR BILL: You're all heart. But your plea for compassion to "stormaphobics" (a word of my own creation) is worth passing on.

DEAR ABBY: I am really disturbed about my husband's attitude. Recently we had some work done on our car. When my husband got the car back from the garage he found a pocketknife on the floor.

I told him to call the garage and return the knife. He said he had no intention of returning it because he liked the knife. I told him that since he knew the knife belonged to one of the mechanics at the garage, if he didn't return it it was just like stealing. He said garage mechanics were always stealing stuff out of cars, and he was just getting even.

I tried to reason with him, but it did no good.

What is your opinion, Abby? Isn't it as bad as stealing to find something and keep it when you could easily return it to the owner? — Married To A Thief.

DEAR MARRIED: Yes. Your husband is going off the deep end in an attempt to justify his dishonesty.

CA Named Deputy Minister

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan has named its first woman deputy minister.

The appointment of Arleen Hynd, 27, as deputy minister of the new department of consumer affairs was announced this week by Ed Tchorzewski, minister of the department.

Mrs. Hynd has been deputy provincial auditor since December, 1971. Her first responsibility will be to set up the new department, Mr. Tchorzewski said.

One of her first activities will be a trip to Ottawa next week to meet with officials of the federal consumer affairs department. The purpose will be to set up liaison between the two departments, and to study the Ottawa legislation and organization.

Mr. Tchorzewski said no timetable has been set as to when the new department will actually begin operations.

"We will go slow in organizing and not back ourselves into any corners," he said.

Mrs. Hynd was born in North Battleford and attended public school in several Saskatchewan centres including Regina and Yorkton, and completed her high school in Saskatoon.

She received a bachelor of commerce in honors accounting with great distinction from the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon in 1966, and was selected as the most distinguished graduate from the college of commerce.

Mrs. Hynd articled with the Saskatoon firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., and received her CA in 1968. She was awarded the Neilson gold medal and the Ferguson prize in accounting by the Saskatchewan Institute of Chartered Accountants and was included in the Canadian institute's honors list that year.

She was named supervising auditor in the office of the provincial auditor in the fall of 1968 and became deputy provincial auditor in December of last year.

Cancer Detection Means Recognized

OTTAWA (CP) — Doctors and medical journals, usually cautious about "enthusiastic physicians" and "pet" theories, are changing attitudes toward three relatively new methods for diagnosing cancer of the breast.

D. A. Geekie, communications dirtotor for the Canadian Medical Association, said in a recent issue of the association's Journal that munications director for the three methods — mammography, thermography and xerography — now "are building a solid case" for their use.

And the Medical Post, a bimonthly periodical for doctors, recently voiced strong editorial support, recommending that they might be considered for early-detection screening programs.

Breast cancer is a major health problem, affecting about one of every 16 Canadian women at some time. Only about 45 per cent of those who are affected survive for five or more years, although medical science is improving this percentage every year.

Chances of survival are greatly increased if the disease is discovered early, which is why the new methods now are receiving increased attention from doctors.

For his article, Mr. Geekie interviewed Dr. D. V. McFarlane of Toronto Western Hospital.

Mammography, which involves x-rays of the breast tissue, can help find many cancers in such early stages that a lump cannot be felt, Mr. Geekie reports.

With thermography, which provides a pictorial representation of the heat given off by the skin surface of the breast, doctors can find cancer areas because these give off more heat than normal tissue.

Xerography is a variation of mammography in which special charge-coated plates are used.

Forecast for Tuesday, May 23, 1972

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Direct course may not work — be aware of twists and turns. Publicity accompanies efforts. Social life will be accelerated. Marriage, partnership is spotlighted. Nothing is apt to remain the same.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Plenty of movement indicated; you may find it difficult to actually locate goal. Key is to be observant. Check apparent minor details. Surprise offer is indicated. Realize you won't be getting something for nothing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Guard possessions. Obtain hint from Taurus message. Affairs of heart dominate. Member of opposite sex plays featured role. Nothing now is apt to be lukewarm. It is all or nothing. Be ready for excitement.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Action occurs in domestic area. You break through restrictions. Some family members may feel slighted. Key is to be fair but firm. Money question can be settled. You deal from position of strength.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What was held in abeyance "gets moving." Sensitive buttons are pushed, projects are activated. Be sure you are correctly quoted. Reuse to let others take you for granted. State views; outline objectives.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Money position fluctuates. Aggressive friend, associate may be overanxious. Study track records. Means rely on those with proved past performances. Capricorn person plays prominent role.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish what you start. Spread message. Write, advertise and publicize. What you own goes up in value, including property. Someone is trying to make room for you at top of ladder. Help by giving yourself a push.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some travel plans are subject to change. Your long-range goals require review. New start is in picture. One born under Leo figures prominently. Previously restricted areas will be opened to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Friends respond in eccentric manner. Persons who ordinarilly are sensible may now be erratic. Maintain your own emotional balance. Don't give in to moods, self-pity. Burden is soon due to be lifted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Mate, partner may be in mood to argue. Ride with storm. Don't compound error. Display sense of humor. You receive unusual proposal. It's not necessary to jump at first offer. Let others know you have self-esteem.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't force, push or caloie: You get your way through easy-going attitude. Know it and act accordingly. Leo is in picture and so is another Aquerian. Travel and vacation plans may be "up in air."

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Friends are in collision course. Your best tack now is to exchange ideas. Don't be too set in opinions. Make intelligent concessions. Gemini and Virgo persons are involved. Special message is received.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, possessed of a great curiosity and ability to express yourself. You are a traveler and a reporter — you paint your own pictures and appreciate the portraits others create. June should be your most significant month in 1972.

There's Still Time to Enrol Children in Summer Camps

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

A two-week wilderness camp is being offered this summer by the YM-YWCA for teenage boys.

Wilderness III will be the third such camp offered in Canada by this organization. Others are near Calgary and Edmonton.

The boys, aged 13 to 16, won't be staying at the Y's Camp Thunderbird site, but will be living in the wilderness for two weeks.

10 Chosen

Their two leaders will teach them to hike, canoe and build fires. They'll probably sleep in lean-tos instead of tents, said John Durkin, the Y's Camp Thunderbird director.

Only 10 boys will be chosen for the program this year, said Durkin, and seven places are already taken. Next year, he hopes to expand the program, to include girls as well as boys.

Cost for the two weeks, July 15 to 29, is $95.

Registration is in full swing for most summer camps in the area. A few are nearing their maximum number of applicants, but the Y's Camp Thunderbird and Camp Hummingbird still have plenty of room.

Rosemary Donald, public information officer for the Y, says she doesn't expect a full enrolment for Y camps this summer. More and more families are taking camping trips on their own, she said.

"They don't feel as inclined to get their kids off to camp," said Mrs. Donald.

The Y has expanded its day camp program, Camp Hummingbird, this year.

In previous years, the camp offered day trips around the city, to places like Beacon Hill Park. This summer, the children, boys and girls between 6 and 13, will be bussed to a new campsite in the Sooke Hills. They will return to the Y building at 3 p.m. each day for swimming.

Cookouts Eyed

The day camp program lasts two weeks, starting on July 3, July 17, July 31 and August 14. Cost is $20 for the two weeks, and $18 for each additional child in the family.

Cookouts and an overnight trip may be included in this year's day camp program.

The Y's residential camp, Camp Thunderbird, offers both one and two-week programs for boys and girls between 8 and 15. Girls' week-long camps begin July 1 and July 22, and the two-week camp starts July 8. Boys' week-long camps begin August 12, August 19 and August 26, and the two-week camp begin July 29.

Camp Thunderbird is situated on Glinz Lake in the Sooke Hills. Huts are provided for the children to sleep in, but Durkin hopes campers will sleep outside in nice weather. The camp holds about 75 children at one time.

Cost for seven days is $40; for 14 days, $80. Additional campers from the same family get a 10 per cent reduction in fee.

A training program is offered to girls, between 14 and 15 years, who want to learn to be camp counsellors. The program lasts from July 1 to 29, teaching the girls camping and leadership techniques, and costs $180.

Registration forms for Y camps are available at the YM-YWCA building, 880 Courtney Street.

The Boys Club of Victoria operates six weekly summer camps, starting July 8, July 15, July 22, July 29, August 5 and August 12. The week starting August 5 is for girls, aged 8 to 17, the rest for boys aged 8 to 17.

The campsite, Camp Kalitan on Shields Lake in the Sooke Hills, can handle 40 children a week. The fee is $20, and transportation is provided out to the camp.

Reservations for the camp can be made by writing to the Boys' Club of Victoria, 1240 Yates street.

The United Church is holding its second co-ed music camp this summer for young people of any age. The music camp, from August 19 to 26, is just for fun, and campers are to bring their own instruments.

Long Weekends

George Pringle Memorial Camp, the United Church campsite on Shawnigan Lake, offers week-long camps to boys and girls of junior (9 to 11) or intermediate (12-15) age.

Junior girls' camps begin July 8 and August 5, intermediate girls' camp on July 29, junior boys on July 22, and intermediate boys on August 12. A Canadian Girls in Training camp starts July 15.

Camping activities include swimming, sailing and overnight hikes, but little formal religious instruction. Fees are $27, $24.50 for the second child in a family, and $22 for the third and all others.

A camp for one-parent families, planned for July 1, has been cancelled. Rev. R. A. Ferris, of First United Church, who was organizing the camp, said there were too many organizational problems to go ahead with it.

United Church camp registrar is Mrs. C. W. Roberts, 2040 McNeill Avenue, telephone 598-5503.

The Anglican Church's Camp Columbia on Thetis Island opens July 5, with eight week-long camps for boys and girls aged 9 to 15.

Swimming, boating, water skiing, handicrafts and religious instruction will be part of the camp program. Cost is $25.

Registration forms are available at any Anglican church, or you can write to the Registrar, Camp Columbia, c-o Synod Office, 912 Vancouver Street.

Baptist Camp

Sylvan Acres Baptist Camp on Lands End Road near Sidney opens June 25, with a camp for senior citizens. Camp for senior girls, ages 13 to 16, starts July 2, for junior girls, ages 9 and 10, starts July 9, and for intermediate girls, ages 11 and 12, starts July 16.

Junior boys' camp starts July 23, intermediate boys' camp July 30, and August 7 to 10 is a co-ed camp for children 7 and 8-year-olds.

Activities include boating, campfire, archery, study groups and religious instruction. Cost for children under 12 is $20, plus $4 registration fee; for children over 12, the cost is $21, plus $4 registration fee. Primary camp costs $8.

Registration forms are available at any Baptist church.

The Knights of Columbus is organizing a trial camp this year for about 20 children 8 or 9 years old of any denomination. The week-long camp will begin June 25 at a Shawnigan Lake campsite.

There will be no fee for the camp, but organizers will select campers carefully, according to the greatest need. Anyone interested in applying can call Paul Redchurch, 592-0456, or Maurice Tieulie, 383-7736.

All the church camps will accept children from other denominations.

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship operates five summer camps in Canada, one of them on Thetis Island. Each camp emphasizes one activity and, at Thetis Island, it's water sports.

Pioneer Pacific Camp offers two-week programs for boys in July, and for girls in August. Activities include swimming, canoeing, sailing in a 35-foot ketch, and daily Bible study. There is a heated swimming pool for beginners.

Children range in age from 8 to 17, and are divided into three age groups.

Quota Reached

Cost for two weeks is $110, excluding bus fare to the campsite. To register, write Pioneer Pacific Camp, Box 3829, Station D, Vancouver 9. Enrolment for junior girls is full, but there are still places for other ages.

Enrolment is almost full for the second University of Victoria Summer Camp, operated by the physical education section, under Dr. Bruce Howe. The quota of 100 has been reached, but a few more will be accepted.

The three-week camp, July 10 to 28, includes two weeks' activities at the university camp and five days camping at Shawnigan Lake.

On campus each afternoon the children will learn tennis, gymnastics, archery and golf, and once a week day trips will be arranged. Boys and girls aged nine to 13 will be involved.

Cost is $50 for the three weeks. If demand is great enough, a second session may be organized. For more information, call or write Dr. Bruce Howe, Director, University of Victoria Summer Camp, Physical Education Section, University of Victoria, 477-6911, local 509.

All residential camps provide a list of clothing and camping equipment children should bring. Most require some form of medical clearance for the child.

Tot's TV 'Advertising Vehicle'

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian television stations are not doing an adequate job on children's programs, said a report issued this week at the end of a five-day closed conference on children's television.

It said the Canadian Radio-Television Commission should establish guidelines for such TV programs.

About 60 officials, producers and writers involved in children's television in Europe, the United States and Canada met at a conference organized by the Canadian Council on Children and Youth and funded by an $18,000 grant from the federal government.

The report criticized the "over-emphasis on children's broadcasting as a vehicle for toy and breakfast food advertising" and "programs which encourage passivity rather than participation."

It said: "The key goal of chilren's television should be to motivate, stimulate and encourage creative activities and play and to provide an enriched experience for the child."

Poison Label Doesn't Repel

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The skull and crossbones, which designates most containers of poisonous substances, actually attracts children, a research group said this week.

According to the Institute on Education Research, studies in Pittsburgh and Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., indicate that children age 2-5 like the sign, flown from pirate ships in Colonial times.

"We found that the 'skull and crossbones' is consistently portrayed in red," Dennis Casey, an executive of the group, said. "Colors in the red-orange groups are particularly attractive to kids."

Birthday sale bonanzas for our menfolk . . .

Wilson's men's department is feeling birthday-ish this week . . . (Wilson's, you know, are celebrating their 110th!) . . . so decided to put on a bit of a sale of their own . . . viz., shirts and socks . . . something no man ever has too many (or even enough?) of . . . Tell your husband about this . . . or how about dropping in yourself to replenish your man's sock supplies . . . Maybe surprise him with some bright new shirts? . . . Just to give you an idea of the kind of bargains you'll find . . . $5.95 will buy an Arrow or Hathaway shirt which regularly sells for up to $10 . . . Some are in blends, others in pure cotton . . . Mostly striped, and in good colors. Another group of arnel and cotton shirts—mostly plains, but with a few striped among them, are reduced from $8 to $3.95 . . . Sizes are broken, so see them soon for a good selection . . . As to the socks, they're Jaeger wool and nylon . . . short length . . . in a good assortment of colors . . . Machine washable, too . . . which should please you, almost as much as the slashed price tags . . . These Jaeger socks are regularly $1.75 a pair . . . but during the sale they'll be going for $1.35 . . . or three pairs for $4 . . . While you're in Wilson's cast an eye on their new linen and cotton knit sport shirts for men . . . They've just arrived and are terrifically smart . . . Great for golf and all casual wear! . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

A Hettemarks suit has long striped jacket and polka dotted skirt.

This show was a real eye-opener! . . .

Earlier this month we had a busman's holiday and attended the CARS Women's Auxiliary's fashion show put on by Miss Frith . . . and despite the fact we've been viewing Miss Frith fashions for lo these many years . . . we're not exaggerating one bit when we tell you we've seldom been more impressed in our lives! . . . Perhaps it was seeing these stunning clothes modelled by flesh-and-blood females in living color . . . set apart from all the other clothes in the store . . . (We keep telling Mr. Sinclair we can't see the woods for the trees . . . but then again, where else could you possibly find such a huge selection of EVERYTHING than at Miss Frith's?) . . . Another thing that struck us very forcibly was the restraint Miss Frith used in pricing these clothes . . . They really seemed to us excellent value moneywise . . . as well as being tops fashion-wise . . . Just one woman's opinion? Well, visit Miss Frith's and judge for yourself! . . . You'll find all sorts of exciting things for summer wear there now . . . We saw a great selection of cool little dresses . . . shifts, shirtwaists, bra and halter tops . . . priced as low as $12 . . . More sizzlers, halters . . . and combinations thereof . . . in the Junior shop . . . Miss Frith Fashions, 1619 Douglas St., 383-7181.

They say that in Europe you can tell the class of a woman by the type of handbag she carries.

Top Canadian-made shoes . . .

New to Munday's this season are shoes made by Thomas Wallace . . . the Canadian shoe manufacturer considered tops in this country . . . whose lasts seem to be just right for so many women . . . Certainly these are smart, attractive shoes . . . well constructed and well-fitting . . . We saw three patterns of Thomas Wallace shoes at Munday's this week . . . and would love to have been able to buy one of each! . . . There's a black crinkle patent pump with a fairly heavy heel and tassel tie trim, which also comes in soft nougat or navy calf . . . A nice, go-everywhere shoe . . . A really pretty shoe for spring and summer is the pump with punched vamp and with nude underlay mesh . . . which gives you a closed toe with lots of ventillation . . . Comes in white calf, black patent and camel suede with matching patent collar and heel . . . This particular model is exclusive to Munday's . . . The third pattern . . . which has already proved tremendously popular . . . is a sandal-type shoe with open toe and heel . . . in black, white or red crinkle patent . . . Simple, cool, comfortable . . . the perfect street shoe for now through summer . . . $28 and $31 for these Thomas Wallace shoes . . . relatively inexpensive as shoes go nowadays! . . . Munday's have co-ordinating handbags, too . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

A long-sleeved white crepe evening dress with low V-neck has two white doves perched on each shoulder.

Nothing like a beautiful silk suit! . . .

Young and gay . . . and French as the Champs Elysee . . . Reading this sentence back, we just noticed that it rhymes! . . . anyway, we thing it nicely descriptive of a buttercup yellow silk shantung suit just arrived from Paris and now reposing in Eaton's Import Room . . . Skirt is pleated all around, and the jacket is a real blazer style . . . With it a striped silk shirt blouse with matching masculine tie . . . Very oo-la-la! . . . Another imported silk suit is a plaid in shades of hot pink and mulberry . . . the whole thing cut on the bias to give a diagonal effect . . . The A-line skirt has two patch pockets . . . Jacket just skims the waistline . . . has epaulettes, cuffs and front strip in solid pink . . . This one speaks with a French accent, too! . . . And we've been saving the best till last . . . a beautiful natural corded silk dress and jacket . . . dress with a printed silk top in shades of lemon, black, gold and touches of red, with a separate tie . . . skirt and short jacket in creamy natural shade. Very elegant indeed! . . . Same natural corded silk is used for a beautifully-cut pantsuit . . . If you've got your heart set on a silk suit . . . do make a point of visiting Eaton's . . . you might just find the pot at the end of the rainbow! . . . Eaton's Import Room, 382-7141, local 242.

Oscar de la Renta has a cotton gauze fencer's shirt . . . to tie high or tuck in . . . with flowered cotton pants to co-ordinate.

Lovely handmade sweaters at Handloom . . .

Seldom are there two exactly alike . . . Mrs. Higgin, of the Handloom, told us of the lovely handmade sweaters knit from Cottage Craft and Icelandic Lopi yarns which you'll find at the store right now. Fair Isle and Nordic patterns, unusual Tunisian crochet . . . with either bone or pottery hand-made buttons . . . They're priced at $35 to $50 . . . and can be made to order if your size is not on hand . . . Other interesting items we saw at Handloom on Wednesday . . . Gorgeous saddle leather shoulder bags . . . hand-made, and beautifully shaped and tooled . . . A most unusual egg lifter with bone handle and copper spatula . . . perfect for a hunting lodge . . . as is the ladle, fork and knife set complete with antler hanger . . . bone handles and leather-sheathed knife . . . These would look wonderful hung on a panelled wall . . . Unbelievably realistic and competely delightful are the applehead dolls . . . an old woman in a rocking chair, knitting . . . an Indian in full brave costume . . . whose beaded leather suit and pigeon feather headdress was made by an Indian . . . a Chinese man and another Indian at the Empress shop . . . These are not to be confused with children's dolls . . . they're collectors' items and are quite expensive . . . but if you're a connoisseur of such things . . . just don't miss them! . . . Handloom, 625 Trounce Alley, 384-1011, and Empress Hotel, 384-1518.

The sense of smell is said to be at least a thousand times more sensitive than the sense of taste.

Charmante's have a charming "personality" . . .

It has long been our feeling that stores . . . just like people . . . have distinct personalities of their own . . . Some don't cut much ice, while others project strongly . . . make you want to go back again and again because they stock your kind of merchandise . . . are staffed by your kind of people . . . Charmante's is a store that affects us in this way . . . and it might just be that you too would feel an empathy with this lovely dress shop in the Hillside Mall . . . So why not go and find out for yourself? . . . We were very much impressed with Charmante's selection of sportswear last time we were in . . . All kinds of blazers . . . knits, polyesters, striped cotton seersuckers . . . not to mention classic navy flannel . . . very lightweight . . . very well-tailored . . . There are flannel pants to match these . . . pants and skirts to complement the others . . . We like the short-sleeved seersucker tops with their matching shorts . . . Washable jackets in white or red nylon lined with terrycloth . . . White acrylic sweaters with nautical or tennis embroidered motifs . . . Saw some machine-washable jackets of white cotton duck . . . white trevira slacks with striped belts . . . A good selection of Dalkeith cardigans and pullovers . . . lambswool or botany . . . and turtlenecked striped courtelle pullovers by Jaeger . . . Charmante's, Hillside Shopping Centre, 385-1543.

The long, slimming empire silhouette for bridemaids' dresses continues to be popular this year.

Attractive new pattern in Hornsea earthenware . . .

We saw the new patterns at Hornsea English earthenware at Montague Bridgman's this week and thought it extraordinarily attractive . . . Its name is Bronte . . . and colors are deep brown, in combination with a lighter brown . . . Plain plates and cups, etc., with a sculptured contemporary design . . . This pattern would be a striking complement to teak furniture . . . Hornsea, we're told, is a very good earthenware (not ovenware) . . . and certainly it's far from expensive at just $6.75 a 5-piece place setting . . . Also new from Hornsea this year are pottery canisters in the Bronté pattern . . . They have teak lids with rubber inside sealers, to really keep things fresh . . . They may be had in green or orange, as well as in the brown tones . . . and there are very nice spice sets in blue . . . Some of the canisters have names on them to show the contents . . . others not . . . so you can use them for keeping other things fresh besides the usual tea, coffee, etc. . . . Along with the new pattern, Montague Bridgman, received new supplies of the popular Saffron pattern from Hornsea. They've had this before, but have been sold out for a long time . . . And once again, you'll find a full range of Hornsea mugs . . . Dolphins, owls, mermaids, fish, rabbits, birds, chickens . . . delightful mugs, these . . . and only $1.50 each at . . . Montague Bridgman Ltd., 811 Government St., 383-0821.

The Thing About George —He Needs Challenge

family

WENDY DEY - EDITOR

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — In his wife's eyes, Gov. George Wallace is a scrapper who may walk again just because his doctors tell him there isn't much chance of it, but who "doesn't need a pair of legs to use his mind or speak out and say the things people want to hear."

"The thing about George," said Cornelia Wallace, "is that he must have a challenge and what God has given him is the challenge of his life."

Already he has begun to meet it, Mrs. Wallace told The Associated Press in an interview. And if the final verdict from his doctors is a probably lifetime of paralysis, she said, "he will take that as a challenge to show them they're wrong."

The 52-year-old Alabama governor, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, was shot down Monday in an assassination attempt at Laurel, Md., on the eve of Maryland's presidential primary.

He won that election Tuesday and the Michigan primary the same day. But a .38-calibre pistol bullet which struck his spine left him without the use of his legs.

The operation to remove that bullet probably will come in a week to 10 days, doctors said Thursday, but it will be at least two or three months before Wallace is able to get around much.

Wallace volunteers opened an office in Holy Cross Hospital where he is being cared for to handle the deluge of mail and flowers. The bouquets, however, became so numerous that they asked florists not to deliver any more.

Arthur Herman Bremer, 21, who is accused of shooting Wallace, remains under tight security at the Baltimore County jail in Towson, Md. Bremer is charged with four counts of assault with intent to kill and is being held under $200,000 bail.

Mrs. Wallace, 33, who was married to the governor two weeks before his inauguration in January, 1971, said that with therapy on Wallace's legs under way doctors "say the pace of his recovery is remarkable."

HANDY GUIDEBOOK FOR SECOND WIVES

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're about to become, marry, support, depend on, compete with or succeed as a second wife, there are some things you ought to know. Such as:

—Second wives have a 60-per-cent chance of being last wives. The man will often ask less and give more. The woman knows what she's getting.

—Second weddings cause as many fights as first weddings. Don't invite the first spouse. Do invite the children — it makes it final that their parent has remarried.

—Women: Be especially alert during the courtship period. Has he grown since his divorce? Or will he be hung up about it all his life?

—Men: When you remarry, move. Fire the old housekeeper. Let your new wife run the house.

That's some of the advice offered by Jean Baer, a writer and the second wife of a New York psychologist, in her new book, The Second Wife, based on interviews with more than 200 second-marrieds.

"It's a middle-class book for middle-class people," Miss Baer said recently. "I have not really touched on ghetto-dwellers or jet-setters. And while it is written for women, it invites over-the-shoulder readership. Men could learn a great deal, too."

Specifically, she treats every aspect of remarriage that would-be second wives find troubling.

Are you being courted by a man with children? "Meet them when he says you should — and make no overtures," Miss Baer said. "It's his business. And it could be conflicting to the children if they live with their mother."

During courtship, she said, you should also "be aware of the economic facts of life."

"Unless he's Onassis or Getty, no man can afford two families. Most second wives have to work."

If there are children, and if they live with their mother, that makes you a weekend step-mother. "Don't expect to love the children immediately," she suggested.

"You can be their date-getter, shopper, cook or friend, but you are not their mother. And you can't interfere with your husband's way of raising them."

While she is opposed to alimony. Miss Baer said that second wives should "bend over backwards to encourage their husbands to give as much as they can for child support."

"Even if you're going to Europe and you've been planning it all year, and then his child needs financial help for something, let him have it. You cannot put your husband in that kind of conflict situation."

She Delivered Her Baby

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — A young, unwed mother afraid to tell her parents of her pregnancy delivered her child alone and left it in front of a liquor store, the girl said Friday.

"I knew I was going to have it," she said. "I sterilized everything, the scissors and the string,and poured a bucket of hot, soapy water. I just waited. I prayed a lot."

She waited 10 hours May 1, then wrapped her baby girl in a clean cloth and placed it in a laundry basket.

She said she thought she would leave the infant at a church but the ones she went to were too crowded. Finally she put it outside a liquor store and called the proprietor.

The infant was taken into custody by the juvenile court and the mother, who had left her parents for fear her pregnancy would be too much for her father's ailing heart, consented to an interview with the Wichita Eagle.

The young woman, who continued at her clerical job the day after the birth, said she had some advice for other girls who might find themselves in like position.

"Go to someone," she said, "an agency or someone." She said that she believes now that her parents probably would have accepted her pregnancy.

EDGAR, ALLAN AND POE?

Cheryl Cabell, an employee at World of Animals near Dallas, Texas, has three feathered friends with plenty to crow about. Recently the crows nearly became a tasty meal when their nest fell into a pride of lions at the wild animal park. Game wardens managed to rout the lions and save the crows which were promptly named Edgar, Allan and Poe. Little did the wardens know that Poe's subject was ravens . . .

Two Books Honored

MONTREAL (CP) — A novel written by a 19-year-old school teacher for her pupils living along the Alaska Highway and a book describing a Japanese-Canadian's childhood years in a Canadian camp have won top honors for children's books in Canada.

Both awards are given by the Canadian Association of Children's Librarians.

Mary of Mile 18, written by Ann Blades of Vancouver to describe the Mennonite community 73 miles up the Alaska Highway where she taught, received the association's gold medal as book of the year.

An award for the best illustrated book went to Toronto painter Shizuye Takashima for A Child in Prison Camp.

Blood 'Washout' Revives Boy, 7

SAYRE, Pa. (AP) — Doctors at Robert Packer Hospital here have performed the world's second successful blood "washout" operation, the hospital disclosed Friday.

A spokesman for the hospital, John O'Brien, said the operation was performed Tuesday night and that the patient, a critically ill seven-year-old Ulster, Pa., boy, regained consciousness from a coma 21 hours later. The boy was identified as Garth Shipman.

The "washout" procedure involves draining all of the blood from the body while replacing it with a neutral solution which in turn is replaced by fresh blood.

It is designed to cleanse the blood and allow the damaged body organs which normally perform the blood cleansing action to recover.

Dr. John Thomas, chief of surgery, decided to attempt the blood washout after tests indicated the child suffered from rare Reyes disease, an upper respiratory viral infection that leads to liver deterioration.

O'Brien said Thomas telephoned Col .Gerald Clebanoff, a U.S. Air Force surgeon who directed the world's first successful blood washout more than a month ago on a young airman from Laurens, N.Y.

"Clebanoff described the procedure over the telephone and our surgical team went ahead with it."

"Today the child is sitting up talking with nurses and his parents," he said.

Heart and blood vessel diseases take more lives than all other causes of death combined. However, it is encouraging to know that in recent years much progress has been made in the diagnosis and control of car- has been made in the diagdiovascular diseases.

The 24-page booklet Facts about Heart and Blood Vessel Diseases explains our heart and circulatory systems and what happens when this system stops functioning properly.

The booklet discusses some prevalent cardiovascular diseases, including agina pectoris, heart attack, strokes and low blood pressure. There are also details about several peripheral vascular diseases such as varicose veins and thrombophlebitis. You will learn what these and similar diseases are, whom they will most likely affect and what can be done to keep them under control. Equally important, you will read about the prospects for cure and prevention of these specific diseases.

What's Going to Happen to Old Town?

AFTER: Bastion Square in 1972 features renovated structures, pedestrian mall

Pictures, above and right, give an idea of what has already been done in one section of Victoria's Old Town. The fate of many other old premises still hangs in the balance. At the end of this month, Canada's top architects will gather here to offer their suggestions, in a unique people-oriented planning experiment.

Canada's Architects Speak Out

By DAVID MAY
Times Staff

At the end of this month, six architectural design teams, drawn from across Canada, will arrive in Victoria for a unique experiment in the planning of Old Town.

The teams, each led by a recognized Canadian architect, will be guests of the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada, whose 65th Annual Assembly is to take place here May 31 to June 4.

The event is intended to spark off involvement at public, government and professional designer levels, in what happens to a quarter of Victoria, recognized by many as being worthy of preservation.

To achieve this kind of interplay, the format of the event has been called by its co-ordinator, architect Roger Smeeth, a "design game." The "players" are the design teams and a seven-member jury panel; the arena is, of course, Old Town itself.

Two hundred members of the general public will also take part, and they will be encouraged to voice their opinions on the teams' progress. In this way, each team's final presentation to the jury will be gradually modified to become a true reflection of the wishes of all concerned in the experiment. What the game's organizers hope to do is bring planning and public participation closer together.

The varied background and experience of team leaders should throw up some interesting contrasts in approach to Old Town.

Accent on Young

Vancouver architect Stanley King gave up general practice after 15 years to concentrate on work with the young. His ideas on the shape of cities centre around what the city will do to the young who experience it.

He hopes, consequently, that Old Town design will give young people a chance "to develop their values and raise the expectations in the quality of their future city."

Toronto architect Harry Kohl, on the other hand, takes a much grimmer view, seeing the city as a "necessary evil." It is necessary, Kohl says, because it is the means of accommodating the products of "over advanced technical sciences and cultural developments." It is evil because it compels us to live together in close proximity, robbing us of freedom from inhibition.

"You cannot live in a city without other people unless it is a ghost town," says Kohl.

Gorden Atkins, 33, of Calgary, is a practising architect and bishop in a Mormon Church. His views on a city are imbued with personal optimism. He still sees the family unit as the basis of human activity for most people. Thus the city, by extension, becomes a family unit composed of individuals coming together to form groups.

Atkins does admit, however, that the city is more than merely the sum of its inhabitants. He emphasizes such qualities as variety, activity, excitement, and the need for a place of personal involvement when considering Old Town.

Architect Joseph Baker describes much of his philosophy of the city in political terms, not surprisingly, as he lives in Montreal. He is highly critical of his city's administration: "They're doing everything wrong; inner city expressways, Olympic circuses, development rape . . .

City Must Protect

"The time for establishing alternatives is now and the municipality has a responsibility to protect its residents — tenant or proprietor — to guide and aid imaginative development in areas that are truly appropriate."

Rehabilitation, a vital part of the planning needed for the low-income residents in the Old Town district, comes under Baker's attack:

"For too many builders, their only involvement with any 'rehab' program has been buying up property surreptitiously to demolish the building on it and re-develop." Baker was, of course, speaking of Eastern Canada. His attitude towards coming to Victoria is one of relief:

"Victoria is about as far away from (Montreal's misplanning) as one could get."

Edmonton architect Peter Hemmingway hints that Man's desire for urban change may become an integral part of the "throwaway society" of the future.

"We should be prepared for the possibility that the citizens of the future may regard nostalgia as a curious aberration," he says, in his biographical notes. At this stage, he and Toronto's Harry Kohl, seem the most likely candidates for the "demolish and rebuild" theory of development.

Hemmingway's theories on the city are based on historical and economic analysis of the forces that create the city.

Urban Shaping Forces

"The city of the past was determined mainly by the local market forces operating within the boundaries and to a limited extent by benign municipal governments . . .

"The city of the present is determined by local and national market forces . . . and to a limited extent by confused and bureaucratic municipal governments . . .

"The city of the future will be determined by global market forces and by the aspirations of its citizens combined with a technological development that we can barely comprehend."

The opinions of the sixth design team, under Vancouver architect Gerald Hamilton, were unavailable at time of publication. Hamilton has been connected with the hotly disputed Reid Centre proposals for Victoria waterfront development.

The teams will make detailed presentations of their proposals to the seven-man jury in the late afternoon Thursday, June 1. Conclusions from the experiment will emerge during the Architects' Forum to be held Friday, June 2. But, as coordinator Roger Smeeth puts it: "Hopefully, the day's events will speak for themselves."

Victoria's People Sit in Judgment

The seven-man jury for the Old Town planning experiment is drawn from a wide spectrum of people, all with some interest in how this sector of Victoria moves in the future.

Chairman is Roderick Haig-Brown, 64, writer, environmentalist, UVic chancellor, naturalist and judge. A resident of Campbell River for 38 years, Haig-Brown has been in the headlines for his outspoken attacks on what Man's thoughtlessness is doing to his environment. An expert fisherman, he considers recreation "the fourth need of man" — that is, after food, shelter and clothing.

Peter Pollen, 44, mayor of Victoria. As an alderman, he is on record as saying: "I have tried to make people think where this city is going. I wanted complete plans of development proposed in the city, but I didn't get them." As mayor, he is variously regarded as a "white knight", defending little Victoria against the Big Developer or as the stubborn opponent of dynamic change, depending on your viewpoint.

James A. Mace, developer, president, Bay Village Shopping Centre Ltd. Mace has run into opposition to two of his proposed developments, the Bay Village project (Opposed by the city) and his Windsor block, which raised the ire of the Windsor Park Neighborhood Group, concerned that the height and density of his proposal would spoil the aesthetic value of their district.

Philip Homes, realtor, president, Pemberton Holmes Ltd. His business, located in Old Town, has had real estate interests in Victoria since the 19th century. Holmes is past president, Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Sam Bawlf, 27, owner-developer. Runs Fort Victoria Properties Ltd., a 10-man, Vancouver based group of professional men which, in Bawlf's words, "has half a million dollars in Downtown Victoria . . . and brought 20 new shops, two restaurants, and two theatres to the city." Bawlf's forte has proved itself to be in restoration of ld buildings, like the Counting House complex and Bastion Square.

Gene Miller, 28, a resident of Old Town (he lives in a studio apartment on Fort Street) and manager of Open Space. This building he defines as "an indoor street" which includes such features as a craft sales outlet, theatre and, soon, a restaurant. A native of New York, Miller loves the spontaneity and encounters of street life.

Seven Days Format Surfaces Across Border

By PETER KIERNAN

NEW YORK (CP) — The inquisitive camera's eye still is there, looking unabashedly for the nuance behind the commentary, and one of the hosts who used to help condense seven days into the television hour that contained them is there with his low-keyed, almost whimsical approach.

Much of the presentation of the American documentary-news show The 51st State is reminiscent of nothing so much as his Hous has Seven Days, the controversial CBC program that died in a blaze of public and parliamentary opinion in May, 1966.

"It's pretty much the same trip," said Patrick Watson over lunch in a little French restaurant around the corner from Central Park and the offices of WNET, the Public Broadcasting Service outlet in New York. "But it's in different territory."

The similarity is more than coincidental.

The program director of the Public Broadcasting Service outlet is Jack Lewis, an American producer who did some of his earliest documentaries for CBC back in 1964, and there is even a former CBC cameraman resident in the station's helter-skelter looking midtown offices.

"Jack had been very much interested in the whole Seven Days thing and so when he got under way with this program, he gave me a call," said Watson, whose family remained on their farm home near Ottawa when he came down to New York to act as host on The 51st State.

The territory the nightly half-hour-or-so program covers is New York City, roughly, although state-wide issues are included, as were the peregrinations of New York's mayor, John Lindsay, in his doomed quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

For Watson, who arrived here from Canada in January to become host of the show and help put it together, "it's simply a marvellous way to engage with this megalopolis."

OFFERED ONLY CHANCE

It so happens, the program also offers about the only opportunity he could think of to get back into the kind of TV journalism that Seven Days tried with various degrees of success, depending on the eye of the beholder.

As he defines this kind of journalism, it is, ideally, "a good theatrical experience"—compelling, drawing the viewer into the program emotionally.

During a recent 51st State show, the camera's eye chased a roach up a grimy wall and into a crack as the voice of a welfare mother in the background described her living conditions.

"It took me a long time to articulate," said Watson, "that television is primarily a theatrical and experimental medium . . . that it is the worst possible thing to sit and talk about a subject . . . because talking about it simply does not communicate about it."

The interview, in short, is not in Watson's purview.

"When I first made that observation, it was very upsetting to me to learn that television is no good for ideas. But then I began to realize that this kind of experience, of emotional understanding, is just as valuable, and in some cases more valuable.

CAN ADD EMOTION

"You've got a lot of sources of intellectual information in the print universe and the thing TV can add is an emotional component that is often missing—it is just another part of the whole spectrum of information that is going on around us."

This part of the spectrum can help turn a society's thinking around, as in the case of the Vietnam war.

"It is very difficult for a young person to remain cool and detached about the 'enemy' as a category when he can see the bleeding and suffering . . . and the kind of stuff television has brought back to us because it is theatrical."

Watson feels it is the sort of broadcasting that can generate a lot of feedback from the public as it most certainly did in the case of Seven Days.

"The management (CBC) in Ottawa were constantly being called by responsible and serious people—people before the bar, people they met at the Rideau Club—who were outraged by the kind of emotional thing we were putting on the air."

There was the topless dancer, filmed in San Francisco as an example of an incipient social trend. Although topless was to mushroom into a garden variety entertainment staple, at the time the segment was shown to Canadian audiences it was more than Ottawa could bear.

Looking back on these years now, Watson says that as long as management had a fairly clear understanding of the various projects, they either accepted the rationale of the producers or formed their own.

But the topless dancers and other shows with similar emotional components, were presentations which Ottawa "chose to interpret absolutely cynically."

In hindsight, Watson thinks the Seven Day adventure would have turned out a lot differently if the show's creators had taken time out to quietly go to Ottawa and do a selling job.

"We didn't do any politicking—we just met things head on and screamed and shouted and ranted and raved . . . we were immature, in hindsight that's fairly clear."

It's also fairly clear to him that interest in such "reality" programming as Seven Days has pretty much disappeared in Canada, although there are occasional bright flashes.

"The CBC doesn't seem to have a very clear idea of what it's up to at the moment . . . what seems to have happened is that the survivors are running the place and survivors are often not the creative people."

The same, he hastened to add, is not true in radio, where CBC is doing "some truly fine stuff."

With his contract here running out, Watson plans to return to Canada to—if financing is lined up—plunge into production of a feature film he wrote with Laurier Laplerre, another veteran of Seven Days.

"Writing that script," he said, "it was such a trip. . . ."

Anti-Fat Drug Reduces Risk of Coronary

CHICAGO (CP) — Two doctors, sharing the suspicion of a link between blood fat and heart disease, have reported on an anti-fat drug which reduces the heart-attack rate.

Writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, the researchers say the drug, called clofibrate, lowered fat levels in the blood and reduced the non-fatal heart-attack rate by more than two-thirds in a study of more than 3,000 men.

Drs. Louis R. Krasno and George J. Kidera said that in more than 1,000 men whose average age was 47.5 years the non-fatal heart-attack rate was 1.89 per 1,000 each year for men treated with the drug, and 6.6 per 1,000 each year for untreated men. The difference was even more striking in more than 2,000 men 10 years younger. Treated, their heart attack rate was .64 per 1,000 each year; untreated it was 5 per 1,000 each year.

SUPPORT THEORY

Although the definitive cause of coronary heart disease still is unknown, the authors said the results of their study support the theory of a strong association between high blood-fat levels and coronary heart disease. Many physicians have suspected this for some time and have prescribed various measures such as low cholesterol diets to normalize the fat content of their patients' blood. Because dietary management is often difficult, the researchers decided to try a drug approach to the problem.

The physicians studied three groups of men totalling 3,286 for up to five years. Group 1 was made up of 1,001 men free of coronary heart disease and 67 men with disease whose average age was 47.5 years. These men were divided into two groups of 550 and 518, pair-matched for risk factors such as age, blood pressure, cholesterol level, electrocardiogram results, body weight, cigarette smoking, history of heart attack, family and personal history, alcohol consumption and urban versus suburban living.

GIVEN CAPSULES

The 518 in the treatment group were given clofibrate capsules four times a day. The 550 men in the control group were untreated for an initial 39-month period, and then they too received clofibrate therapy for the remaining 23 months of the study.

Groups 2 and 3 consisted of younger men without coronary heart disease and an average age of 37.5 years. Those in group 2 received clofibrate therapy for more than 2⅛ years. Group 3 was given no therapy and observed for just under two years. Men in all three groups were given thorough physical examinations annually. No dietary restrictions were placed on the men.

As a result of this study the researchers found that:

Treatment with clofibrate dramatically lowered the incidence of non-fatal heart attack.

Clofibrate seemed to give the same degree of "protection" from heart attack whether men with high blood-fat levels showed no response, partial response, or more complete response to the drug.

The protective effect of clofibrate therapy became evident within one to three months of treatment.

No men with normal blood-fat levels, whether treated or untreated, developed any evidence of heart attack.

Clofibrate therapy did not appear to make a significant difference in death rates between treated and untreated men. Since the beginning of the study six men died from cardiac causes in the treated groups and eight in the untreated groups.

The side effects of clofibrate —mainly nausea and gas—affected 2.9 per cent of the more than 2,000 men in groups 1 and 2.

The researchers concluded that since clofibrate lessened the incidence of coronary heart disease, even without significant lowering of blood-fat levels, some other mechanisms may be at work—perhaps as yet unknown.

The authors are from the division of clinical research, United Air Lines, San Francisco.

Cyprus CO To Return

OTTAWA (CP) — Brig.-Gen. E. M. Leslie, 53, of Victoria and Montreal, commander of the Canadian peacekeeping contingent on Cyprus, will return to Canada next month to command the Canadian Forces base at Borden, Ont.

Announcing this Friday, the defence department said Gen Leslie will be succeeded on the Mediterranean island by Lt.-Col. Clayton Beattie, 44, of Ottawa, who has been working at Canadian Forces Headquarters here.

Ancient Therapy Popular

LONDON (AP)—The ancient Chinese therapy of acupuncture is attracting 10,000 British patients each week, compared with almost none 15 years ago.

Sidney Rose-Neil, president of the British Acupuncture Association, said just how many of these get the treatment free under the government health program is not known. However, health officials say doctors whose qualifications in general medical practice are recognized by the state can prescribe it for their patients if they believe it will benefit them.

A consumer association has charged that many of the practitioners are quacks and could do more damage than good.

Its magazine said: "Because acupuncture is not recognized here as a form of conventional medicine, there is no control over who may practise it. Anyone can set up as an acupuncturist without any training whatsoever and can take on as patients extremely sick people."

The association polled 232 of its members who had undergone treatment. Two-thirds were women. Of those who told their family doctor about it, one half found him neutral and one in four found that the doctor approved.

The journal called for controlled trials and found that lack of control was "very worrying."

A spokesman for the government's health department said there were no plans for an official investigation.

Rose-Neil said he had no objections to government control.

Dr. Felix Mann, a conventional doctor who now practises acupuncture fulltime, said the Chinese treatment is no panacea.

"You cannot mend a broken limb with it and you couldn't plug a hole in a tooth with it," he said. "But for rheumatism, arthritis, asthma, bronchitis, I find it highly effective.

Acupuncture is based on an old Chinese belief that diseases are caused by the imbalance of the body's energy forces. The stainless steel needles used in the treatment jab the skin at certain longitudinal points to redistribute these energies into a correct pattern.

Rose-Neil estimated Britain has about 300 practitioners of whom about 100 are properly qualified. A full course in acupuncture lasts seven years.

White to play and mate in two moves. Solution below.

A FAREWELL TO VICTOR

One of the nicest persons in the chess world and an old sparring partner of mine, died recently in Liege, Belgium, at the age of 73. Victor Soultanbeieff wrote extensively on the game and his "Guide Practique du Jeu des Combinaisons" is still considered a classic. Here is the game that won the first Belgian Championship title for me.

Ghent, May, 1923. The final round.

(c) Should have played 8. P-QR3 right away and so gained a tempo. Now my pawn formation is far from pleasant-looking.

(d) The style of Soultanbeieff was always a wild one. You never were quite sure whether you had him or he had you. Victor, by the way, was a White Russian engineer, who had escaped the Bolsheviks and settled down in Liege. He learned to play chess at the age of 35 and in two years' time was at the top of the list of Belgian players. He worked in the coal mines for a long time, until he found a place in the engineering field.

I was extremely lucky against him in almost all our games, played in various places in Europe. I won eight, lost one and drew two against him.

Then, almost imperceptibly, society changes.
Your family grows up and moves away.
You retire.
To what?
We believe the answer should be a new community: a congenial community of your contemporaries in an environment that sets the highest standards for your personal comfort and convenience — but where you set your own standards for privacy or sociability, activity or relaxation.
That's why we built Oak Bay Manor in Victoria — a new concept in retirement living.
For example, you enjoy the privacy of your own beautifully appointed one, two or three room suite. Each has a private bathroom, soundproofing, fine furnishings and your personal balcony overlooking 5 acres of landscaped grounds and some of Victoria's most breathtaking views.
It's your home.
The facilities you enjoy are the finest that $5,000,000 can command: a swimming pool, whirlpool and sauna; a masseur, masseuse and resident nurse; exercise rooms, lounges, hobby rooms, a billiard room, reading room and coffee shop. Each floor boasts its own laundry room and kitchenette.
And if your green thumb is itching to raise prize dahlias, stake your claim to a plot in the solarium.
Meals are prepared by a Master Chef and served in the gracious Main Dining Room; you will enjoy a quality and variety of fine fare befitting your own home. Entertain your guests here, then relax with them in the oak-beamed Lounge with its massive fireplace.
Downtown Victoria, one of Canada's most intriguing and beautiful cities, is only 3 miles away — a luxurious 3 miles in Oak Bay Manor's own chauffeur-driven limousine. And your immediate neighbourhood offers a wide range of social amenities, from churches to medical services.
Fine golf is a drive-and-chip-shot nearby. Equally near are quiet ocean-side walks, great fishing, sailing, riding, and the cultural pleasures of Victoria.

BUCKSKIN BOYS of the Malahat Marauders return to life for this year's Victorian Days. Boasting feathers in their beaver caps, Barry Beazley (left) and Kevin Buchanan will be among 12 musketeers saluting opening ceremonies by shooting blank volleys at Inner Harbor causeway Monday at 1:45 p.m.

Thai Flair for Bizarre Names

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A lady visitor to Thailand might hesitate before entering an establishment called Porn Shop.

In fact, it is a quite innocent hairdresser; Porn is a common first name in Thailand.

Men who head for Modern Kiss thinking it is a bar or massage parlor will find instead that it is a tailor.

And tourists who think of buying the kids a gift at Siamese Dolls Shop had better think again. The only dolls there are warm, live ones—it's a nightclub.

Thais have a bizarre flair when it comes to naming their shops, restaurants and bars. The name frequently has little connection with the line of business.

Men's tailors offer some good examples of Thai sign language.

Pele Shop and Joe Louis Shop might be more appropriate names for sports stores.

Then there is simply Very Good Shop and Wonderfully Shop. And who wouldn't be intrigued by Fat Man Shop?

If one tailor hits it big, others are likely to copy his name on the premise that the name brought him fame in the first place.

MANY LAW SUITS

This copying is not confined to shop names. International companies are constantly bringing suits against Chinese merchants who produce items with names so close to registered brand names that the public finds it hard to tell the difference.

One classic was Colgade tooth paste which was near enough to Colgate to start a law suit. Another was FA 13 soap powder. Printed large on soap packets it looks remarkably like Fab.

But shop names are the most colorful, although the copyist is not always sure what he is copying.

Hotels have some original names, particularly those that rent rooms by the hour.

Top of the list is Sin Sin Hotel, closely followed by Funny Hotel, Happy Hotel, Heaven Hotel, New Nine Storeys Hotel and one called Luxury Hotel which doesn't live up to its name.

Win 22 days in Europe and a VW to bring home. Free.

You could be the winner in this area.

We're having a contest.

If you win we'll give you Holland. Switzerland. Germany. Belgium. Austria. Luxembourg. And France.

We'll give you twenty-two days, with deluxe and first class accommodations, and breakfasts and dinners on us.

We'll give you a Volkswagen Super Beetle for sightseeing (plus $100 gas money). And afterward we'll bring it home as your souvenir.

We'll give you all this (including a round trip Lufthansa flight to Europe) if you do two things:

One, come in and test drive a new '72 Volkswagen. You'll discover it's ahead of its time.

And two, come up with the winning entry in the contest to name our new computer plug.

That's the plug that will connect every new Volkswagen to our VW Computer Self-Analysis System.

It's the service system of the future.

Every '72 Volkswagen is already equipped for it, and the first computers will begin operation this fall.

Come in and let us tell you about it. And about the contest.

After all, it's probably the first time you've been able to enter a contest with a bug in it.

The Congregation as Consumers

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

"A good pastor," My Irritable Friend said with a smile, "is one who sticks with his congregation in its troubles, many of which it wouldn't have if it hadn't called him to be its pastor."

M.I.F. and Young Barmish and I were drinking coffee in my study a few days ago when M.I.F. said that. We had been discussing one of our colleagues in the ministry who, it seems, is being gently eased out of his present church by a group of its members. It isn't that these members dislike him or think him a rotten preacher or anything like that: it's just that membership is declining and givings dropping (the church is an old area of a city, in a rapidly changing neighborhood), and someone has to be blamed for that. And, then, many church members seem to believe in the doctrine of congregational salvation by getting a new minister.

PERSPECTIVES AND PREJUDICES

"What you must understand," M.I.F. said, "is that in our kind of Church, in which congregations have most of the say in the selection of pastors, a congregation, whatever else it may be, is a consumer co-operative. And it is well known in commercial circles that the most precarious managment job is in a consumer co-operative: your customers are also your bosses."

Young Barmish, who still has just a little moisture behind his ministerial ears, then said to M.I.F., "You seen quite happy in the pastoral ministry and your cynicism surprises me. Surely you have a higher view of a congregation than that."

"Of course I do," M.I.F. replied. "But I do believe that a minister, if he wishes to do a decent job and maintain his own integrity, must come to terms with the consumer co-operative aspect of his congregation. After all, isn't this the "congregational particaptory democracy" that some of you bright fellows are so keen on? As Jimmy Durante used to say, 'Dem's da conditions dat prevail'."

M. I. F.. continued: "My good friend, Father Hooley, tells me that in the Roman Catholic parishes today only a very stupid pastor refuses to recognize an element of the consumer co-operative in his parish. And my rabbi friends tell me that every synagogue and temple operates as a consumer co-operative and that they can get on with their real job only by adjusting to that reality. No Barmish, this is not cynicism but it is irresponsible sentimentalism not to try to come to terms with this aspect of religious institutionalism. Once you accept this you can get on with fulfilling your vocation. I like being a pastor, I really do, but I didn't like it very much until I became aware of the realities of congregational life."

"Finally," M.I.F. said with a twinkle in his eyes, "I give you this advice: Don't trust a minister who says that he doesn't worry about attendance at services and contributions to the budget and the such: he may lie to you about other things as well."

MISSIONARY ROLE

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI said Friday all Roman Catholics have the duty to spread the Gospel among non-Christians.

"This is not a marginal recommendation, but a basic duty of the people of God, inherent in the very nature of Christianity," the pope said in a message distributed five months in advance of World Mission Sunday, Oct. 22.

The Pope did not specifically mention the Roman Catholic church's difficulty in recruiting enough priests for parts of the world, such as Africa or Latin America, where there is a serious shortage of clergy. But he said there is danger that many Catholics would not pay enough attention to missionary work.

"True, the precept to go and preach the Gospel to all peoples does not apply to every single Christian," Pope Paul said. "For this task, the Lord chooses a given number of priests, or religious and of lay people who are then sent to mission lands by the legitimate authority. But let it be well remembered that they are sent in the name of the entire people of God."

"All Christians are duty-bound to co-operate for the missions according to their abilities," the pontiff said.

The pope said some lay people may feel they need to remember this duty only once a year, on Mission Sunday.

"Far from it," he said. "Just as breathing can never be interrupted if we are to avoid death, missionary eagerness cannot be confined to one annual day.

To Visit Ireland

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Billy Graham said this week he is considering a trip to Northern Ireland to meet with both Roman Catholic and Protestant leaders.

A spokesman said Graham "has been invited to visit both northern and southern Ireland in the past several years and the invitations have become rather urgent in the last few weeks."

Graham "stressed that any trip would involve both protestant and Catholic leaders and that he was not going to speak to any large rallies," the spokesman said.

"If I go, I would not make the slightest comment about their problems," Graham said. "I would go only as a Christian minister to minister equally to Catholics and Protestants.

"I wouldn't even think of trying to meddle or trying to discuss politics or discuss who is right or wrong after this has been going on all these centuries."

A source close to Graham, who is in the middle of a crusade here, said Graham is "definitely planning a trip to Ireland" by the end of the month.

Hospital Building Plans To Continue—Bennett

Premier Bennett officially opened a 15-bed addition to Lady Minto Hospital at Ganges Friday afternoon before moving on to his Salt Spring Island cottage for the holiday weekend.

He told a crowd of about 150 the provincial government will continue its hospital building program even though costs continue to climb.

The addition to the hospital, which serves Salt Spring, Mayne, Galiano, North and South Pender Islands, is for extended care patients, mostly elderly who require nursing care. Patients were moved into the new beds at the beginning of the month.

Hospital board chairman Joan Purchase recalled that when the hospital opened in 1914, it had just six beds and hospital care cost islanders $6 a year.

In 1958 the new 25-bed acute hospital opened. It bears the name of the wife of Canada's governor-general at the turn of the century.

Women Caught In Void

By JUDITH TERRY

Women: middle-class, bored, dissatisfied, frivolous, violent, loved or unloved, the short stories in this collection by Alberto Moravia are exclusively concerned with women.

Yet although there are many women, they have an identical voice. Each tells her own story, lucidly and intelligently, in the same clear, objective tone, and though every story is different, the pre-occupations are the same, until in the end these short — often very short — stories leave an impression of unity and similarity: it is really only one woman we are seeing, one woman in different guises.

PARADISE AND OTHER STORIES, by Alberto Moravia. Collins. $8.95.

This new book is called Paradise, one of the more obvious ironies, for Moravia's women epitomize the spiritual desolation, guilt and anxieties of the modern period. Theirs is a dolce vita society destitute of ideals, beliefs — even work, for money is plentiful and there is always a Swiss governess for the children.

For most of them life is excruciatingly empty. A wife whose existence is only confirmed by the sexual relationship with her husband becomes, once this collapses, invisible, and in a macabre scene is shot by her husband when he kills a pheasant by shooting it right through her.

Another finds the daily round so meaningless that she leaves everything half-finished, breakfast, the newspaper article, her bath, and goes out with only half her face made up.

Some seek frantically for any risk and excitement that will make them feel real, one taking to burglary, another painting her body with psychedelic designs, yet another deliberately provoking sexual violence.

It is the consumer society Moravia loathes. Like some monstrous robot it rules the life of those who created it, deflecting them from the real issues of life, dehumanizing them.

One woman buys a fur coat she has dreamed about, only to find that she 'looked like the advertisement for a certain make of tire, the figure wholly composed of motor-tires," and at the same time her husband picks up a street-walker. Discussing it afterwards he explains "That woman was able to create in me, without my being aware of it, a need. Of course it was a need for something which I hadn't any need whatever." The same is true of his wife's fur coat of course.

In fact the women wearing fur coats with nothing on underneath who occur sporadically are more than Playboy erotica, they are symbols of the effects of a consumer society. The coat, of conspicuous waste and extravagance, covers a void; even the boy inside is no more than an object for barter, a piece of the buying and selling which has degraded human relationships.

The taste of these stories is bitter but worth acquiring.The sombre view, the description of neuroses, anxieties, hysterical states bordering on madness, even the erotic undertones which chill rather than titillate, are not just fashionable modes.

Moravia's stories cannot be dismissed as examples of eccentric, unlikely human behavior either. His women are close to the epicentre, the upheaval of roots, beliefs, behavior, that we are all undergoing, the only difference being, perhaps, that his women are standing right on the cracks as they open up.

Magical Beings of the Eskimos

By JUDITH YEMEN

Eskimo prints have been on the market for only 13 years and, like the soapstone carvings, can be found around the world. The man responsible for the spread of Eskimo art forms is James Houston, artist and former government employee.

Houston spent more than 10 years in the north and in that time established settled communities of Eskimo artists making a living selling native artifacts in southern markets. Houston has written several books on his Arctic roaming, with the latest one, Eskimo Prints, detailing the growth of printmaking among the Cape Dorset Eskimos.

The book reveals how a simple question put to Houston by a hunter launched the Eskimos into a new artistic medium. They quickly grasped the significance of one stone cut printed 30 times and, since 1957, printmaking for the Cape Dorset community has become its financial mainstay.

Houston's usefulness to the Eskimos was unlimited. They used him as their technical source for making prints, their administrative source for establishing artistic co-operatives, and salesman for their products.

And yet the artistic concept is purely Eskimo. The magical beings who inhabit the seas, the hunters stalking food, the mothers nursing young are cleanly incised onto white backgrounds like intricately carved figures in the snow.

The Eskimos took two native techniques and transposed them into the modern printing process. One process uses the local porous rock, serpentine, which is also used for carvings. The artists carve their art into flat pieces of the rock and prints are taken from the stone cuts. The second method is a by-product of sewing. The Eskimo women decorate their clothing with appliques cut from sealskin. It was discovered by accident that the remnants of sealskin made excellent stencils and another process was born. Eskimo Prints provides a sampling of both techniques.

One of the values of this book is the personal knowledge of each artist revealed by Houston. He has chosen prints done between 1959 and 1965, detailing bits about each artist, something small about the background, and perhaps the reasoning behind the conception of the print.

The scope of the book itself is limited in that only prints from Cape Dorset are used and only those up to 1965. This could be attributed to the author's personal affinity with individuals artists, or he could be indicating, as some observers have, that the Eskimo culture is slowly being eroded and recent art is tainted by electricity and indoor toilets. However, Houston does not explain and it really doesn't matter. The prints and texts are worth having.

A WOMAN'S DILEMMA

Richer Life Worth the Risks?

By MARION JENKINS

At first glance, I was slightly put off by the title of this possibly satirical novel and by the fact that it was written by a man. First impressions often prove wrong.

The story does involve a "romantic heroine," but not a totally unreal person; nor, as a contrast, is her husband wholly "unromantic." At the age of 39, Elizabeth Fielding entertains serious doubts about her role as wife and mother. Seeking release, she decides to take a trip on her own, to think; her husband raises no objection.

Impulsively she chooses as her destination Baden-Baden, where Dostoievsky used to play roulette and ruined himself at the tables. Ironically, this is where the game of risk begins for our heroine.

To this point, Elizabeth's frustrations and attempt to escape domestic tedium do not seem unusual; in fact, the whole action appears romantically humdrum. Yet, when we meet her novelist-husband, we learn that ever since his wife's telephone call to say where she was, Louis Fielding has been creating in his mind a story about her adventure, giving her the leading role. It is this fictional tyrannizing that Elizabeth resents in their relationship.

Gloomy on her arrival home, she sinks into a state of lethargy and procrastination.

She comes to life slowly when the poet she briefly met in Baden-Baden turns up. He is invited by her curious husband to stay indefinitely. Fascinated by his fictional character becoming a reality, Louis observes and admires the confidence, candor and indifference of this utter stranger.

At the same time, Elizabeth begins to wonder who she really is and what her husband is doing: "Supposing; supposing — that what he dreads most, what he puts in his books, is my true life, and this which I live out with him the masquerade."

Naturally flung together while her husband writes, Elizabeth and the poet are given an unexpected chance to escape the novelist's manipulation of them. She chooses to risk everything, including the security of their bourgeois existence: ". . . the bourgeois is the worst kind of fool, one who devotes all his energies to finding ways of not experiencing the reality of his existence . . . he of course can't appreciate that only by risking everything does anything acquire value — and taste."

Her husband, whose life apart from his writing is bourgeois, considers himself rational; yet, with the discovery of his wife's infidelity and her desire to leave the house with the poet, he becomes uncontrollably angry. His characters have "got out of hand — dictating the action, insisting on going in certain directions, whether the author approves or not."

Elizabeth and her poet step out of their realistic surroundings into the romantic world imaged by Louis the novelist. No longer in control, her husband pursues the errant characters whom he set in motion and is caught up in their adventures. With a tragic outcome to this romantic tale, two dazed people emerge: "Kierkegaard said that when you had given up the princess (renunciation) you regained her by virtue of the absurd."

This is a complex, yet fascinating novel. There are so many ironic shadings, such shattering insights into people's natures and their beliefs. To produce such a multi-layered effect, the author uses shifting points of view and sudden transitions from reality into romantic fantasy. Although the threads of the novel are loosely woven, the fabric is kept intact.

The merit of the novel is in the questions raised and the solutions proferred: Should one risk security to taste life fully? What does freedom from the normal involve? Which is our real self and which the fictional? What is the real value of words? What does romanticism mean? Why don't men and women understand each other better?

This is a novel that is more than it seems and worth reading more than once.

CANDID FROTH

Having written the first part of her autobiography at the age of twenty (Coronet Among the Weeds), Charlotte

CORONET AMONG THE GRASS, by Charlotte Bingham. Collins. $6.95.

Bingham continues the next installment in Coronet Among the Grass.

With simplicity of language and informality of tone, she sprints through meaningful events of this second phase of her life. Behind a fictional facade, she tells of her romance with and marriage to the writer and actor, Terence Brady, whom she fictionally calls "Clever Drawers." Their experiences together form the material for the other short chapter.

Other chapters involve the author's view of success ("The point was that no book I had ever read told you about how rude success is . . . "); the difficulties in being a wife, particularly a jealous one; the stages in having a baby (an extremely funny account); the problem of being out of a job and taking on a new one as "playwrights together."

Charlotte Bingham can say a lot in a few chapters by condensing a period of years into memorable moments. The way she says it makes this terse book so delightful.

It is slightly superficial, but the enjoyment lies in another direction — in its youthful spontaneity, frothy humor and candid view of life. — M. J.

Shining Intensity From a Quiet Life

By JOHN GIBSON

Howard Spring's three autobiographical works have, herewith, been bound together as a testament of faith. The complete book delineates the character of the man; it also traces the historical background between the turn of the century and the end of the Second World War.

The young Howard Spring was brought up in the dark, hopeless streets of Cardiff and he paints a brief, poignant picture of his father. "For years, on Sunday nights, we sat around the fire and read. My father sat in his armchair on the right. My mother sat facing him in a low rocking chair. Between them was a long wooden backless bench on which we all sat: my sisters, my brother and I . . . Save for the occasions of the readings, he (my father) was taciturn, morose and reserved, rarely stirring from his fireside chair in the kitchen, where he wrapped himself in aloofness and tobacco smoke. Never, I should think, was there a family which knew less about its own father."

SPRING
. . . looking back

From his father, Howard Spring inherited a Celtic imagination and sense of poetry; he also developed an aloofness towards the groups of writers and intellectuals who tended to limit the absolute freedom and independence of creative thought. He lived by his pen in an era of great change, first as a journalist and later as a novelist.

He was never didactic, but he had known the poor people who lived in a dark, sequestered gloom in South Wales; he had witnessed their hopeless struggles, their early deaths. How does one relate the memory of faces and voices, of little moments of happiness and long sadness, to the swift, clinical flash of a bomb over Hiroshima? In the end, Howard Spring was disenchanted by the antics of the same Western Civilization in which he had had so much faith.

A writer's life is not necessarily exciting. The majority of authors are reclusive; they must distil their experiences and observations in life and transfer the results to paper. The physical effort of writing a hundred thousand words a year is considerable. The occupation is sedentary. Social life can be reduced to those dreadful gatherings known as publishers' cocktail parties. Success is ephemeral, and fame is something that goes on in a distant city and has nothing to do with the tired, thoughtful man who sits in front of a typewriter long after midnight.

Howard Spring was both famous and successful but he went on writing in his Cornish home, never forgetting the past. Of his younger brother, he wrote: "He died of consumption in the flower of his youth. It was arranged by some who were then able to help us that he should take a voyage in a merchant ship for the good of his health. I alone accompanied him to the Cardiff docks when he embarked. There seemed to be no one about in that quiet evening hour, and I stood there on the lip of the dock against which the ship lay for a long time. Then he came, alone, and leaned over the rail, and we talked of this and that, anything to fill the appalling moment . . . And so that was the last I saw of him, leaning there over the dark rail, for he died on that voyage . . ."

Obviously, the advantage of reading a novelist's autobiography is not one of facts but of writing. Howard Spring's life was not filled with drama; it was lived quietly. But the intensity of his thought shines through. The men and women of whom he writes are real people. They cast shadows. This book can be recommended on two planes. It can be read for enjoyment and it should be read by all those who seek to understand more clearly the first, chaotic half of our century.

End of the Zepps

By TORCHY ANDERSON

On May 6, 1937 — if you can remember that far back without tripping over your long white beard — the dream of world air service by lighter-than-air monsters came to a ghastly awakening at Lakehurst, New Jersey. The dream ended when the 800-foot, swastika-branded Hindenburg, buoyed up with seven million cubic feet of hydrogen gas, exploded and burned.

The proud mistress of the air was about to couple to the mooring mast at Lakehurst when flames swept through its vast interior. In minutes there was nothing but twisted red-hot metal and a long list of crew and passengers who had made this last, fatal flight from Germany. Regular service began the year before.

This book, in detail sometimes tedious, traces the history of the Zeppelins from the bombing of London in the First World War to the Nazi version that ended it all.

Great crowds braved the early morning air to watch the Hindenburg arrive with its passengers (at $400 each), its cargo of freight and mail and its two dogs, to make its first American landing of the season.

What caused the explosion? Consensus is that it was a time-bomb inserted into one of the vast gasbags filling the ship's interior. Maybe they are still arguing about the end of the Hindenburg — and the Zepps.

He's Hiding Behind Tax Curtain

By PETER MURRAY

So there's another book about Howard Hughes, authentic this time. Should we care?

Well, yes. Not about Hughes himself, who emerges from these pages as an unlikable sort of fellow, but about the light that's shed on corporate and political wheeler-dealing in America. It's not an edifying picture.

HOWARD: The Amazing Mr. Hughes, by Noah Dietrich. Fawcett paperback. $1.50.

Noah Dietrich is the financial wizard who juggled Hughes' varied interests for 32 years and was as close to the neurotic tycoon as anybody could get.

The rock supporting the Hughes' empire has been the Hughes Tool Company, inherited from his father, which has poured out millions in profits to him as sole owner — more than $285 million in one eight-year period. And he paid not more than $20,000 annually in income taxes as the result of what Dietrich terms the "corporate curtain" shielding him.

Sometimes the artful tax dodges were manipulated by the resourceful Dietrich, and some were opened up as the result of "favors" to people in high places.

In 1957 the U.S. Internal Revenue Service surprisingly reversed an earlier ruling and granted the Hughes Medical Foundation, which owns all the stock in Hughes Aircraft, tax-exempt status.

By coincidence, the month before Hughes had made an unsecured loan of $205,000 to Donald Nixon, the brother of vice-president Richard Nixon, for his failing restaurant business in Whittier, Calif. Dietrich confirms that the loan was made at the personal request of Richard Nixon. Shades of IT and T.

It was not the first time Hughes had bought special treatment in Washington. During the war years fat contracts were won for Hughes Aircraft by providing women and liquor and fancy entertainment for generals and politicians.

Hughes was frank about this side of his business enterprise. "Everybody has a price," Dietrich quotes him as saying. And he was willing to offer that price, Dietrich adds, "to a city councilman or the President of the United States."

His political "contributions" were in the neighborhood of $400,000 a year, and Hughes was never shy about letting the recipients know that he expected a return on his investment.

There's supposed to be a law against this sort of thing in the U.S. but — another loophole — it doesn't apply to contributions from foreign corporations. So a Hughes subsidiary in Canada became the source of the slush funds. Says Dietrich:

"It was a curious operation. Money from the use of Hughes drills in Canada flowed to the Bank of America branch in West Hollywood and thence to politicians' coffers from Sacramento to Washington."

Nice to know we exercised some influence on the decision-making process in America, however indirectly.

And now Hughes sits in lonely fear in his hotel suite in Vancouver. Fear? He's afraid of germs, and the early death he worries they may bring him since the death of his parents in their fifties.

Without probing too deeply, Dietrich makes it clear that Hughes has some deep-seated hangups, of which the bug phobia is only one facet. His coldness has shut off any real personal relationships, only two unsuccessful marriages and scores of brief liaisons with Hollywood starlets and would-be starlets.

His indifference to the feelings and welfare of his employees is notorious. He's never given a cent to charity or loaned money to friends except when there was something in it for him.

He knows nothing about art, music or books, and his limited vocabulary makes him a poor conversationalist. His diet never varies from day to day and his manners are gauche.

All in all, a poor representative of humanity who under other circumstances might be deserving of our pity. But he happens to be one of the richest and financially powerful men in the world.

Smothered in Smugness

Victorians aren't really less intelligent than people in other cities, they just appear to be because they are lazier.

They don't like to flex their muscles or stretch their minds or train their sight on a point further than the day after tomorrow.

And some of them — especially some in official places — have never learned that you have to spend a buck to get a buck-and-a-half, that the good life is composed of something more than sea and shore, trees and flowers, and occasional sunshine.

Currently we are embroiled in what threatens to be annual spring madness — Victorian Days. Which is all right as far as it goes except that the idea seems something of an anachronism in a Canadian decade that has been busy divesting itself of all Englishness, royal symbols and colonialisms.

Still, cliff-hanging on the western rim of the continent as we do, maybe it's in character that we should be a "last outpost."

And I'm sure it's vastly intriguing and amusing to the visitors who come our way in the merry month of May to be reminded of our Victorian period heyday be quaintly costumed ladies and gentlemen and other displays.

My only regret is that at the heart of the mummery there is not a solid core of serious intent to fill, not just a few early-season days but a whole summer with bright, super-attractive activity. The sort of thing that will enhance the good life for residents, cause visitors to linger and lure new flocks to settle in subsequent years.

But at least the members of the Chamber of Commerce are doing something in a city where negativism and lassitude prevail.

It's almost ludicrous to note the speed with which a constructive idea in Victoria is met by protests. They come on cue, automatically and usually for the most selfish of reasons.

They come too from the very people who complain most loudly about the dragging economy, taxes and the need to revitalize the downtown core.

Can you imagine, for example, the reaction if it were suggested that the City of Victoria contribute a third share toward the sponsoring of symphony promenade "pop" concerts through July and August.

Even with the other two-thirds already in view. And even though the city has spent comparable amounts of money for years to bolster less attractive and desirable undertakings.

Presumably there are a good many Victorians who can recall the overwhelming success of the symphony "promenades" at the Butchart Gardens a few years ago. There must be many who know as I do for a fact that those concerts had begun to build a tremendous image across the continent.

Ironically, it was the strain of coping with the thousands who attended that was the principal cause of the Butchart management opting out of the arrangement.

What happened at that time could happen again, although it is not to be denied that the glorious setting of the gardens was a big factor.

But there are other handsome settings and the one presently under consideration — Heritage Court — ranks high in interest and beauty.

It is foolish to under-estimate the power of music — although municipal officials and a lot of other people habitually do so.

People have never, in 2,000 years, desired to live without music.

But the problem here is that Victoria's citizens are smug about their city even though it isn't really all that beautiful or entertaining in comparison to some, nor is our climate truly a banana belt except in comparison to most of the rest of Canada.

The point is that Victoria could easily be made more beautiful, more entertaining, more charming that the considerable tourist industry could be made more considerable and the good life here improved.

So why not aim for the most? Spend the buck and gain the buck-fifty stretch a little. Pool the efforts and the resources and make a big splash instead of a lot of little spatters.

Like, for instance, within five years a total all-out festival summer second to none on the continent.

It could happen here.

Short Version Of 'Superstar'

By RON ROBINSON
CJVI Program Director

One of the hottest box office attractions in North America today is coming to Victoria. Before it opened this week in Vancouver the touring production of "Jesus Christ, Superstar" had registered an advance sale there of 20,000 tickets! It plays for another week at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre — 12 performances in all — before moving into Memorial Arena here for just one show, Sunday, May 28 at 7 p.m.

Before you line up at the Arena box office you should know that tickets are scaled from $7 to $5. If you're still interested please be aware that this is not the lavish Broadway production you may have read about or seen photos of. What you will see is what the promoters call "the original concert presentation from the cast album, with soloists, chorus, rock band and full orchestra."

And it runs for less than 90 minutes, exactly the length of the record album.

But I understand it's a worthwhile show, with adequate if not spectacular cast talent, in a competent performance. If you've been turned on by the music, go see it!

NATIONAL BALLET ON TOUR

A 40-foot container weighing 50,000 pounds and filled with scenery, costumes, wigs and two linoleum floors arrived at the port of Felixstowe in England last week.

There it awaited trucking to London's Coliseum Theatre.

The consignment is part of a total cargo of some 60,000 pounds — the rest followed by air later — which will furnish all the requirements of the National Ballet of Canada on its two-month European tour which began Wednesday.

The 85-member company — including production, technical and administrative personnel as well as performers — left Toronto Sunday after a feverish nine months of preparation.

Thirty-five performances will be given on the tour, including the cities of London, Stuttgart, Brussels, Glasgow, Lausanne, Paris and Monte Carlo.

The repertoire consists of 10 ballets. These are Les Sylphides, The Mirror Walkers, Intermezzo, Fandango, The Judgment of Paris, Kraanerg, Swan Lake and Session and Evocation.

Equipment includes 1,200 pairs of pointe shoes. Each dancer uses two pairs a week and soloists and principal dancers require more.

The dance floors are cut from battleship linoleum to fit European theatres and specially treated.

An important task has been the flameproofing of all stage equipment and costumes in order to meet the stringent fire-prevention rules governing theatre in Europe.

"They don't fool around," says stage manager Bill Warnke. "They will literally hold a lighted match against stage material to see if we've done our job properly.

Bach Choir Here June 10

The noted Vancouver Bach Choir of approximately 100 voices, conducted by Vancouver Symphony associate conductor Simon Streatfeild, will visit Victoria next month.

Under auspices of the Victoria Symphony Women's Committee and Laszlo Gati, the choir will present a mixed program at Christ Church Cathedral, June 10.

Tickets are available now at Eaton's box office, Western Music and the Piccadilly Shop.

A Tragedy Of the City

Two film reviews

By WAYNE HARDING

By its modest demeanor — the admen would call it low profile — Frank Gilroy's film Desperate Characters is fated never to be recognized as a great motion picture. But it is certain to be cited for many years to come as an example of some of the finest film craftsmanship of our time.

The film-play deals with the moral and human tragedy of urban America as it is reflected in the lives of an over-30s couple — a man and woman, like so many others, whose affluence is matched by the emptiness of their souls and whose articulation is muted by the terror of the world around them.

That terror and the facelessness of the city — in this case New York City — are a constant part of their lives and they have learned to live with it. Their own personal tragedy — the failure of their marriage and the meaninglessness of their lives — is like a baroque jewel reflecting this menacing environment.

Writers, philosophers and filmmakers by the thousands have tackled this subject but few have defined it as finely as has the talented team who have created Desperate Characters.

Shirley MacLaine is outstanding in her role as the matron at the centre of this tragedy which is, at once, personal and universal. Her characterization is subtle and many-sided yet sharp and neat as a surgeon's incision.

Camera-work, editing, story development — almost every aspect of this film demonstrate a quality of workmanship both bold and delicate.

The only failing of the film is its occasional "stageyness" — no great sin for a work that accomplishes so much.

For those of us who grow weary of seeing films dealing with how rotten it is to be young in this world of violence, dehumanization and falsehood, Desperate Characters is a welcome relief as it masterfully deals with the subject of how rotten it is to be in that very same world and be middle-aged.

Unfortunately, this opportunity will be denied many Victoria residents. Desperate Characters, which more or less snuck into town a couple of weeks ago, left with even less notice two days ago. Our hope is that it will return once it has accumulated the acclaim it deserves.

'Groundstar' Grounded

The super slick film fantasies of espionage have standards all their own. After all, you don't measure plastic in carats.

So it is with The Groundstar Conspiracy, a new spy thriller directed by Lemont Johnson and filmed last year in British Columbia.

Of course, the criteria of such entertainments are those laid down in the James Bond films of the '60s. They demand emphasis on pace, gimmickery and setting and don't bother much with plot or personalities.

Even by these standards, The Groundstar Conspiracy has some troubles.

The story — of an accused spy's struggle to find the secrets of his own brain which has been thoroughly laundered by a Machiavellian counterspy — moves along at a wholesome pace, and doesn't even slow down when it comes to contradictions or plot faults, of which there are many.

The plot of The Groundstar Conspiracy is so thin one cannot help wonder why the product was not packaged into an hour-long television play. One could be more charitable not having to bother to go out to a movie house and pay admission.

Screenwriter Matthew Howard also has fulfilled what we have come to expect of this genre, by peopling his film with amazingly shallow characters. These roles place virtually no demand upon the cast led by George Peppard, as the counterspy. Michael Sarrazin, as the accused villain, and Christine Belford, whose job seems to be to serve as a pretty face to relieve the monotony of the whole venture.

The Groundstar Conspiracy does, at one point, try to grapple with one relatively serious matter — the question of individual rights being undermined by the interests of a nation's security — but the subject proves too heavy a load for this lightweight drama and it is simply dropped as the film trips along to its inevitable and happy conclusion.

For British Columbians, the game of picking out the backdrops — Simon Fraser University, Long Beach, the North Shore waterfront, Vancouver's West End — is sort of fun and often much more entertaining than following the humdrum dramatics.

'Hard Core' Jazz Returns

By JOHN S. WILSON

NEW YORK — This time the signs that suggest that jazz may be moving out of the doldrums in which it has been sunk for the past 10 years may not be as illusory as they have been so many times before. They are now appearing in so many different forms that each one tends to support the others.

It is not just the fact that jazz is being played in an increasing numberof places in New York. We have seen little boomlets like that and all they did was go boom. It is not even the fact that the kind of rock-flavored jazz with which Miles Davis has been attracting rock-oriented audiences has been picked up and developed by Mahavishnu John McLaughlin, is still pulling at that same audience.

What is more convincing in terms of audience response is the discovery of such hard core, unadulterated jazz veterans as Sonny Rollins and Charles Mingus by the predominantly young listeners who have been packing the Village Vanguard whenever they appear there.

There have been a few record labels and producers who have stayed with jazz even when the stream was running very thin — Impulse, Flying Dutchman, Blue Note, Prestige, CTI, Milestone, Biograph as well as Atlantic and Columbia (not to mention the small, specialist mail-order labels) and producers such as Bob Thiele, Orrin Keepnews, Creed Taylor and Don Schlitten.

But now some very knowledgeable jazz recording men are coming back into the picture. Bob Shad, one of the most astute men in jazz and blues recording during the last 25 years has revived his Mainstream label and is pouring out five LPs a month, giving equal play to well-known names (Dizzy Gillespie, Clark Terry, Sara Vaughan, Blue Mitchell) and to relative unknowns (Charles Williams, Hadley Caliman, Hal Galper).

Milt Gabler, who founded the first jazz label in the United States, Commodore Records, in 1938 but who has spent the past 30 years as a Decca executive, is getting back into jazz, preparing reissues of his Commodore catalogue which will be released through Atlantic Records, along with new jazz sessions that Gabler may produce.

At the same time, a wave of re-issues has made jazz records of the past — distant and not so distant — available once again. The excellent series of sessions produced a decade ago by Nat Hentoff for the Candid label, so shortlived that the records disappeared almost as soon as they were issued, are now being released by Barnaby Records. Prestige Records is dipping into the invaluable catalogue it has built up since the early '50s for a series of two-disc re-issue sets. Columbia's re-issue series, the keystone of which is the five double-disc set complete collection of Bessie Smith, continues by fits and starts.

COMING UP NEXT WEEK

Provincial finals in high school drama end tonight at McPherson Playhouse. Moliere's Doctor in Spite of Himself is being presented by North Peace Senior Secondary to end the competitive section of the festival. Two complimentary entries, one from Kamloops and one from Victoria Senior Secondary, complete the program. Curtain at 8 p.m.

On Sunday the McPherson will host an out-of-town choir when the Orange Coast College Chorale presents a concert as part of its annual spring tour.

This is the second trip to the Pacific Northwest and Canada for the Southern California college group. Their program ranges widely from religious to rock numbers accompanied by instrumental ensemble. The concert begins at 7 p.m.

Wednesday through Saturday, with a 3 p.m. matinee on the last day, a variety show, Victorian Days Salute to Britain, will be the entertainment highlight at McPherson Playhouse. Curtain is at 8 p.m.

End Products of a Hobby

A placard on a slender iron easel in the middle of the Victoria Crafts Showcase explains the purpose of the exhibition:

". . . not to establish a display restricted purely to top professional standards but rather to choose a survey which indicates the total range and present state of crafts production here;" thus giving "a strong measure of encouragement to the rapidly increasing number of people engaged in it."

Had a show faithful to top standards been selected from the work submitted to this juried exhibition, the show would have been a small one. Had there been only top work on display, the show might have had some negative effect, inviting the self-depreciating response of . . ." How can I equal this artisan's achievement? Sigh. What's the use in trying?"

Truly, the annual crafts showcase at the Public Gallery is one of the more popular shows in Victoria with countless people in the audience involved in a crafts production that is characterized not by competition, but by the need to fill hobby hours creatively.

The Arts and Crafts movement begun by William Morris in 19th century England, as a reaction to the impersonally mass produced objects of the industrial revolution, is held by Alan Gowans, head of Uvic's art history department, to be the only valid art movement in this century.

For Gowans, a valid art movement is broadly based and popular social phenomenon as opposed to the dinosaur superstructure of fine arts.

Drafts Showcase abounds with touch-tempting textiles, weaving, macrame, stitchery, hooked rugs and batiks, Batik dress material clothes department store mannekins, and a $15 batik silk scarf has been used as a table drape for a display of pottery. One rug was on the floor, the rest hang from the wall.

A piece of stitchery by Carole Sabiston, entitled Prima Vera, was purchased by patron and presented to the gallery's permanent collection. Too lavishly baroque for my taste, the wall-hanging showed three smug figures with a basketful of gems, in actuality drilled glass bobbles stiched on to stitches.

(The New Embroidery Guild, which is dedicated to embroidery as an art form, will be doing demonstrations this coming week Tuesday through Friday from 1 p.m. until 4.)

A batik still-life by Doreen Defresne was unique among the textiles in that it attempted representation and succeeded. A double boiler pot on an arborite counter, with steam iron, came across quite well in the liquid line and soft-edged color of the batik process. "Still Life" was more relative to painting than textile design.

Howard Quinn exhibits a coffee table of art nouveau styling with greenery-filled planters incorporated into the wings of the marble top.

Prizes were awarded to Mel Munson for glass sculpture, to Barbara Hunter for weaving, and to Michael Richardson for his textured pots, pottery which compares easily to an exhibition of Japanese ceramics on display at the Public Gallery in Vancouver. Michael Richardson, while working on a smaller scale, has the same restless need for new qualities and meaning.

On Sunday, the Showcase, which is the Victoria Community Arts Council's contribution to Vicorian Day, will be supplemented by two concerts; The Robert Windquist String Quartet at one P.M. followed by the Bastion Studio Ensemble at 3.

Of those members of the Community Arts Council involved in producing the show Kathy Dickerson distinguished herself. Almost singlehandedly, leaving the gallery staff amazed on the sidelines, she set up the interior display case and hung the show.

In the gallery room next to showcase is a show circulated by the National Gallery, Conceptual Art by Les Levine. The catalogue for this exhibition, written by Levine, reads as one of the best documents on conceptual art I have read.

Art is information. And Levine gives us photo documents. Reception, a folio of eight process lighographic prints reproduces a wedding invitation and the 245 photos taken with instamatic flash cameras by the guests at the reception, held in Levine's New York Restaurant. All photos are bland but are made vibrant by irredecent printing inks.

Levine documents his restaurant, his magazine called Culture Hero and he indulges in witty plays on the word art.

The sombre show of paintings by Montreal impressionist Adrian Herbert will be taken down this coming week so that Colin Graham, who will host 250 members of the Canadian Museums Association, can display the best works in in the Victoria collection to his professional colleagues. This show, comprised of the director's peacock feathers, will be worth seeing.

THEATRE SCHOOL

The seventh annual summer school has been announced by Bastion Theatre, to take place between July 10 and 29.

A team of specialists in the fields of mime, voice and movement is being assembled by artistic director of the Stuidio Company, Colin Gorrie.

There will be four age groups; seven to 11, 12 to 14, secondary school students and adults.

Classes in each category will be held three times a week, the sessions being one-and-a-half hours for the youngest group and two hours for all others. Secondary students and adult classes will be held in the evenings.

Gorrie, an architect by training, earned his way through university as a professional actor and later turned to full-time professional theatre.

He was one of four chosen by the Ontario Arts Council to work and study with leading English repertory companies and was assigned to the famous Liverpool Repertory Theatre where he directed two major productions.

Returning to Canada, he established a theatre group in Kitchener and conducted a youth theatre summer program sponsored by the Ontario government, before coming to Bastion Theatre to direct the studio theatre and school.

Conservatory Show

The current musical focus is on end-of-the-year recitals by faculty and senior students of the Victoria Conservatory of Music at Craigdarroch Castle.

Thursday at 8 p.m. an event of more than ordinary interest takes place with the appearance of a chamber group of young but experienced performers under the title, Gneizendorf Quartet.

Members are violinists Robert Winquist, and Roderick Booth, violist Elizabeth Bredberg and cellist Bruce Turkington.

Sharing the program will be soprano Lorraine Gorrell and harpsichordist Peggy Palmer.

The program will consist of the Haydn "Lark" Quartet, D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Vivaldi's Stabat Mater and Beethoven's Op. 74 Quartet in E flat major, "The Harp."

Pot Legislation Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal House Leader Allan MacEachen replied "no" Friday when asked in the Commons whether there would be legislation in the near future on cannabis.

Georges Valade (PC — Montreal Ste. Marie) had asked whether the legislation was planned in view of the recent Le Dain report on the non-medical use of drugs. It recommended an end to penalties for possession of marijuana.

Excitement Gone From Sailing

VANCOUVER (CP) — For the modern sailor, life on the bounding main can be one big bore.

And Captain Dag Hulten is yawning as much as anyone. Captain Hulten is skipper of one of the new breed of ships—the Antonia Johnson—sleek, modern and efficient and stacked from stem to stern with the new symbol of the shipping revolution, the container.

The Swedish ship docked recently in Vancouver on her maiden voyage.

"On modern ships like this, there's not much to do," Captain Hulten said as he showed visitors around the ship.

"We could run the ship with six men instead of the 32 we now have on board," he said. "Of course, it wouldn't be as safe.

"Running a modern ship is almost as simple as driving a car."

Even the ship's wheel, classic feature of the bridge, is almost a thing of the past because of engineering advances.

"Silly engineers wanted to replace it with buttons," Captain Hulten said with a smile. "But there wasn't enough control over the ship."

Why is the captain bored?

WORK MOSTLY ON PAPER

"Once the paper work is done, there's not much to do," he said.

On most days, Captain Hulter said, his day starts at seven, when he rises, makes a quick check of the night watch and then eats breakfast.

"As the ship is modern," he said, "almost all of us can eat together."

During the meal, one or two men are on duty on the bridge, with another man in the engine room.

"Most of the time, the man in the engine room just sits around and reads a book," Captain Hulten said.

After breakfast comes the real work of the day—paper work.

"I have so many reports to make out. How the ship is sailing, what the engine is like, how the steering is." Lunch breaks the monotony.

"We often have good talks at luncheon," Captain Hulten said.

The captain's office is his prize, stacked with books and an expensive phonograph.

"This is what I do in the afternoon," he said. "I read in French, Spanish and German, as well as English and Swedish."

From his description of life at sea, the captain's job seemed no more exciting than that of a librarian or office worker.

"It's not like the days of the sailing ship," said Captain Hulten, who trained on square-riggers when he was 16.

"You couldn't stand at the wheel and think of your girl. You had to be alert, watching the sails all the time."

But at times, he said, a captain's life is an active one, even on a modern ship.

"Occasionally there are difficulties. On the North Sea, I have to be on the bridge most of the time because the traffic is so dense."

But for the most part, the automated bridge and engine room does most of the captain's thinking for him.

BRITISH TRADE WEEK

Perennial favorite for so many fine wardrobe items. Ideal for comfortable practical men's shirts.

There's an eye grabbing look about a Deacon Viyella that brings out "the Man" in your man.

Maybe it's the rich fashion colour range of imported Viyella.

Or the soft texture of its unique lambswool and cotton blend.

Then again, it could be the painstaking care in styling detail by those master sport shirt makers, Deacon Brothers.

But whatever it is, a Deacon Viyella is an investment in fashionable good taste.

In the jargon of the day, cut-out right now and come and see them.

We have your favorite tartan, out-of-the-ordinary checks, or go-with-anything solids.

Frogs Draw Crowds

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (UPI) — More than 70,000 persons were expected to jam into this tiny gold rush community today for the century-old International Jumping Frog Jubilee patterned after Mark Twain's short story "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

A vanguard of about 200 police and security officers arrived Thursday for the start of the frog jumping contest.

The additional officers were brought in to prevent a recurrence of violence which marred last year's event. One person died, more than 100 were injured and 62 were arrested in the disorder.

Police said "things were normal" in the community Friday.

"But things will pick up during the weekend," one officer said.

About 3,000 frogs, including entries from 14 foreign countries, will compete for cash prizes. If a frog breaks the world record jump of 19 feet 3⅛ inches set in 1966, its owner will receive a $1,000 prize.

Some local officials blamed motorcycle gang members for sparking last year's trouble. Calaveras County sheriff said more than 2,000 motorcyclists are expected in town during the weekend.

GM Opposition Soundly Beaten

DETROIT (AP)—Reformers seeking to study General Motors Corp. activity in South Africa, to add public influence to GM decision making and to initiate a company study of breaking up the giant automaker were overwhelmingly defeated at the GM annual meeting Friday.

But the Project on Corporate Responsibility, which made its third foray against the world's largest industrial concern, went away with a word of praise from GM Chairman Richard Gerstenberg.

"We've changed directions in a number of ways, some of which were hastened by groups like the Project," Gerstenberg told a news conference after the six-hour meeting.

The Project had put two proposals before the meeting. One would have required the GM public policy committee—a committee of the board of directors established by GM in 1970 to hold four annual public hearings in various cities. The proposal received 2.6 million shareholder votes, 1.12 per cent of the total cast.

A second proposal, which would have ordered the board to study the feasibility of splitting GM into two or more competing firms, fared worse, getting 1.04 per cent of the votes.

A resolution calling for detailed information on GM activities in South Africa, particularly as they affect the employment of non-whites, was put forward by a coalition of church groups, led by the Episcopal (Anglican) Church. The resolution was backed by 2.34 per cent of the votes.

Son Stabs Father In Prison

LEWISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — A former army sergeant serving a 35-year term for conspiring to give secrets to the Russians was stabbed to death Thursday by his son who visited him at the federal penitentiary.

Robert Lee Johnson, 56, was brought into the prison's open visiting quarters to see his son for the first time in years, prison officials said. As he entered the room, he son, a Vietnam war veteran, lunged at his fathr with a knife, stabbing him in the chest.

Johnson died an hour later in the emergency room at Geisinger Medical Center.

Robert L. Jr., 22, Greenwood, Ind., was disarmed immediately by prison guards. He was taken to Williamsport, Pa., by FBI agents where he was arraigned on a first degree murder charge.

AN UPSIDE-DOWN BANNER doesn't take away from the charm of SPOTS (Saanich Police Organization of Teenagers) new queen. Brenda Fee of Royal Oak Junior Secondary was crowned this year's queen at a SPOT dance Friday night. Saanich policeman Bob Pringle gives the crowning his careful attention.

Board-a-Convict Eyed for All

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's plan to board convicts nearing the end of prison terms in the homes of elderly pensioners may be extended to all age groups, Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer has indicated.

He told the Commons that pensioners' associations in Vancouver "were quasi-unanimous in their support of the program" but asked that it be extended to all age groups. The government was considering that suggestion.

Military Activity Steady Around 'Forgotten Sea'

By MORT ROSENBLUM

PORT LOUIS, Mauritius (AP) — American pilots shuttled tomatoes to an island base, while off-duty British navy men pitch darts and Soviet officers keep a wary eye on allied movements on the ocean once known as the forgotten sea.

The Indian Ocean may not be a trouble spot at the moment, but it is hardly forgotten.

Russian warships started ranging the ocean in the late 1960s, and the big powers have been tailing each other ever since from underwater, in the air and on the surface.

American and British technicians are building a super-sensitive communications base at Diego Garcia, a hook-shaped island 1,000 miles south of India.

About 1,000 Americans are now on the island, with local inhabitants dispersed to British possessions hundreds of miles away. Regular flights from Bangkok and here supply the base with food and other necessities.

Although Britain cut back its forces east of the Suez, the Royal Air Force services 350 aircraft movements a month at Gan, a leased island 400 miles West of Ceylon.

Top-secret messages are relayed from the Indian Ocean to London by the British communications centre on this independent island far off the African coast.

About 150 Americans run a satellite tracking station in the Seychelles, a British colony north of here.

Britain wanted to build an airbase on the edge of the Seychelles at Aldabra but conservationists concerned about a disappearing turtle species there blocked the project.

The Soviet Union keeps up to 25 warships at a time in the ocean which stretches from the Straits of Malacca to the southern tip of Africa.

Most Russians ships are destroyers, submarines and tenders, but occasionally a bulking cruiser joins in. Countless Soviet scientific vessels and trawlers bristling with antennas roam the vast sea.

Britain supports her contribution to South African military strength on grounds that the Simonstown base near the Cape is vital to defence against the Soviet navy.

The United States' 7th Fleet entered the Indian Ocean in December behind the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise during the India-Pakistan war.

The Pacific fleet has been busy in Indochina recently but military sources in Singapore and in the Indian Ocean expect more American traffic in the area.

Despite calls from Ceylon to declare the ocean a "zone of peace" anyone's navy can find a place to stop with little difficulty.

UVic Convocation Set, 870 to Get Degrees

The University's ninth annual convocation will be held at Victoria Memorial Arena Saturday, May 27 at 2 p.m., with a total of 870 degrees to be awarded.

Honorary degrees, LL.D., are to be awarded to Dr. Jean S. Boggs, director of the National Gallery of Canada, Ottawa; Sir Hugh Springer, secretary-general of the Association of Commonwealth Universities, London; and Robert T. Wallace, former UVic vice-president.

The UVic Senate has selected Garry Patrick Woods, 3051 Sooke Road, as recipient of the Dr. Maxwell Cameron Memorial Award for being the student with the highest standing in general proficiency with a first-class standing in practice teaching in the B.Ed. Elementary Program.

Terence Arthur Slater, 2649 Selwyn Road, is to receive the Governor-General's Gold Medal. The senate also accorded honorable mention to James Harry Alexander, Apt. 3, 2440 Foul Bay Road.

Woods and Slater will receive their awards during the convocatiin ceremonies.

Graduation activities are to start Friday evening at 7 p.m. with a Baccalaureate Service at Christ Church Cathedral conducted by the Very Reverend Brian Whitlow, D.D.

Following the service the Grad Party will be held in the Commons dining room for graduating students and their parents.

A reception for graduates and students will be held in the Commons dining room at 4 p.m. Saturday, following the convocatiin ceremonies. The Grad Ball will be held at 9 p.m. Saturday, also in the Commons dining room.

SENATOR IMPRESSED BY CHINA TOUR

OTTAWA (CP) — Chinese laundry and Chairman Mao got high marks in the Senate Thursday from Muriel Fergusson (L—New Brunswick).

Commenting on a recent trip to China with other senators and a group of businessmen, Senator Fergusson enthused over "sparkling white" slip covers protecting seats on Chinese trains.

They "must be laundered every day," she said. And the same applied to the lace antimacassars over the slip covers to guard against hair grease.

Senator Fergusson described at length the friendly, open demeanor she noticed in the Chinese people. She said she was touched by children in a Chinese kindergarten when they said goodbye to their "Canadian aunties and uncles" at the end of the tour.

She said there are some rules set out by Chairman Mao Tse Tung that senators would disagree with, particularly those opposing "imperialism."

But there was a list of rules set out for men and women in the Chinese forces by Mao that might well applied with benefit elsewhere.

These Senator Fergusson listed: Speak politely, pay fairly for what you buy, return borrowed things, pay for anything damaged, don't hit or swear, don't damage crops and don't hurt women.

Senator Fergusson said she thought some senators might accuse her of having been brainwashed as a result of her remarks.

That wasn't so, she said. At 76, she was too old for that sort of thing.

Kierans Sees Recession In Budget

MONTREAL (CP) — Eric Kierans, former federal communications minister, says the recent feceral budget bribes businessmen to buy machines rather than invest in labor and it will probably lead to a depression or recession in three years.

The budget is a "short-run proposal," particularly weak in its introduction of a two-year tax write-off on machinery, he told the inaugural ulty of commerce businessmen's council at Loyola College.

Wonderful World of Animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: When you put out good money for an imported chameleon — this is the genuine kind, it's called a Jackson — how do you know you are getting one that is healthy? And how do you know when the temperature is right for it? — R.C.

DEAR R.C.: Chamaeleo jacksoni, when in poor health, would probably show some of the following signs: Sunken and-or dull eyes, diarrhea, swollen or discolored areas, some inco-ordination of tongue, limbs or tail, and generally skinniness. A healthy chameleon has comparatively vigorous movements, a strong tail, and a good grip to its feet. Since he hails from high, tropical rain forests in Kenya, Africa, the jacksoni can handle some temperature fluctuations from an average of about 70 degrees during the day down to 50 at night. Extremes could range from 45 at night to 85 in the daytime, but why stretch it?

DEAR DR. MILLER: An elephant (book end) fell on my dog's leg. It's been weak ever since but it wasn't broken. Would massage help strengthen the muscles? — P.Y.

DEAR P.Y.: Properly administered massage aids in relaxing muscles and it does mechanically assist circulation through the area. However, massage will not strengthen muscles. They are best strengthened by a progressive exercise (use).

DEAR DR. Miller: I have switched my cat over to one of those commercial high protein cat foods and I am also giving him a few meat scraps which are actually pretty high in fat but he loves them. With this change in diet I am giving him half of one of my vitamin B-1 tablets a day too. This seems to help him. Is that good? — M.D.

DEAR M.D.: Help him what? Though I presume it is good if it does . . . ? The B-1 addition at least shouldn't do him any harm, though I don't know why it would do him any particular good, either, on the diet described. Quality commercial cat foods all contain adequate thiamine. Besides, the need for thiamine in the diet is increased proportionately over the increase in carbohydrates.

Your feline's fare is headed in the opposite direction with developed carbohydrates in the diet. So he would need even less than the normal amount of B-1. Because this vitamin can't be stored, surplus would be quickly eliminated from the body.

All-Weather Path Essential to Garden Pleasures

A typical spring day; bright sunshine, billowing clouds on the horizon, and a light breeze to stir the foliage.

Our hostess was saying: "I had hoped to have lunch on the patio, but after a rain such as we had last night you need rubber boots to go back and forth across the lawn!"

Imagination Only Limitation

GARDENING
jack beastall

Another way of saying "We have a beautiful spot for a day like this if we only had suitable access."

All-weather paths to every part of the garden are necessary if we wish to capitalize on the pleasures that should be the reward for our labors. Too many gardens remain unvisited from November to March because suitable pathways have been omitted.

An all-weather path is one that can be traversed regardless of heat, rain, snow or ice. Considering cost and permanence, cement gives the most satisfactory all-weather path.

Many gardeners are adverse to the use of cement, and there is no doubt that stone slabs would look more natural but the cost is beyond the budget of most one-lot property owners.

The design of paths needs considerable thought before the actual building begins. Since paths are usually built during reasonably fair weather the removal of snow is often forgotten.

Stepping stones, while ideal amongst shrubbery and other plantings, are not easily cleaned of snow to provide a main access path, nor is it possible to clear paths with herbs growingin cracks.

The path most commonly seen is similar to fig. 1 in the sketch. This one is made of the prefabricated path or patio blocks discussed two weeks ago in this column, and is laid in the same way.

Any deviation from a straight line is provided by the useof 45 degree slabs as shown.

Figure 2 shows a more imaginative use of the blocks. One garden owner overcame the monotony of a straight line by inserting at reasonable intervals the 20-inch planters (fig. 3) in place of the centre blocks and widening the design at these points. The planters contained heathers in winter and a geranium and lobelia in summer. The over-all effect was striking.

Other designs can be worked out to suit the general garden layout. In fact, once the imagination is triggered, possibilities seem unlimited. But always remember, the simple design gives the greatest pleasure over the longest period of time.

The 45-degree paving blocks have other uses. Four make a semi-circle, while eight complete a circle with central approximately 24 inches across.

A semi-circle is useful in front of a seat or as a base for a bird bath or ornament against a wall or fence. The full circle will surround a small ornamental tree (fig. 4) but for this purpose no plastic is used because of its detrimental effects on tree roots.

When used around a tree or shrub it is wise not to cement the blocks together in case the plant should have to be removed, or requires watering over a greater root area. Set the blocks on the usual two-inch layer of sand and force each block inwards to the centre to make the joints tight.

Eight 45-degree blocks and four squares will give a planting bed 2 ft. by 5 ft. as shown in fig. 5. This size can be increased by using extra squares at each end and along the sides.

Instead of earth in the centre for plants, we can substitute water by using one of the heavy plastic pool kits.

Reflecting pools, the most restful of garden ornaments, have never been explointed in the home gardens of Western Canada.

Dark material for the base makes the still water into mirror, the pool being placed to reflect a particularly restful scene when viewed from the regular sitting place.

Edged planters can be used in various spots, such as along the perimeter of a patio as shown in figure 6.

The edging is made from prefabricated cement curbs of which there are several different sizes for use on parking lots, as driveway borders, or edgings for paths skirting a flower bed.

The most useful for the home gardener will be the three-foot lengths (shown in 6) which are about five inches high when set. These are not reinforced as are the six and eight-foot lengths.

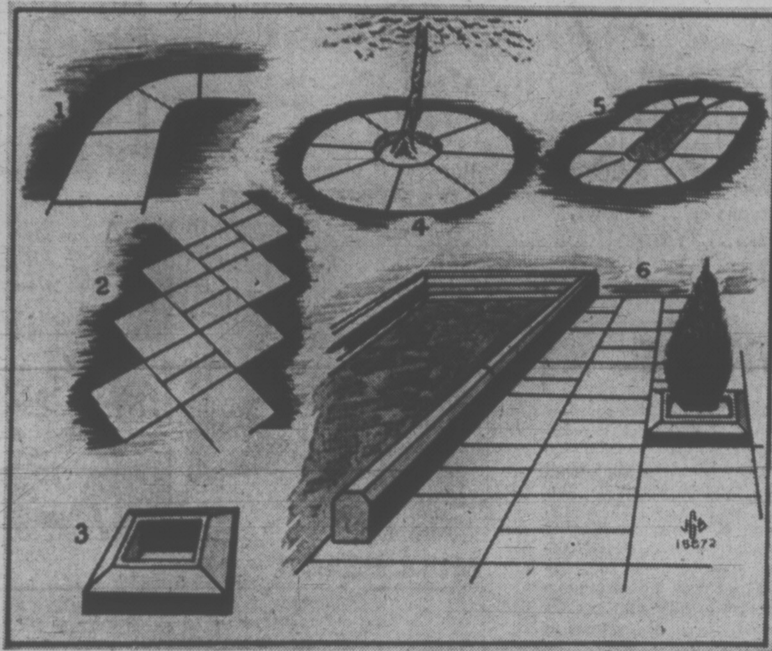
Here again, with water instead of soil we have a lily pool that would enhance many patios, especially when the square planter (fig. 3) is used here and there along the edge for bamboo, cattails or other swamp plants.

This same planter is shown in fig. 6 inserted in the floor of a patio to hold a specimen plant, and it can also be used at the base of ornamental block pillars for planting climbers.

These planters are actually prefabricated chimney caps 20 inches square outside with a centre opening about 14 inches square. For a slightly larger opening the cement flue liner can be used.

The greatest difficulty in working out this series of illustrated articles has been to limit the ideas to those best suited to a small garden and of easy construction by the average handyman with a few ordinary tools.

The dozens of sketches that have evolved from one simple idea as the possibilities and alternative designs were developed have led to the conclusion that prefabricated cement products are adapted for use in any type of garden, formal or informal, large or small.



WORK FOR WEEK

By JACK BEASTALL

If weather suitable (night temperature 50 deg. F.) put out potted chrysanthemums into ground; plant geraniums if hardened, and bedding plants if properly hardened.

As outdoor Hydrangea hortensis varieties develop flower heads, water freely and give 6-8-6 feed if necessary.

Tuberous begonias from January-sown seed should be in 4-inch pots ready for August flowering. Use leaf-mould, compost, old manure and sand.

Repot young fuchsias from spring cuttings. Encourage growths by pinching all tips out until second week of June. Feed weak alginure at each watering if in well-drained baskets.

Sow seed indoors of semi-tropical annuals such as celosia and amaranthus.

Carefully pick off faded camellia and rhododendron blooms, especially from small plants. Don't damage growth buds behind blossoms.

Sow dwarf beans and runner beans if weather warming.

Sow beet seed, New Zealand spinach, more lettuce, radish.

Gooseberry and currant bushes will have fruits improved if soil around is mulched now to hold moisture.

If a coldframe vacant, plant 3 or 4 tomatoes into ground. You can use cover at night and whenever necessary to bring the plants along more quickly. Give good depth by digging and replacing with compost.

Seeds must be made firm in soil by gently pressing after sowing. Contact necessary for germination and strong roots.

Italy's Venerable Black Market Thriving

By DON M. LARRIMORE

NAPLES (WP) — While the number of ordinary sightseers to squalid, traffic-jammed Naples has dwindled to a trickle, bargain-hunters by the hundreds of thousands still flood into the maze — an area of clogged, narrow streets which starts a few steps from the main railroad station and is the site of the oldest black market in Italy.

On a recent morning in the complex of alleyways known as Via Duchesca and Via Forcella, at prices as low as one-half those charged by normal retail outlets, these new items were on sale: refrigerators, washing machines, televisions, tape recorders, typewriters, cameras, U.S. Army camping gear, furniture, liquor, hair dryers, automobile parts, linen, crockery, rugs lamps and ski boots.

The Neapolitan version of "I can get it for you wholesale" operates in a myriad of devious ways often in brazen contempt for the law. This dates back at least to the legendary and never-solved theft of a fully-loaded Allied freighter from its mooring in the Bay of Naples at the end of the Second World War.

Among the quaintest current techniques is the do-it-yourself approach. Knowledgeable local residents boast of one clandestine Naples area "factory" which produces great quantities of a best-selling American whisky (Johnnie Walker), authentic only for its bottle and label.

Another establishment turns out Danish (Tuborg) beer, which is actually cheap Italian beer in apparently genuine bottles.

One particularly thriving business is in male contraceptives with phoney American labels.

According to a recent survey by the Turin newspaper La Stampa, nearly one-fifth of all personal income in Naples comes from "contrabando," the Italian term for black market products.

"That stuff is really big business," a Neapolitan acquaintance remarked.

"Let's say a factory up near Milan (500 miles north) has its warehouse filled with a batch of slightly defective refrigerators which it can't — or wouldn't — sell. Word gets around, and a dealer from Naples arrives and offers immediate cash to take the stuff off their hands. Of course, his price is a fraction of retail, but something's better than nothing. That might be the kind of refrigerator you get for a song in Via Duchesca."

Or it might be part of a shipment of stolen goods reaching Naples through "diversion," a technique practised as enthusiastically in Italy as at U.S. military installations in Vietnam.

An employee may leave a warehouse door open at night, or falsify sales records, or turn merchandise over to accomplices while on a delivery run and report to the factory that his truck was robbed.

The latest government statistics show that a theft occurs in Italy every 57 seconds. It's assumed that most of the items hawked by the omnipresent street peddlers are stolen.

In Naples, local legend has it that if a product isn't available in the "thieves' market" of Via Forcella, it can be stolen to order. They say that for a particularly difficult item, a customer may have to wait as long as 48 hours.

Black-market bargains may also be the fruit of the traditional Italian business practice of "time-buying." Under this system, a distributor orders a delivery from the factory, making a small down payment and signing a series of promissory notes for the remainder. If he then defaults on payments, the factory may agree to accept a fractional cash settlement rather than go through the protracted court process. There are more than 800,000 such cases currently awaiting trial in Italy.

In state-controlled tobacco shops, popular American, British, German and Swiss cigarettes sell for 75 cents or 85 cents a pack. On the black market, the price is about 50 cents. As a result, foreign cigarettes smoked in Italy are bought from black marketeers. No city or town in the country is without its flocks of street vendors with their collapsible cigarette stands or bulging suitcases.

One friendly old lady, a fixture near a famous Rome piazza, was asked recently where her Kents and Marlboros came from. "Ah, signore, you know they come from the sea," she said with a wizened twinkle. "Why should we pay all that tax to the government ——" The customs duty, in fact, accounts for more than 80 per cent of the sales price for legally retailed cigarettes.

Why don't police round up the black marketeers?

Perhaps once every six months the police do raid the Via Duchesca-Via Forcella black market. With great fanfare, police vans surround the entire area, ready to swoop in.

Mysteriously, everyone knows the raid is coming. The little cigarette stands disappear, and just before the patrolmen arrive, a rain of cigarettes cascades out of windows onto the street.

The merchants of more substantial goods are not bothered — their papers are in order."

Why don't the authorities close down Via Duchesca completely? Another Neapolitan laughed: "They don't want to destroy it, because this way they know where all the black marketeers are. Anyway, nobody would come to Naples if Duchesca weren't here. And besides, even the wives of police bigshots come shopping here."

Geisha Party Big Hazard

TOKYO (NYT) — One of the perils of doing business in Japan is the geisha party, and some visiting foreign businessmen are becoming wary — and weary — of the whole ordeal.

"The Japanese are well-organized and efficient during the day," said a serious-minded representative of a business machines concern from Ohio, who was interviewed at the Tokyo Hilton on his seventh visit here.

"As for the evening, I personally don't look forward to it. Maybe the first time an American businessman comes to Japan, a geisha party is all right. It's entertainment, but it's so prolonged. They last hours."

William Diller, an American with a ship-repair business in Taiwan, said, "It's exhausting. You're sitting there on your haunches with legs folded beneath you, asleep, cutting off the blood supply, and you're full of sake. After several hours, you can't get up. You can't walk.

"The people really enjoying themselves are not the foreign buyers but the Japanese themselves."

The geisha party is a high-priced entertainment, extended by top Japanese businessmen to each other and to important visitors.

The guests are seated on the floor in a private room, and a leisurely dinner of Japanese food is served by solicitous hostesses and entertainers in the traditional kimono. Some of the geisha are young and pretty. But because the geisha skills of gracious conversation, stylized dances and string music on the samisen require years to perfect, some are not so young.

There is a lot of drinking — scotch, sake, beer — for the host believes an evening of drinking together will facilitate business deals. The geisha contribute to the merriment by organizing parlor games, such as rock, scissors, paper and passing straws held between the upper lip and nose.

There are usually a few pats and squeezes, but the whole thing is as erotic as a church supper.

"The Japanese think that by entertaining you, you're going to feel obligated. It's a form of gift, like tickets to a Broadway show," said Harold Rosenbaum, a Philadelphia sporting-goods dealer on his 37th trip to Japan.

"I deal all over the world," he continued, "and doing business in Japan requires a lot more patience and understanding. I may be sitting there for four hours before we start talking about what I came to buy. I think the buyer would enjoy a good steak dinner, and it would be a lot cheaper too.

"I've seen those geisha parties go as high as $1,000, and it's really a pain playing pitty-pat with the girls."

Despite such talk, which has gotten around, many Japanese companies persist with this status-symbol, expense-account entertainment, often adding a cabaret tour after the geisha party.

THE GALLUP POLL

Stanfield Rises In Popularity

By The Canadian Institute Of Public Opinion

Immediately before the 1968 election, Trudeaumania was so strong that by a ratio of about two to one, voters, apart from their own political feelings, felt that Trudeau would make a better Prime Minister than Stanfield. At that time a spread of 22 per centage points separated the two leaders, with Trudeau selected by 46% and Stanfield by 24?.

Today that spread has been halved to an 11 point separation between the PM (39%) and Stanfield (28%).

Trudeau has dropped as preferred leader 7 points nationally, 4 points in Quebec, 7 points in Ontario, and 11 points in the West.

In the Western provinces before the last election, there were considerably more who chose Trudeau (44%) as compared to Stanfield (27%). Today the situation is reversed, and Stanfield is in the lead as likely to be the better PM (41%) compared to Trudeau at 33%.

It is his popularity in the West which has upped Stanfield's level, for in Quebec and Ontario he remains at about the same level of selection, while he has increased in popularity in the West by 14 points.

It is noteworthy that in Quebec, indecision has increased, with about one in ten more voters uncertain about their choice today, as compared to 1968.

The question, put to a national sample in 1968 and again today:

"Regardless of any political feelings you may have, and thinking just of individuals, which man do you think would make the best prime minister for Canada — Pierre Elliott Trudeau or Robert Stanfield?"

The contrasting reactions before the last election, and today is shown below, nationally, and regionally.

	Trudeau	Stanfield	Other	Say
June 1968	46%	24%	3%	27%
Today	39	28	7	26
Quebec
June, 1968	52	15	4	29
Today	48	13	3	36
Ontario
June, 1968	47	24	4	25
Today	40	25	7	28
The West
June, 1968	44	27	2	27
Today	33	41	12	14

In the Maritimes today, almost half the voters (47%) believe that Stanfield would make the better prime minister, 23% preferring Trudeau, and 30% uncertain.

Labor Leader Points to Abstract

Meany's Work on Display

NEW YORK (AP) — The hidden life of labor leader George Meany has gone on display in a converted brownstone on Manhattan's East Side.

Unknown to anyone but his closest friends, the 78-year-old president of the AFL-CIO has been painting in oils for 15 years.

After 30 of his works went on display Thursday night at Automation House, a labor centre, Meany said he began to paint when his daughter gave him an art set.

"I painted from numbers with the kit. But then I wanted to paint on my own and so I did."

"It's a wonderful way to forget, I can even forget about the economy," he said, grinning.

An amateur photographer too, Meany painted many scenes from his own photographs or from picture postcards friends sent him from abroad.

One brightly colored abstract called Doodle on Parade was conceived when Meany started to doodle while attending a boring meeting in Washington last year, he said.

Labor mediator Theodore Kheel, who arranged the showing, said Meany's paintings showed a variety of style.

"Some of these are in the Grandma Moses style. We call his the Grandpa Meany style. Yes, he's got a bright future."

Priest Arrested

SALERNO, Italy (AP) — Police said Friday they had recovered dozens of stolen paintings worth $850,000 and arrested an art teacher and the mother superior of a convent on charges of receiving stolen goods. The art teacher, also a priest, is Rev. Vitorio Loparo.

No-Strike Pact Coming

A no-strike union is expected to sign its first major contract with employers next week.

The Health Sciences Association of B.C., a union of hospital employees, was established last year by employees of a few Vancouver area hospitals. It now includes more than 1,200 members in 35 B.C. hospitals.

The union encompasses laboratory and X-ray technicians, dieticians, social workers, medical record librarians, pharmacists, physiotherapists, remedial gymnasts and accredited records technicians.

No Victoria hospital workers belong to the association but other Vancouver Island hospitals are represented in its membership.

The association has not revealed any of the proposed settlement terms in the contract being negotiated with the B.C. Hospitals Associations, representing the employers.

Two other major contracts have been signed this year with B.C. hospital employees by the Health Services Association.

The 10,500-member Hospital Employees Union and the 5,000 member Registered Nurses Association earlier agreed to two-year contracts that expire Dec. 31, 1973.

The International Union of Operating Engineers is currently negotiating a new contract on behalf of hospital employees in charge of boilers and refrigeration equipment.

Paintings Stolen

PARIS (AP) — Burglars stole a Renoir portrait of composer Richard Wagner and two Delacroix portraits from the museum-library of the Paris Opera during the night, security men discovered Friday. The Renoir alone is valued at $195,000.

Full House Wins $60,000

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Amarillo Slim (Thomas Preston, 42), a lanky six-and-a-half foot Texan with nerves of steel and the gift of gab, won $60,000 in a marathon sitting Friday to become the world's champion poker player.

"We's still buddies, ain't we?" the professional gambler drawled as he shook hands with Walter (Pug) Pearson of Nashville, the man he beat in the final duel of the World Series of Poker.

The game they played in the last hand was a form of seven card stud. Each player gets two cards face down, and five cards are dealt face up in the centre. Each selects three of the up cards to complete his hand.

Amarillo Slim won with a full house, three eights and a pair of Kings.

HOUSTON — Byron Sales officially graduates today from Houston Baptist College, but he'll receive his diploma while sitting in the audience, not on the stage with the rest of his class.

His hair is too long and officials refuse to let him participate.

"I asked (Dean James W.) Massey if he was going to pull me out of line if I tried to get in the ceremonies anyway and he said no, he wouldn't but that he'd have one of the guards do it," Sales said Friday.

Sales' hair is over his collar, but he wears it neatly combed and parted. His ears are clearly visible. The college's hair policy, however, permits sideburns no longer than the ear lobe, hair closely cut and not below the collar.

ATHENS, Ga. — Watching an x-rated movie has cost two policemen six months suspensions.

Assistant Police Chief Clarence Schultz told the Athens Civil Service Commission Friday that he searched for officers David Hansen and Jimmy Means in the downtown area for over 30 minutes the night of May 3 without finding them.

Schultz said he then went to the Paris Adult Theatre, a movie house raided in recent months on obscenity charges, and found the pair leaning against the theatre's back wall watching an x-rated film.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A convicted passer of bad cheques was sentenced in provincial court Friday to one year in prison on false pretences charges.

Albert Edward Anderson, 45, who gave a mailing address of 1446 Gladstone, obtained food, lodgings, clothing and other material in nine cases dating from early March.

On the recommendation of defence counsel J. A. Byers, Judge Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said he would recommend the term be served in a forestry camp.

"At least if he won't get phychiatric help, he'll get God's fresh air," Byers told the judge.

Richard Arthur Bergeron, unlawfully at large from Agassiz prison since March 24, was remanded to June 13 for preliminary hearing on charges of possession of a restricted weapon — a knife — and possession of a stolen auto.

Bergeron, subject of a Canada-wide warrant since his escape, was arrested by city police May 18 on a charge of possessing another stolen auto in downtown Victiroa.

Douglas John Hayes, of no fixed address, was jailed 20 days for possession of marijuana, and given a suspended sentence and two years' probation for breaking, entering and theft.

Hayes stole $420 in cash from a Colwood house before he was arrested for smoking marijuana at the rear of a Store Street lot May 7.

William R. G. Phillips, 20, of 3031 Jutland, was sentenced to six months definite and one year indeterminate on a charge of possession of LSD for trafficking.

Phillips, arrested Feb. 26 with 23 tablets of LSD, had a 1970 record of theft for which he was fined $25 and given a one-year probation terms.

John Thomas Stevens, 21, of 3031 Jutland, was sentenced to one year definite and one year indeterminate for possession of MDA for purposes of trafficking.

Stevens had a record of convictions for theft and possession of stolen property.

George Charles Neal Thomas, 20, of 529 Springfield, was sentenced to the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre for four months definite and 10 months indeterminate on two theft charges.

Thomas stole bicycles and $7.50 in cash to buy liquor.

John Edwin Straw, 20, of 1337 Saunders, was fined $400 and placed on two years' probation for helping friends steal chairs from a beer parlor March 23.

Straw had been scheduled to appear for sentence May 2. He said he had failed to show up because he was on probation from a previous conviction and sentence and was afraid of what would happen this time.

David Wilson, 19, of 3977 Oakwood, was sentenced to six months definite and six months indeterminate for breaking, entering and theft from a former employer.

Court recommended the term be served at the Boulder Bay forestry program.

In traffic court, Judge E. F. N. Robinson fined Henry Albert Winnett, 58, of 1245 Crown, $400 and gave him a three-month driving ban for driving while impaired when he hit a car on Broad Street May 18.

Adolescence Root of Neurosis

NEW YORK (AP) — The rapid physical growth during adolescense is so stressful that many persons carry the images of themselves as gawky young teen-agers for the rest of their lives, says a new book on the subject.

"You scratch someone under the skin and there is an adolescent beneath the adult," says Dr. Marvin J. Gersh, co-author, with Dr. Iris F. Litt, of The Handbook of Adolescence. "People get fixed on the most painful period of life."

The doctors said that often a beautiful woman who suffered from acne as an adolescent will always think of herself as ugly or a man who did not grow in height until late in his teens would never think of himself as a tall person.

Adolescence, by the doctors' definition, is the period when the body begins rapid growth and acquires such secondary sexual characteristics as deepened voice or facial hair for boys; breasts and widened hips for girls. It usually starts at about age 10 for girls; age 12 for boys.

The authors said that the stressful period is compounded by the fact that many parents don't realize that normal does not necessarily mean average. Adolescence can begin as late as age 18.

"What we find is many kids are dragged into doctors because their parents think they should be growing," said Dr. Litt.

PARENTS WRONG

The doctors said they found in their own practice at Monte Fiore Hospital in the Bronx and in researching statistics from clinics throughout the United States that 95 per cent of the young persons brought in for being too short are suffering only from delayed adolescence.

Dr. Gersh cited one case where the mother brought in her 14-year-old son, concerned that he was only five feet tall. Assured that the boy would grow normally and that his only trouble was psychological, the mother replied defensively:

"I have asked him a thousand times, 'Shorty, why are you so sensitive?'"

Another fact not widely known, the doctors said, is that about 50 per cent of boys develop breast tissue for about a year during this period. In nearly all cases the tissue disappears but some young men, not knowing this is normal, may worry about their masculinity all their life.

For many persons, failure to develop an accurate self-image may mean they will only lack a complete self-confidence, but others may suffer from anxiety and depression.

"And almost all neurotic people will have some distortion of body image," said Gersh.

The authors do not rule out the possibility that a bad physical image could be a realistic view and they do include a chapter in the book about plastic surgery. In fact, some plastic surgery may be most advantageous during this period because it is the time when the self-image is still being developed, they said.

Helping Actors Critic's Goal

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Before launching into detailed analyses of the three plays in Friday's session of the B.C. High Schools Drama Festival, adjudicator Tom Kerr prepared his listeners for some straight talk.

He told the large, predominently student audience that listening to and learning from criticism is an essential process in the development of an artist.

The first play on the evening's program at McPherson Playhouse was The Interview by Jean Claude Van Itallie, presented by Kamloops Secondary School.

A scene from a long play that makes social comment on America today, it is a director's tour de force, Kerr said. It is a series of spectacular dramatic exercises actually based on improvisation.

There had been originality in attack and interpretation and firm direction but the adjudicator felt the director needed to look under the surface and combine exercise with the depth to be found there.

He said there should have been changes in rhythm for each scene and that the transitions could have been helped with a different handling of lighting.

It was nevertheless, a production of good standard.

In selecting Ionesco's The Lesson, two young actors from Creston's Prince Charles Secondary had been handed a tremendously difficult assisgnment, Kerr felt.

The opening had been quite excellent and the Pupil (Shelly Jobe) was dead right for the part and had a beautiful stance. It was only unfortunate that she had played in so low a key.

Grotesque makeup had detracted from a well-timed performance by Mac Cooper as the Professor but Kerr felt that these two actors were playing in different levels.

N. F. Simpson's A Resounding Tinkle was presented by Quesnel Secondary.

"This is a play about tedium and tedious people but the play must not become tedious," the adjudicator pointed out, adding — "I'm afriad it did."

He criticize the slow movement of the comedy, saying that the even pace had killed the production.

The actors had needed much more help in inventing stage business and the set had told the audience nothing about the sort of people in the play.

Following tonight's closing session awards will be made in the form of scholarships and certificates of merit according to the adjudicator's selection, and a prize for the best original script will be given.

An award will also be made to the group exhibiting the best all-round conduct backstage.

Last play in competition will be North Peace Secondary's production of Molliere's A Doctor in Spite of Himself. The program will be completed with complimentary entries from Kamloops and Victoria Senior Secondary.

Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Alberta Inquiry Finds KKK Legal

EDMONTON (CP) — Investigations were conducted by the RCMP and the attorney-general's department before a Calgary-based Ku Klux Klan group was incorporated as a society in Alberta, Attorney-General Merv Leitch said in the legislature Friday.

NDP leader Grant Notley told the legislature Thursday that the group of five persons, three from Calgary and two from Banff, had been incorporated under the Societies Act April 6 as the Confederate Klans of Alberta.

In its application, the group said its objects were:

"To attempt to preserve, by legal means, chiefly through public educational propaganda and mutual fraternity, the traditions and ideals of the Celtic and Anglo-Saxon races, or more generally, the traditions and ideals of the white races.

"To advocate racial purity among its members."

Leitch said that "no matter how repugnant the stated aims and objectives of the group may be, it legally is entitled to become incorporated."

Judge Lectures

EDMONTON (CP) — A parent of a minor hockey league player was acquitted of assault Thursday but not before everyone involved got a lecture on sportsmanship from provincial judge John Coughlan.

Donald Stevens, 56, of Edmonton was charged with assaulting referee Norman Goplin, 17, also of Edmonton, Feb. 2 during a midget game between Hazeldean and Ottewell.

"I'm amazed to think grown men would act in this fashion in front of children," Judge Coughlan said. "Some of these people lost their temper and gave a fine display of sportsmanhsip."

Director Named

RED DEER (CP) — W. L. Pander, 29, of Portage La Prairie, Man., has been appointed director of economic development for the city. He will take over his new duties July 1.

Pander was a member of Central Plains, Inc., a government-sponsored industrial development group in the Portage La Prairie area. He was chosen over two other candidates for the position which pays $10,900 annually.

Rates to Hold

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer says Manitoba Hydro rates will be maintained at the present levels for the current fiscal year and there is a "reasonable prospect" there will be no rate increases in 1973-74.

Schreyer, the minister responsible for Hydro, told a news conference Friday the utility closed the last fiscal year, which ended March 31, with a net surplus of slightly more than $2 million.

North Freeze Urged

CALGARY (CP) — A two-year freeze on commercial activity in the Canadian north was suggested Thursday by journalist and author Pierre Berton.

More information on subjects such as wildlife, land-use, forestry and waste disposal should be gathered before further development or exploration is permitted, he said. Current studies by industrial organizations were often inadequate and lacked the required concern.

No Restrictions

EDMONTON (CP) — Street sales of newspapers in the city will not be restricted by city council, it was decided Thursday night.

Alderman Terry Cavanagh introduced a motion calling for a city bylaw that would allow papers to be sold from a stand located at the direction of the city, but it found little support.

Tulloch — Todd

A pretty wedding took place April 29, 1972, at 3 o'clock in St. Paul's Anglican Church, when Canon G. H. Greenhalgh united in marriage Ann, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Todd, 991 Admirals Road, Victoria, to Mr. Nigel Selby Tulloch, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Selby Tulloch of Edinburgh, Scotland.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of white organza over taffeta, trimmed at the neckline and wrists with Spanish lace. Tiny white roses held her chapel-length veil in place. She carried an heirloom bible overlaid with a single orchid and trailing mauve and yellow ribbons. A matching mauve floor-length gown featuring a lace bodice was worn by Matron of Honor, Mrs. Anne Garner. She carried a bouquet of spring flowers. Best man was Dr. Ross Sharp, and brother-in-law of the bride, Dr. Norman Wale ushered the guests.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the bride's parents' home. The bride and groom left on a honeymoon touring Vancouver Island and the Mainland. On their return, they will reside in London, England.

Out-of-town guests included, the groom's parents who came from Edinburgh for the occasion, Dr. and Mrs. F. Ross Sharp, Vancouver, and Dr. and Mrs. Norman W. Wale, Vancouver.

Alexander — Boorman

The marriage is announced of Robyn Lynne Boorman, daughter of Mrs. Peter A. Stocks, and the late Mr. Kenneth L. Boorman, to Mr. Kenneth Alfred Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Alexander.

The wedding took place Friday, May 12, 1972, in Victoria.

Goward — Toljonen

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Goward of 2495 Arbutus Road, are pleased to announce the marriage of their son, Albert Owen Carver, to Alie Paivi Marjatta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Toljonen of Duncan, on March 30, 1972, in the United Church, Duncan.

Wakeham — Royston

Floralea Royston, of Victoria, daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Beers, Sidney, B.C. was united in marriage to Mr. James Robert Wakeham, son of Mrs. Olive Mabel Wakeham, Victoria, on May 8, 1972.

Attending the couple were Mrs. Blanche Lamirande and Capt. William A. Bean.

Mr. and Mrs. Wakeham are residing in Victoria.

Willey — Watling

A pretty wedding took place Saturday, May 6, in the Presbyterian Church, North Bay, Ontario, of Linda Watling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Thomson, to Mr. Alvin Arthur Willey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Willey, Victoria, B.C.

The happy couple are now residing in Ottawa, Ontario.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death,
I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies;
thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

PSALM 23.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere and heartfelt thanks in the loss of our beloved husband, father, son, brother and uncle, David J. Chewpoy. To Rev. Paul Hawkes for his comforting words, Soloist Miss Doreen Jackson and Pallbearers: E. M. McNeilly, S. R. Taylor, C. Hainstock, A.R. Morden, D. Connah and H. Christians. To Dr. J. F. Tysco, Dr. G. M. Woodwark, nurses and staff at the Royal Jubilee Hospital for their help and kindness. The Gratitude in our hearts cannot be fully expressed to all of you.

—Mrs. Teenie Chewpoy, Dave and Pam, Rob and Sharon, Mother —Mrs. Mary Chewpoy. Sisters—Mrs. Jessie Wisewell, Mrs. Alice Hagon; Nieces and nephews.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our many friends and relatives for their kind expressions of sympathy and acts of kindness and the Mass Cards and floral offerings at the passing of our beloved husband, and father Bernard Joseph Duncan. Special thanks to Dr. Leith, members of the Renal Unit, nurses and orderlies of 3rd West, the I.C.U., dietitians, housekeeping and office staff of the Royal Jubilee Hospital for their devoted care and consideration during his illness.

—Evelyn Duncan and family

9 IN MEMORIAM

BUNCE — In loving memory of Edward A. Bunce, who passed away May 21, 1970.

The rolling stream of life rolls on,
but still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile, of the one who once sat there.
— Ever remembered by his wife and family.

MOXHAM—In loving memory of our dear Elmer, who passed away May 20, 1970.

Two sad and lonely years have passed,
Since our great sorrow fell.
The shock that we received that day,
No one can ever tell.
God gave us courage to meet it,
And strength to bear the blow,
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
It is lonely here without you,
We miss you more each day,
For life is not the same for us
Since you were called away.
—So sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Rita, Bradley and Michael.

MOXHAM—In loving memory of my dear son, Elmer Moxham, who passed away May 20, two years ago today.

And still we think of him each day,
Just a memory sad and true
We think of him when we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
—Sadly missed by loving mother and sister Melrose Morgan.

SHOEMAKER—In loving memory of Pete, a dear uncle and brother, who left us May 20, 1970.

May comes with deep regret,
A month we cannot forget.
The shock was so severe,
We never thought his death so near.
Our secret tears still flow,
What it meant to lose him
No one will ever know.
—Sadly missed by Bill, Bae and Bud.

39 PERSONALS

WE ARE SIX REASONABLY ATtractive women in our forties, and we are either divorced or widowed. We believe that there are probably six men in Victoria, similarly situated, who share our common complaint—loneliness. We have a variety of interests ranging from golf, sailing, bridge, chess, walking and camping, to cooking, politics, art and music. We are seeking companionship. If you are interested in meeting us collectively we will arrange a dinner to which you will come as our guests. All replies will be treated confidentially and if nothing else we will all gain new friends. Please write to Victoria Press, Box 319.

VAN ISLE MARINA

BOATING SEASON IS HERE

Your chance to make really good buys on used cruisers. One 23' Brandlmayr, one 24' Brandlmayr, one 21' Brandlmayr, one 26' Brandlmayr, one 26' Monk. All these boats are at our Marina, and all in the area of $6,000, or less. Now is the time to act. Come on out and we will be glad to help you.

Also two fine displacement cruisers that will give you many happy cruising hours.

Also a 28' fast cruiser for quick sale — owner says get offer now.

One of the cleanest and best fiberform we have seen, just back in the water, bottom painted, all new condition, sleeps 5, head, stove, ice box, sink, life jackets, flares, compass, boat hardly used. Come and make offer now.

This is only a few of our wide selection of used boats. If you want to buy or sell let us do the work. Come out and see STEVE WURSTER and JACK FALKINS for assistance.

LOVE A SWIMMING POOL?
LOVE A NICE VIEW?
LOVE A ROCK GARDEN?

This home is the answer for the young family who is looking for a modern comfortable home built high on a rock, offering a very lovely view, and located on cul-de-sac, away from noise and traffic but only a few minutes from transportation. The combined kitchen and family room is exceptionally attractive with high ceiling, bare windows, serving counter, ample cupboards, easy-to-care-for floor covering and excellent quality fixtures. Three bedrooms plus a separate den for father or a nice sewing room for mother, good size sitting area, attractive living room with cedar ceiling, red brick fireplace and wall panelling. Splendid view from all windows. Enclosed patio and filtered swimming pool with southwest exposures where you can enjoy swimming and sunbathing. The owner is being transferred and the whole family feels badly about leaving their home which they really enjoyed. If this home is what you have been looking for, please contact.

DEEP COVE
Modern, comfortable, 2-bedroom house with full high cement basement.
This property is on Birch Rd., one of the nicer streets in the area; it is only a short distance from the marina but far enough away not to feel the coolness off the water; an ideal retirement property and also a good investment property because it will be possible, if not now, in the future to subdivide. Birch Road is paved, has mail delivery and most important city WATER.
The basement has a separate entrance and could be developed to have a large rec. rm. and more bedrooms.
Other features: Low taxes, house and garage newly stuccoed, large double garage with workshop, large Heatilator fireplace. Wall-to-wall carpeting over hardwood in LR, hall and bedrooms. O-O-M and new roof.

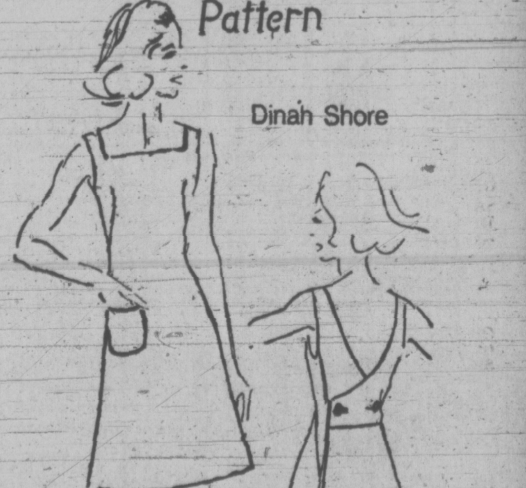
International Designer Pattern



Good-bye to big pattern alterations. Hello to better fitting garments with less work. That's the net result of the Spadea "Back-to-Back" Printed Pattern which gives you four sizes printed on one sheet of quality paper. Now you may combine the top of one and the bottom of another size from the same pattern. Bonus — another completely different designer pattern is printed on the reverse side of this pattern.

Dinah Shore loves the idea of a wrap dress. The front has an easy shape with a wide square neckline. The back crosses over-buttons, and takes a lovely flare. Try fabrics like burlap, denim, linen pique, gingham, cotton and synthetic blends. A-71342 is cut in ready-to wear Misses Sizes 8-14. Size 12 requires approximately 2⅝ yards of 45" fabric. To order A-71342; give size, name, address and zip. Send $2.00 in U.S. funds SPADEA, Box N, Dep't CVX-5, Milford, N.J. 08848.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc, for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public every day.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily. Monday through Saturday call.

She's on Her Way Up But It's Been Hard

EDMONTON (CP) — What happens to an Indian girl rejected by her family and her race?

The story of Robin Toma has many twists and currently rests at an Edmonton hospital where the 22-year-old is being treated for a tubercular gland.

She is trying to start a writing career, working from her hospital bed on poetry and short stories. She also draws, generally illustrations for her written work. A canary helps to keep her company.

Robin has been in the hospital since Christmas. It's a familiar setting—she spent most of her childhood in hospitals.

Born in Ingenika, B.C., 200 miles north of Prince George in an area accessible only by boat or plane, Robin is a member of the Sekani tribe, a mixed group of Cree and Tahltan Indian.

Robin hasn't been fully accepted by her family since she was two or three years old. That's when she had her first accident, a broken leg.

The injury was noticed only when her leg started to swell badly. But in an area visited by a doctor only once a year, gangrene had set in by the time medical help arrived.

MOVED TO HOSPITAL

After an argument with her father over the chances of curing her with Indian medicine, the doctor moved her to hospital in Prince Rupert.

Tuberculosis had set in and Robin was kept in a full body cast for most of the time. She stayed in the hospital until she was 11.

She went back and forth between the hospital and a nearby residential school for the next two years. At 14, she went home.

"I didn't recognize my parents right away but I stayed all summer and enjoyed it. It was like a wonderland to me, having been raised behind walls all the time. Outside was just a different world.

"But I couldn't fit back in. I couldn't remember the language, the customs, the legends. I couldn't make bannock, and I didn't know from nothing about curing hides, making moocasins and drying meat.

"My father was ashamed of me. I read too much and all I could do was arithmetic and writing and reading, none of the skills that were important to him."

RAN AWAY

Finally, the inevitable clash occurred and Robin ran away to Prince George where she stole a car and was caught.

Some time later, Robin was picked up by two policemen. She pulled a knife and slashed one of the policemen.

"I was lucky. I just cut his uniform. He had been slapping me around and calling me a liar and when we got to the police station I was unconscious."

Robin was sentenced to two years on probation. She says both policemen were dismissed from the force.

"I stood it for a while but one day I went to see the probation officer and got lost because I didn't know Vancouver that well. Finally I said to heck with it and stuck out my thumb. A week later I was in Toronto."

There was another knifing incident in Toronto. Robin said a man grabbed her from behind late at night, and she stabbed him. She called an ambulance. It came with the police and she was back in court again. But her case was dismissed.

The first thing she did on leaving the courtroom was to buy some flowers and take them to the hospital.

"The man was a little surprised. But we talked and I told him he should be more careful about grabbing people."

Life since that time continued as a series of institutions, jail, probation, even the mental hospital at Essendale, B.C., after a suicide attempt.

FOUND FRIEND

"But finally a lady befriended me. She was quiet and well-to-do, and her husband was in the Masons or something. I couldn't believe she could be interested in me. But she came and visited, and sometimes we just sat together. We didn't even have to talk to relate to each other. It really intrigued me."

Last year, Robin went home again but that didn't work out. Her father was dead.

"Finally my mother told me she thought it would be better if I left. I went to Prince George and started drinking like there was no tomorrow. I was going to hell. I got into trouble with everybody.

"But I woke up one day and thought to myself: Who are they to push me around? With my mind, why should I be put down?"

Robin has finished Grade 12 and now is interested in going back to school.

"But I don't want my writing to become a supervised sort of thing. If I do go, I don't want to be mentally regimented into thinking other people's thoughts rather than my own."

Robin is also working on a biography of her father.

"He was a man well worth knowing. I admired and respected him. We kids still walk in his shadow, although he is long gone. He walks and lives with me every minute.

"Ultimately, I have to be something more than just an Indian with an education. My father thought I was useless, and he's still waiting and watching to see me make my mark."

Canadian Films Win Blue Ribbons

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian films were awarded three first-prize blue ribbons and a trio of second-place red ribbons Friday night at the American Film Festival awards dinner here.

Four of the awards went to the National Film Board of Canada; the other two to independent producers.

A feature of the dinner was the presentation by the Educational Film Library Association, sponsor of the festival, of a special posthumous award to John Grierson, who died this year, was Canada's first government film commissioner, starting in 1939.

First-place ribbons were awarded to these Canadian films:

Atonement, a 52-minute documentary by Mike McKennirey of the NFB, in the category of environment-nature and wildlife;

Synchromy, directed by Norman McLaren of the NFB, and Variations on a Cellophane Wrapper, directed by David Rimmer of Toronto, which tied for first in the experimental film category.

The second-place ribbons went to:

Death of a Legend, directed by Bill Mason of the NFB, in the environment-animals category;

Where Have All the Farms Gone?, directed by Michael Brun of the NFB, in the technology and society category;

A Way Out, directed by Graham Parker for Westminster Films, Toronto, in the public service category.

Liberal Strength Growing—President

PENTICTON — The Liberal party is better-prepared than ever to contest a provincial election, party president Mel Couvelier said today.

Speaking at the opening of the B.C. Liberal leadership and policy convention, Couvelier told the party it has "the strongest membership you've had in years."

He added that more preparatory work on fund-raising has been done than every before and said a well-researched collection of policy papers provides a good basis from which to choose a platform.

Couvelier said also "you've had more candidates nominated at this time than we have ever had in a provincial election."

Chest Plans Review Of Members' Budgets

The Community Chest budget committee will review the operating budgets of the Chest's 22 member agencies.

The review will take two weeks.

The committee determines the operating requirements of the agencies for 1973 and recommends the minimum allocation required by the Community Chest.

The difference between the amount an agency can raise itself with fees, memberships and grants, and the total cost of the operation is met by the proceeds of the annual United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal.

The United Appeal goal is set each year by the Chest board of directors based on the report of the budget committee.

The Chest raised $646,280.76 last year.

The proposed kick-off date for this year's United Appeal is September 8 in the business community and October 16 for residential canvassing.

The Community Chest Budget Committee, chaired by John E. Quested, is reviewing the operating budgets of the Chest's 22 member agencies.

The review will take two weeks.

The committee determines the operating requirements of the agencies for 1973 and recommends the minimum allocation required by the Community Chest.

The difference between the amount an agency can raise itself with fees, memberships and grants, and the total cost of the operation is met with the proceeds of the annual United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal.

ALBERNI MILL FACES SHUT

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 1,100 workers at MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s Alberni pulp mill face layoffs next month unless there is a quick settlement to the five-week wildcat strike by coast fallers, a company spokesman said Friday.

The spokesman said the entire mill will probably have to be shut down about June 12 for lack of logs.

About 85 per cent of the company's fallers still refuse to work in the protracted dispute over an industry-wide pricing agreement.

Tuesday, the company shut down its Kennedy Lake logging division, idling about 120 men who haul felled timber out of the bush.

Crown Zellerbach Friday shut down its Beaver Cove and Sandspit logging operation, laying off 185 workers, also because of a log shortage.

John Squire, business agent of the Alberni local of the International Woodworkers of America, said Millstream Timber, an independent Alberni Valley operator, also laid off 35 men this week.

Meanwhile, there is no sign of a break in the deadlocked fallers' dispute and the coast master contract negotiations between the IWA and Forest Industrial Relations, the industry bargaining agent.

Liquid Hash Analysis

HALIFAX (CP) — Police are awaiting results of analysis of 28 bottles of "liquid hashish," seized in raids here that resulted in the arrest of three men.

David Andrew Hatfield, 21, of Halifax, Ronald James Leblanc, 24, of Brazil Lake, N.S., and Richard William Kraft, 26, of Vanvouver pleaded not guilty in court here to charges of possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking. They are scheduled to appear in court again June. 1.

Inspector Ken Paul of the Halifax police department said this is the first time local authorities had come into contact with "liquid hashish." But he said the department is awaiting a full analysis of the drug, but described it as "dissolved hashish" which is shot into the blood stream like speed or heroin.

'Cautious' Anderson Waits for Vote

By
CLEMENT CHAPPLE
Times Staff

PENTICTON — MP David Anderson is running a cautious campaign to become the next B.C. Liberal leader despite the prospect of an almost certain victory Sunday against his one opponent, Surrey Mayor Bill Vander Zalm.

When Pat McGeer announced he was stepping down in favor of Anderson three weeks ago, it wasn't long before the party caucus and the party president, Mel Couvelier, threw their support to the 34-year-old Esquimalt-Saanich MP.

But Anderson's campaign managers still had to decide how to approach the leadership campaign.

The problem was how to switch from the pop image of a backbench maverick in Ottawa to a cool and low-key leader in B.C.

The main thing to avoid, say his campaigners, is the appearance of an upstart outsider hard-selling his way to the provincial political arena.

In this press conferences, Anderson has been frank and candid about his belief that he will sweep the leadership contest and he always jokes about the question of an image.

His campaign literature says Anderson is "the right man for right now in B.C."

A telephone survey of convention delegates taken earlier in Vancouver found 75 per cent in favor of Anderson over Vander Zalm. With only two candidates, however, a one-vote majority is all that is needed.

Anderson preceded the convention campaign with a letter to all delegates asking for support and says the same concern which has characterized his performance in Ottawa underlies his decision to become B.C. Liberal leader.

At the convention the campaign pamphlet contains a picture of Prime Minister Trudeau and Anderson in casual attire apparently enjoying a joke.

Anderson is careful to point out that while he has a maverick image amongst his fellow MPs in Ottawa, Trudeau admires his style and does not resent his frequent criticisms of government policy.

Delegates at the convention are also receiving a magazine article on Anderson written before his arrival on the provincial scene which is favorable to Anderson but includes unfavorable statements by him on the performance of outgoing leader McGeer.

Again, the problem is to project Anderson's image as a capable and tough politician without riling or angering the B.C. party.

Anderson's campaign manager and brother, Malcolm, said today Anderson's acceptance speech will also be low-key. Anderson himself however, indicated Friday in an interview, and by earlier statement, that his leadership is not going to be a quiet one.

He believes that the opposition in B.C. has never properly exploited the issues and plans to fight every opponent without let-up.

Probably the Progressive Conservative party, as yet only a marginal influence in B.C., will come in for a heavy attack from Anderson, once the campaign for office really begins.

Anderson said Friday he still believes the "conspiracy" theory that there is a "tacit" agreement between the PCs and Premier Bennett that will prevent the Liberals from gaining power.

In return for Bennett's help for the PCs in the next federal election, the PCs in B.C. will try to take Liberal votes and split the opposition to the Social Credit party.

The fact that Premier Bennett denied any such deal doesn't impress Anderson, who said these arrangements are never documented in any case.

A newspaper statistical survey published Friday shows the Progressive Conservatives with 12.63 per cent of the popular vote as of three weeks ago.

Anderson points out the survey was taken before his leadership announcement and he predicted his party will take away at least half of that popular vote.

He also said he expects that his leadership will mean an advance in Liberal popularity.

He said he knows that many NDP voters with concern for the environment will vote for him, taking away perhaps three per cent of the NDP popularity.

According to the poll the gains from the PCs and the NDP could provide enough seats to "pull it off" and possibly win an election for the Liberals, said Anderson.

Anderson also claims his "recognition factor" is good. This means voters quickly recognize his name, a must on any ballot.

He is best known for his long and so far effective fight to prevent the U.S. government from creating an oil tanker route along the West Coast of B.C.

Anderson has yet to choose a riding in which to gain a seat in the B.C. legislature and this in fact will provide a much more uncertain contest than the leadership race here.

BOTTOMS UP, JUNIOR . . . but it isn't a case for the temperance union. Fifteen-month-old Joseph Afzal Mohammed helps 86-year-old Charles Musto open Ye Olde English Pub and Music Hall, a new facility for Vancouver's senior citizens but it's a teetotal toast. The strongest thing is root beer.

Nixon Heads for Summit, Talking of 'A World Peace'

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — In driving rain and with little fanfare, President Nixon left today for a week of "very important substantive talks" in Moscow that could climax 2½ years of bargaining toward the first, cautious restraints on Soviet and American nuclear arms.

Standing in the shelter of a giant hangar at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., the president told a small official crowd of well-wishers that "we're not going there to make headlines today" but to build "a better chance for peace tomorrow and all the years ahead."

He talked of a "a world peace, a world of progress for all."

The president's first stop will be Salzburg, Austria, where he was due to arrive tonight. He flies on to Moscow Monday morning.

At an informal reception Friday night for reporters, Nixon displayed high hopes for the success of the summit although he cautioned that results could not be nailed down until after he met Leonid Brzhnev, Soviet Communist party chief.

He spoke with grat optimism about Brzhnev's attitude, as it was set out in a letter delivered to him Thursday by Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

Nixon said is showed a positive approach towards bridging differences between the United States and the Soviet Union.

There were were three main areas which offered considerable promise and in which he saw the possibility — although not a certainty — of agreements or understandings.

These were in limiting nuclear weapons, greater trade and space exploration.

The strategic arms limitation talks have made considerable progress, the president said, although "there are still more very difficult problems that remain unresolved. . . ."

On trade, Nixon said: "I would say the chances for some positive results are good — not certain, but certainly good."

On the third point, the president said considerable progress has been made with regard to co-operation in space exploration.

He cautioned, however, that hopes should not be raised too high. "There are some knotty problems to resolve," he said.

Diplomatic observers said the Soviet Union and the United States, despite their support for opposing sides in the Vietnam war, seemed clearly anxious not to let Indochina cast a shadow over their own bilateral relations.

Meanwhile, in Moscow, all along President Nixon's motorcade route, janitors order housewives not to hang wash from their balconies on Monday.

Outside the U.S. Embassy, passersby stare at photographs of Nixon in Peking, in Bucharest, in Belgrade and Warsaw.

DISEASE HITS LARGE BREEDS

TORONTO (CP)—A disease that cripples large dogs is sweeping North America, a Toronto veterinarian said Friday.

"It's getting to be a very serious problem," said Dr. Alexander Hroncok in an interview.

"In some giant breeds, over 80 per cent of dogs are affected to varying degrees."

The condition, in which one of the major hip muscles fails to develop, is known as dysplasia. The shaft of the leg bone continues to grow, but it does not fit properly into the hip socket.

Island Roads Claim Two

Two persons have died on Island highways in the first ew hours of the holiday weekend.

Jasmine Kudra, 16, of Victoria died in a single car ac- ident on Shawnigan Lake oad two miles south of hawnigan. The driver, whose ame has not been released, hospitalized with back and g injuries. Four other pas- engers in the vehicle escaped jury.

One Dead in Hotel Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — A woman died early today and a man was injured when a three-alarm fire forced evacuation of guests from the downtown Sheraton Mount Royal Hotel.

Police said Mrs. Gertrude Doyle, 85, originally from Ottawa but a permanent resident of the hotel "for years," was found dead in her bed on the third floor.

A police spokesman said 652 persons—guests and staff—were evacuated within 10 minutes.

He said 22 persons were taken to hospital but most were released within hours after treatment for smoke inhalation.

One man suffered a broken leg and cuts after he jumped from the fourth floor to a fire escape at the second-floor level.

"I don't know why the man jumped," commented Albert Lariviere, assistant fire chief. "He didn't need to."

The police spokesman said that what caused the fire has not yet been determined.

The third floor where the blaze started at 2:28 a.m. was "completely destroyed" and damages will run into the thousands, he said.

A hotel spokesman said 613 guests were registered in the hotel which has about 1,000 rooms. Those affected by the fire were allocated other rooms.

Some guests tied bedsheets together to let themselves down to an inner courtyard but most were led down stairways and aerial ladders.

Graham Fram, a YMCA representative, said in a telephone interview with the Hamilton Spectator that he and three members of a Russian delegation escaped from the hotel by a window.

Mr. Fram had been acting as a guide for the Russians, who were not identified.

The hotel has been plagued in recent months by a number of small fires which are believed to have been set by an arsonist.

Mr. Lariviere said it was too early to tell if arson was behind this morning's fire.

Hanoi Blockade Defeat Plotted

Times News Services

PEKING — Chinese and Soviet officials, apparently shelving for the present their own bitter ideological dispute, were in session here Friday seeking ways to defeat the American blockade of North Vietnam.

Diplomatic sources report representatives of Hanoi and the Mongolian Republic were also attending the meeting, believed to be aimed at elimination of bottlenecks in getting war material to North Vietnam.

The sources also suggest supplies destined for the Communist war effort may be piling up inside China.

North Vietnamese sources said the Hanoi government is "very, very, very satisfied" with the Chinese efforts to beat the U.S. measures.

A Chinese leader has already privately told some Western ambassadors in Peking that no obstacle would be put in the way of Soviet and East European aid crossing China.

At the same time, authoritative Soviet sources have said military material, including missiles, is already in transit by rail aeros China.

As best as can be established from independent sources in the Chinese capital, Soviet supplies seem to be crossing in China in the biggest quantities since at least early 1968 when the Russians switched to sea transport for the bulk of their aid.

Meanwhile, several hundred North Vietnamese troops led by tanks launched a dawn counter-attack today that briefly interrupted a South Vietnamese drive to break the sige of An Loc.

Initial reports said 81 North Vietnamese were killed and seven tanks destroyed. The Saigon command said 15 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 38 were wounded in beating back the counter-attack.

A senior U.S. adviser, Col. J. Ross Franklin, said the counter-attack was in all probability North Vietnam's last major thrust in the battle for An Loc, the ruined provincial capital 60 miles north of

HELD 50 YEARS

DEWSBURY, England (Reuter) — Two sane young women were banished to a mental institution 50 years ago after having illigitimate babies, and were freed only this year, a welfare worker says.

Frank Sheridan, director of social services in this Yorkshire town, disclosed the story to a local social service group. One of the women was sent to the institution when she was 18. She now is 68. The other, now 74, had been there since she was 24.

Sheridan said in each case the parents had approached the local authority which, at that time, had no power to deal with the situation except for committing their daughter to an institution. They had not left it because they had nowhere to go. They now are living in a hostel.

World Labor Raps Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — The World Confederation of Labor has lodged an international protest against the Quebec government because it appears "certain fundamental liberties were violated" in recent labor disputes, the group's secretary general, Jean Breuck, said Friday.

Sent here by the group representing 20 million workers in 22 countries to study the current dispute between the Quebec government and about 200,000 public service employees, Breuck said the protest was lodged with the International Labor Organization in Geneva on the basis of available information.

He said Quebec legislation ending an 11-day public-service strike last month contravened the spirit of an international labor convention ratified by the Canadian government, and he has asked the federal government if Quebec is in accord with the convention.

Meanwhile, Justice Minister Jerome Choquette threw cold water on hopes that negotiations for a new contract might resume this weekend when he said Quebec's three top labor leaders will probably not be released from jail before Tuesday.

Widespread walkouts and demonstrations to protest the jailings were ended by a union common front Wednesday as "an act of good faith"

Short Story Studied As QE2 Plot Source

NEW YORK (AP) — The first draft of a short story read to a creative writing workshop here is being studied by police and federal authorities as possible inspiration for the anonymous threat to blow up the Queen Elizabeth 2 in the Atlantic Ocean.

Sources quoted today by the New York Times said the short story was the "main lead" in the investigation because its similarities with what the caller told the Cunard Line were so striking as to almost rule out the possibility of a coincidence.

The story, written by a young typist, was read to the five students at Tuesday's meeting of the extension course at Hunter College, 21 hours after the Queen Elizabeth 2 had sailed from New York with 2,350 passengers and crew.

FIND NO BOMBS

The story described a successful attempt by two persons, one a terminal cancer patient, to extort a valuable diamond from a QE2 passenger by threatening to blow up the 65,000-ton luxury liner.

In Wednesday's real-life threat, the anonymous caller told the Cunard Line that two passengers would set off six explosions unless a $350,000 ransom was paid.

Biggest Swiftsure Fleet Awaits Pace of the Strait

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

This time next week the biggest Swiftsure fleet on record will be pacing it out in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Deadline for entries is Tuesday and, judging by the scores of registrations already in, race officials are expecting about 220 boats to be off Brotchie Ledge for the start 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

The Swiftsure race had its beginnings back in 1930. Over the years, the 136.2-mile race out to the Swiftsure Bank and back has become a sort of localized Olympics, attracting yachtsmen from as far away as California.

Some enthusiastic types even fly out from Calgary to compete in the annual classic.

Some of the boats that have held Victorians enthralled as they've come barrelling down to the finish line over the years are among the first to be registered.

Henry Kotkins' Diamond Head of the Seattle Yacht Club is one. Who will forget that stirring moment in 1969, when trailing 45 minutes behind John Long's Mary Bower through Race Rocks, she followed the wind patches down to the finish line to get the gun three minutes before her long-time rival.

Mary Bower will be back, too, but not with Long at the helm. She now belongs to local sailor Dave Thomas, who will be racing her under the colors of the Maple Bay Yacht Club.

Long, who is still looking for a new dream boat, will be out there too. He'll be skippering Dick Saunders' Sparkman and Stephens-designed 53-footer Gabrielle III.

The first boat home in 1971, Dr. Carl Jensen's 60-foot yawl Adios will be competing again this year.

So will Seattle architect John Graham, whose 67-foot yawl Maruffa has probably won him more silverware than any other Swiftsure skipper. Maruffa still holds the all-time record for the course — just under 24 hours.

Graham has sold Maruffa and will be racing Elixir, a new Palmer Johnson 37. She, too, could prove to be a winner.

Two other eye-catchers on the start line will be Canadian navy's 91-foot ketch Oriole and George O'Brien's Endless Summer, the former Aussie 12-metre Dame Pattie.

O'Brien has had Endless Summer completely rigged out for offshore racing and is hoping for a repeat of his 1970 success when the 12-metre won all the Swiftsure silverware within her reach.

Several veterans of the Victoria-Maui race are entered, among them Don Lawson's Cubara of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

Another Victoria-Maui veteran, Bill Gardner's Lucy Alice of the Corinthian Yacht Club, who's raced to Hawaii twice, will be sailing the 75.6-mile Juan de Fuca race that begins at 9.45 a.m. Saturday.

Often called the Little Swiftsure because of the shorter course, the Juan de Fuca is no cinch for the smaller boats that sail it. They face the same weather conditions as their larger sisters, hit by the same storms and angry seas.

Last year's Swiftsure pointed up this fact. Eighteen boats, most of them in Swiftsure, were forced to turn back one hour after the race began, six of them with broken masts. Some had crews knocked out through seasickness.

In the days between now and start time every piece of gear and rigging will be checked, every sail examined in preparation for next weekend's testing.

In contrast to last year's start, this year's may end up in frustration if there's no wind to fight the adverse tide. In past years many a boat has been forced to anchor and wait until favorable winds allowed her get-away.

The vanguard of the huge Swiftsure fleet will begin moving into the Inner Harbor Thursday and by Friday they'll be jammed, gunwhale to gunwhale, below the Causeway.

It will be an evening of ceremony and merriment with most of Victoria out to view the proceedings.

The yachts will dress ship and welcoming ceremonies will be carried on aboard the Bay's replica of the 17th Century Nonsuch. Sea cadets will go through the paces of a Sunset Ceremony on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings.

There'll be entertaining aboard the boats with skippers and crews spending pre-race hours with family and friends.

The smart ones will make those hours short — Swiftsure is a testing not to be taken lightly.

Court Accepts Insanity Plea

A mental patient who shot and killed a Saanich policeman 12 years ago was found not guilty by reason of insanity in a B.C. Supreme Court trial Friday.

Raymond Harrold, 56, a deaf mute, was ordered by Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan to be "kept in strict custody until the pleasure of the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council is known."

The traditional ruling usually means the accused is kept in a mental home until the provincial cabinet authorizes his discharge.

The non-capital murder charge involved the shooting of Const. Robert Kirkby, one of about two dozen officers hunting for Harrold in heavy brush off Markham Road after he escaped from the Colquitz provincial mental home, April 24, 1960.

The mental home is now the Wilkinson Road jail.

The trial was delayed 12 years because Harrold, also known as Raymond Herald, was found following the shooting to be not fit to stand trial by reason of insanity.

Psychiatrists found at that time the accused had the mental age of a five to seven-year-old child. He has spent most of the intervening years at Riverview mental hospital on the mainland.

A cabinet order issued earlier this month declared him fit to stand trial.

A special hearing was held Friday preceeding the trial to ensure Harrold was fit to stand trial. The 12-man jury heard from two psychiatrists and concluded the trial should go ahead.

A new jury was then chosen. The accused through his lawyer, Alan Bigelow, pleaded not guilty.

In a mutually agreed-upon statement of the facts, Crown and defence noted Harrold had been first committed to a mental hospital in 1934, not because he was criminally insane but because he was retarded from birth, deaf and almost mute.

Four years later he was paroled and permitted to work and live on a nearby dairy farm. In 1958, his mental condition deteriorated, he was readmitted to the mental hospital.

By 1960 his condition had improved to the point he was allowed to walk around the grounds. On April 24 that year he was discovered missing at supper, along with two .22 calibre rifles.

He shot at nurses who tried to apprehend him.

Saanich police were notified he had escaped, was armed and dangerous. The force had 22 men at the time and the search concentrated in bush near Markham and West Saanich Roads.

Kirkby, then 32, died almost instantly when shot in the chest. A mental home guard was also wounded by Harrold's shots.

CAUT Censures UVic Board

By BRIAN BUTTERS
Times Staff

The University of Victoria board of governors was censured Friday by the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

The CAUT voted at its annual meeting in Vancouver to extend the censure which it placed last year on then-president Bruce Partridge to include the board of governors.

The original dispute centred over three faculty members whose contracts were non-renewed by the UVic administration. They were Dr. William Goede, Dr. Tikam Jain and J. P. Graff.

Partridge has since departed the university and was officially replaced Monday by Hugh Farquhar, who has been pro tem president since February.

UVic Faculty Association president John Greene told delegates to the CAUT meeting that Farquhar has refused to act in the cases of the three faculty members.

NOT CONSULTED

Greene also said the board of governors did not consult the faculty when the appointment of Farquhar as president was confirmed this week.

Board of governors chairman Lloyd McKenzie would not comment on the CAUT move to censure his board, saying he wants to get official notification of it before commenting further.

Asked if he thinks CAUT is a credible and reputable organization, McKenzie said: "I can't discredit the organization or its membership since it is made up of a substantial number of faculty members from across the country."

"However, I will say that the conduct of the CAUT, with Victoria, has been incredible.

"They are very obscure in what they are doing and seem to think they are in charge of the universit yfrom a distance," McKenzie said.

He said CAUT's understanding of circumstances of issues at UVic is "seldom accurate" and referred to the latest CAUT bulletin which he said gives the impression that Goede and Graff were not kept on because of their political and philosophical beliefs.

'OUTER SPACE'

"There was never any ingredient of that in the decisions by the University of Victoria administration at all," he said.

"They just haul this kind of thing in from outer space and attribute the most reactionary attitudes to the university."

McKenzie said the CAUT seems to think the university acted in the manner of "an inquisition" in the faculty cases and said this attitude can only be described as "utter nonsense."

"The attitudes and actions it difficult to take them seriously."

On the subject of Farquhar's appointment, McKenzie defended the board's decision, saying Farquhar has demonstrated his competence.

"There was a very, very difficult situation here and Dr. Farquhar was asked to step into it. He has demonstrated, to the satisfaction of the board, that he is qualified to handle it."

McKenzie said Farquhar's integrity and experience at UVic are good qualifications "and we are simply acknowledging that fact."

He said the previous occasions when UVic has made important internal appointments, things have turned out well.

"It seems the more elaborate the selection process we go through, the more anguished the term of office turns out to be."

McKenzie said making an outside appointment means the university has to act on someone else's recommendation, since there is no direct knowledge of how the person operates. This is not the case with Farquhar, he said, who has been around UVic for about 40 years.

"We do try to learn something from our experience," he said.

GORGE WORK ENDS

Gorge waterway beautification — five years in the process — is nearing the end of its fifth and final phase north of Tillicum bridge.

Saanich works and parks crews have reached the landscaping portion of the $217,600 undertaking in the 400 and 500 blocks of Gorge Road West, where a rock seawall has been completed up to the beginning of privately-owned property between Gorge View and Tillicum.

Parks administrator Bert Richman said subsoil would be put in place next week and prepared for drainage, with topsoil and planting to follow.

Concrete work, backfilling, cobble paving, installation of guard rails and the wall itself are public works jobs. The landscaping, tree transplanting and seeding are done by parksmen.

Construction funds are provided by the Capital Improvement District Commission and maintenance is a Saanich responsibility.

Gorge beautification began on the Saanich side of the waterway at Craigflower bridge, working southward in the five construction phases.

Consideration is being given to the possibility of extending the wall and promenade along the water's edge southeast of Tillicum bridge in Gorge Park.

Saanich has purchased the old Gorge boathouse and will use the frontage where the building stood as an access to the small boat moorage.

The Wonderful Works of Rowland Emett

IN VICTORIA THE BEAUTIFUL, the broom is out, the dogwood has staged an uncommonly fine display, and Eaton's-across-Broad salutes high spring with a mind-blowing bit of spoofery. This is English cartoonist Rowland Emett's Humbug-Major Sweet Machine, a busy juggernaut evolved from oddments of nineteenth-century household hardware that serves two useful purposes.

Clanking, tinkling and purring, Emmett's one-unit assembly line makes a convincing show of dipping toffee-apples in treacle and moulding striped candy-sticks.

As the madcap inventor confirms in an explanatory sheet supplied to viewers, his device represents a thumbing of the nose at man's friend and enemy, automation.

"We know there are machines in the world," Emmett declares, "but I try to keep them in their place. After all, I'm the boss over the machines I build. . . . Well, only just barely."

After spending too many minutes contemplating the Humbug-Major Sweet Machine, I moved on to study a second Emmett invention: called the Hush-a-Bye Hot Air Rocking-Chair, completed with carpet slippers for weary feet.

"That's for me," said another fellow who had paused. We watched the rocker do its thing with soothing effect. Then the other viewer mummured "Wonderful, wonderful! He passed on to inspect a third Emmett creation labelled The Clockwork Lullaby Machine.

The next person to happen along was a lady with winter in her soul. She darted a short, sharp question. "What makes them work?" I thought of telling her the machines were powered by trained mice on treadmills, but her eye discouraged persiflage. Actually, they are plugged into prosaic electric outlets.

The female pragmatist then stared hard at a likeness of Emmett set alongside his turning wheels, reaching arms and chuffing pistons.

"H'Mmph," she said. "he doesn't LOOK like a freak!"

If omens deserve heeding, David Anderson has even more going for him than I suspected in his bid to lead British Columbia Liberals toward the Promised Land.

A few days ago, CBC decided to do a television takeout on the present MP for Saanich-Esquimalt. In the course of its investigations, the network learned that Anderson likes to go fishing on the rare occasions when time permits. Very well, then. CBC crew and subject would repair to a lower mainland stream, from which Anderson would extract a steelhead.

No use to protest that these moody sea-run rainbow trout can't be hooked to order. The expedition was mounted, and at a likely pool. Anderson unlimbered his spinning gear.

There are anglers who ply their art for season after season without hitting a steelhead, but the Anderson casting arm was scarce grooved in when an eight-pound steelie fresh up from the sea latched on to the lure.

With the camera's eye upon him, Anderson played and beached his prize.

He then returned to his casting, and within 20 minutes, had subdued a second bright eight-pounder.

Admittedly, the waters of politics are murkier, than any steelhead creek, and the fish run heavier. But for what omens are worth, it augurs well.

For a study in futility, I bid you consider the suburban lawn.

Its owner scatters expensive and ill-smelling substances on it to encourage growth. Then, with growth achieved — and this time of year, the grass springs up almost visibly — he must wheel out his mower and spend precious spare time cutting the stuff.

Thanks to a merry-minded reader, however, I am rescued from brooding over the chore that waits me.

"Apropos your article on fish and chips," she writes, "have you heard about the visitor to a monastery who saw two men preparing dinner in the kitchen? When he asked who they were, he was told that one was the fish friar and the other the chip monk."

On that note we part. Safe journeys, and happy holiday!

New Reid Plan Pleases Pollen

Vancouver developer J. A. Reid appears to be making headway with his latest proposal for his Wharf Street development, judging by the enthusiasm of Mayor Peter Pollen.

Plans and a model of the revised development were shown to the Advisory Planning Commission Thursday night, and Pollen indicated Friday that the proposals are to the city's liking.

"The result is a very good and exciting compromise between an overscale 23-storey monster and a park," Pollen said.

"It looks as if the agony of the past two years has been worthwhile."

Pollen would not say whether the APC would recommend approval of the Reid project, but said the commission's recommendation for "a particular course of action" will come before the council at an early date.

Precise details of the latest Reid proposal have not been made public, but the general scheme involves two curved towers, one taller than the other, with an open plaza area between.

The APC also studied Thursday night the completed $10,000 Spence-Sales report on downtown planning, which was commissioned by council a year ago.

A public visual presentation of the report by planning consultant Harold Spence-Sales is expected next week.

Bobby Hull Ready to Jump To Winnipeg

Times News Services

Who says the hockey season is over?

The sport enjoys mid-season publicity with notes, quotes and announcements from hither and yon.

IN CHICAGO, the Black Hawks' yearbook says Bobby Hull "is synonymous with Chicago," but if things work out, Hull may jump the National League to be playing for Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association next season.

Hull said Friday that he has a verbal agreement with the Jets, and that if they come up with the money he'll go to work for them next season.

"I've made a verbal agreement with Winnipeg, and if they make good on it I'm gone," Hull said, and he stressed that if Winnipeg makes the right offer there's no chance for him to stay in Chicago.

Jets' owner Ben Hatskin replied: "We'll have the money . . . we'll meet with Bobby and his agent next week."

Hull is reported seeking $1 million in advance for his first year's service and $1 million more for four more years of play. Hull's recently-expired contract with the Black Hawks paid him about $150,000 a year.

Two days after Boston Bruins won the Stanley Cup in May, 1970, Harry Sinden shocked the hockey world by resigning as coach of the NHL champions.

At that time he expressed little interest in returning to coaching, but now he has changed his mind.

Sinden said he would "jump at the chance" to coach the Canadian team that will meet the Russians in an eight-game exhibition tournament in September.

"Coaching that team" said Sinden. "Most definitely."

He said the whole idea of Canada using its best professionals against the Russian national team intrigues him and he praised those who arranged the tournament.

He said he doesn't believe that Canada has nothing to gain and everything to lose in such a confrontation with the Russians, who have won the world amateur championship nine times.

"What's the use of us saying we're the best all of the time but not proving it? Russia has won the world title eight or nine times and certainly deserves a chance to play our best."

Frank and Pete Mahovlich obviously believe the family that plays together stays together.

It appears that way today after Pete, 25, resisted the blandishments of the new WHA and joined Frank, 34, in signing contracts for the next NHL session with Montreal Canadiens.

Sam Pollock, general manager of the Canadiens, announced both signings Friday, but refused to disclose the length of the contracts signed by left winger Frank and forward Peter.

Earlier this month it appeared the brothers would be on opposite sides of the fence, following repeated reports that Pete was ready to sign a multi-season, financially-enticing contract with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the WHA.

ELSEWHERE, Albuquerque, N.M., got into hockey Friday following an announcement that the city has been awarded a Western League franchise for the 1973-74 season . . . At the same time, Charles O. Finley, owner of the NHL's California Golden Seals and baseball's Oakland Athletics, announced he has purchased the WHL's Salt Lake City team from Mrs. Daniel H. Meyer, widow of the Eagles' owner who died last season . . . Winnipeg Jets of the Western Canada League are hoping to purchase Dauphin Kings of the Manitoba Junior League . . .

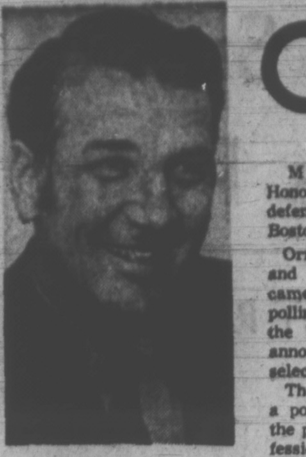
Ace Stamps Tregear As Police Marksman

Gordie Tregear, Ron Ferguson and Brian Andrews shared the spotlight in the third annual Saanich police tournament Friday at Cedar Hill Golf Club.

Tregear highlighted the day's shotmaking with a hole-in-one on the six hole. It helped him to the low gross prize in a special section for the host force.

Ferguson, a regular Cedar Hill member and with the Victoria police department, and Andrews took the major gross prizes. Ferguson topped the public division while Andrews led all guests.

Net awards went to Angus Stewart and Hal McGillvray.



RECUPERATING from neck injury is former Victoria Cougar hockey coach Fred Hucul. He suffered three broken bones in neck after being thrown by horse at his Caroline, Alta., ranch. He returned home this week after spending six weeks in hospital.

Tryout Camp

St. Louis Cardinals of the National League will be holding a baseball tryout camp for boys aged 16 to 19, inclusive, May 27 at Lambrick Park.

The camp, which will be conducted by Norm Trasolini, starts with registrations at 10 a.m. and is expected to continue most of the day.

Orr's Rewards Hit $25,250

MONTREAL (CP) — Honors just keep piling up for defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins.

Orr, along with team-mate and centre Phil Esposito, came within an eyelash of polling perfect scores when the National Hockey League announced its annual all-star selections.

The Boston pair drew 208 of a possible 210 points each in the poll conducted by the Professional Hockey Writers' Association members in 14 NHL cities. The four teams which had the most points during the regular season — Boston, New York Rangers, Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens — swept all 12 berths on the first and second all-star teams.

Voting was based on a system of five points for a first-place choice, three for a second, and one for a third. Each member of the first team receives $2,000 with the honor, and members of the second squad $1,000 apiece.

ORR'S TOTAL $25,250

Orr's selection and the $2,000 that goes with it brought his total award money from the NHL this season to $25,250. Broken down, the total looks like this: $15,000 as a member of the Stanley Cup championship team; $2,500 for the Bruins' first-place finish in the East Division; $2,000 for his selection as a first-team all-star; $1,500 each for winning the Hart, Norris and Conn Smythe Trophies; $750 in the individual scoring race, and $500 for being a member of the winning team in the All-Star game.

Orr's selection, his fifth straight to the first team, gives him a total $69,875 in award money in six NHL seasons.

Only one defenceman in the 42-year history of NHL all-star teams has a longer string of consecutive selections than Orr — Doug Harvey of the Canadiens. Harvey was named to the first team seven times from 1951-52 through 1957-58.

Red Kelly, now coach of Pittsburgh Penguins, was named five straight seasons while with Detroit from 1950-51 through 1956-57 Pierre Pilote of Chicago also had five straight first-team selections from 1962-63 through 1966-67

Orr earlier was awarded the Hart Trophy as the league's most valuable player, the Norris as top defenceman, and the Smythe as the best performer in the playoffs.

IT'S A RECORD

Phil Esposito made history of his own as he became the first player ever named to the first team at centre for four consecutive years. The rangy native of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., who led the scoring again this season with 66 goals and 133 points, was the second-team centre in 1967-68.

Hull's selection to the first team for the 10th time ties him with Harvey as runner-up to Gordie Howe of Detroit in number of first-team selections. Howe was named to the first team 12 times and to either team a record 21 times during a 25-year stretch.

This is Hull's 12th selection to either team, the most by an active player.

Orr and Phil Esposito are the only players to repeat their 1970-71 selections to the first team, while Chicago's Pat Stapleton and Yvon Cournoyer of Montreal repeat their second-team status.

Chicago netminder Tony Esposito is making his second first-team appearance in three seasons.
